Buckley: Savings Bonds a Rip-Off!

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "A $100 bond purchased in 1976 will be worth less than $50 in 1986 in terms of purchasing power at maturity," according to U.S. Sen. James L. Buckley, R, C-N.Y., claiming that Americans are being "embezzled tens of billions of dollars. from the value of their savings entrusted to their government."

For years Americans have placed their money in U.S. Savings Bonds feeling assured that their investments were "as good as gold," according to Buckley. But, Buckley explained, "while the government continues to promote deliberately inflationary policies, it at the same time continues to promote savings bonds as a sound, prudent investment, a kind of deception that the Securities and Exchange Commission would not tolerate in private issue."

He said that assuming the continuation of the average inflationary rate we have experienced over the last 10 years, anyone who purchases a savings bond today could expect to see the real value of the principal erode by 50 per cent by the time the bond matures in 10 years.

In the meantime, Buckley said the depreciation of the value of the principal will more than offset the interest earned by the holder of the bond; "and to add insult to injury, the holder is compelled to pay taxes on this fictitious 'income.' "

To fully protect investors in savings bonds, he has introduced the Fair Savings Bond Act of 1976, which would adjust interest and principal payments on U.S. Savings Bonds to reflect changes in the consumer price index.

If, for example, between the date of purchase and the date of maturity, the cost-of-living index has doubled in order to reflect a 50 per cent decline in the purchasing power of the dollar, then the bond holder will be paid at maturiy twice the value of the bond, Buckley said.

His bill "would eliminate a portion of the profit the government realizes from inflation, while restoring to the individual some ability to protect savings and to provide for retirement years."

Auto Insurance Will Rise

KINGSTON—A tale of industry mismanagement, consumer greed, increased medical costs and escalating auto parts prices has surfaced locally in the wake of an announcement Monday that auto insurance premium costs may skyrocket this year.

An unnamed source in the State Insurance Department said Monday that auto innsurance premiums may increase between 20 and 25 per cent this year for New York State motorists. The cost of medical treatment and auto replacement parts was blamed for the anticipated increase.

Today, a number of Kingston area auto insurance carriers confirmed that grim projection. And judging from their comments, it doesn't look like anyone will be spared.

A spokesman for the Allen L. Hanstein Insurance Co. said today, "The various companies that we represent expect to file for rate increases averaging 25-35 per cent. Whether those rate increase are approved remains to be seen."

The Hanstein spokesman acknowledged that the high price of auto parts and increased medical costs must share part of the blame, but he pointed to one other factor that has contributed to the problem.

Part of the reason is the stock market," he said, "In previous years, the insurance companies were making enough money on Wall Street to offset their losses. With the present condition of the stock market, they can't make that investment income to offset their losses."

"Unless there is a change in the economy and the stock market," he added, "rates will continue to increase."

Louis P. Conti suggested another factor. "The trend toward increasing rates will end only when the insured realize that they can't put in a claim for every little scratch," said Conti. People always want their cars to look like new, but the more claims there are, the higher the cost will be."

Frank Adams noted that premiums have increased once this year already, and that further increases may be approved between now and September. "There are two keys," said Adams, "it costs a fortune! to fix a car, and no-fault is draining the insurance carriers."

Despite the gloomy reports, there is at least one agent locally who feels the situation may not deteriorate as much as some predict. "I think the insurance rates for most companies have increased as much as they will this year," said Frank H. Reis, "The next three or four months will be critical. If the insurance companies can turn themselves around, we may avoid substantial increases."

Reis said that his firm has received rate increase announcements this year from every company it represents, including Allstate, Prudential, Aetna and Kemper. "But the tide may be starting to turn," said Reis. "If the premiums begin catching up to the losses, we may avoid further substantial increases this year."

Reis said the insurance industry itself must share a large part of the blame. "In the early 1970s," he said, "the insurance companies became profitable, and they started giving the hay in the barn away, instead of charging for it. Now the companies are trying to play catch-up. If they had increased their rates to keep pace with inflation and costs we wouldn't be in this situation now."

One company that has a lot of catching up to do is GEICO, which now sits on the thin edge between survival and disaster. This week, GEICO was granted a 47 per cent rate increase, but some local agents say even that may not be enough.

The impact of industry problems on consumers isn't limited to economic factors. A spokesman for Ralph J. Carpino Inc. said today that many companies, faced with mounting losses, are becoming more selective as to who they insure.

And, as if this bad news wasn't bad enough, there is one other point to ponder. Conti noted that there is a move afoot to apply the four per cent state sales tax to all insurance premiums.

West Camp, Shady P.O.'s Non-Profit; Face Closing

WEST CAMP — The U.S. Post Office is thinking about closing its facilities in West Camp and Sahdy and either contracting mail services or converting to a rural route service.

Most people are unhappy about it according to Richard Haines, officer in charge at West Camp.

The 135 post office patrons there, who pick up their mail daily at the post office located ion the Community Market, don't relish becoming rural route patrons and Haines maintains that bidding on a contract to perform the services would not be worthwhile.

The two post offices are among about 1,000 in the country, which do not pay their own way and are being considered for closure.

Postal officials, faced with court suits and criticism of planned closing this summer, said hundreds of post offices have been shut in the past with little fanfare. Such offices, they said, are not closed unless patrons can get equal or better service.

West Camp Post Office currently operates with a $16,000-a-year budget with a $4,000 income leaving a $12,000 deficit, roughly the amount of salary for the postmaster, Hains said.

To bid for the post office contract would not be worthwhile, he said, citing the Town of Fosterdale where the U.S. Post Office accepted a $2,500 bid on a yearly contract. "That's about 200 a month for a 48½-hour week." Haines explained.

In Shady, Catherine Woehrle, officer-in-charge, declined to give details concerning the post office operation because she has not received official word from the U.S. Post Office. She did acknowledge however, that residents of the area had received communiques from the post office officials seeking their opinion on the proposals.

Hains said two options have been advanced but post office patrons prefer to have the service remain as it is. The rural route does not appeal to them because it necessitates their having to come to the Post Office for packages or certified mail if they are not at home at time of delivery, he said.

Compared with 76,945 post offices in 1901, there were 30,754 listed in the United Stautes last year.

One of them is Gabaldon, N.M., where the town's eight families will be placed on a "star route."

The post office cites Gabaldon, costing $3,736 a year to maintain, as an example of how it can save millions of dollars by closing the small, mostly rural post office facilities which do not break even.

About 300 post offices are bing considered for closure or conversion this summer and many are complaining. Members of Congress say voters are complaining to them.

Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman,, R-26th Dist., whop is a member of the Post Office Committee, said that another Mid-Hudson post office, in Johnson, in Orange County, is also being considered for closure.

Fifty House and Senate members have joined Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., in suing the Postal Service to prevent it from closing any post office just because it is losing money.

Gilman is not among them.

Committee Convenes On Welfare Default

KINGSTON — "We are in sympathy with Woodstock, but other towns throughout the county and country have the same problems."

So said Ernest J. Gardner, R.-Dist. 5, following Monday night's meeting of the Social Services Committee of the Ulster County Legislature. Gardner, who chairs that committee, was referring to the recent decision of Woodstock Town Board to refuse to pay present and future welfare bills submitted to the town by Commissioner Bernhardt S. Kramer of the county's Department of Social Services.

others. This is not just a local Woodstock problem. It's countywide, statewide and nationwide."

That, insists Woodsock Supervisor Val Cadden, is precisely the point. Woodstock has gone on record as saying the issue goes higher than the county level and that major reforms must be implemented by state and federal governments. By taking the stand it has, the town is looking for help, support and backing.

The reaction so far has been highly favorable, says Cadden. "Letters are pouring in from all over New York and

'Woodstock Cannot Be An Exception to the Law'

No official decision was reached in the matter at the meeting and no specific action taken. For the time being, at least, the Woodstock welfare issue will remain in the hands of legal counsel. Said Gardner, "Our county attorneys are still researching the statutes to try and find out what kind of footing we are on — and what legal action we have to take."

The committee chairman noted, however, that "Just as soon as we get a legal opinion from our attorneys, we will take whatever action is necessary." He added that no deadline had been set for attorneys to arrive at a conclusion.

How sympathetic is the committee with Woodstock's plight? Nine out of 12 members of the committee were present at the session and Gardner said, "Everybody is in sympathy with Woodstock, but we are also in sympathy with the problems of Connecticut," she says, "urging us to keep up the battle because we're fighting for everyone. We're getting great support."

Still, the Gardner committee feels it has to maintain a legal basis in the matter. "We must work within the legal framework of the law," he says, "and Woodstock cannot be an exception to the law."

Gardner also noted that, months ago, five proposals on Ulster County welfare reform came out of an upstate seminar and were presented to the State Legislature. They have not as yet been acted upon, he said.

All of which would seem to indicate that Woodstock, as only one small cog in the national welfare machine, will have to pay the county piper unless help comes from the state or federal government.

Major Surgery Proposed for CIA Ills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Recommending major surgery for the intelligence agencies to excise ills extending back more than 25 years and prevent their recurrence, the Senate intelligence committee proposes 87 changes headed by strong congressional oversight.

The recommendations came in a massive, 651-page report on U.S. foreign and military intelligence issued Monday by the panel winding up 15 months of investigations of the spy agencies.

Another 97 recommendations are due Wednesday when the committee releases its final report on domestic activities carried out by the FBI, CIA and the National Security Agency.

Just before the report was released, CIA Director George Bush succeeded in keeping a lid on publication of the full annual budget of all U.S. intelligence agencies — said to range from $6 billion to $10 billion worldwide.

But after he left, the committee voted 6-5 to let the Senate decide whether to reveal the budget for the first time.

LISBON, Portugal — Socialist leader Mario Soares has rejected the idea of a coalition with any of the other three top finishers in Sunday's legislative elections.

LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI) — The United States will use "unrelenting" economic pressure to force Rhodesia's white regime to accept black majority rule and "avoid a great tragedy," Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said in a major policy speech today.

Memoriam

In loving memory of Joseph DeLuca, on his Birthday, April 27.

A million times we've needed you, million times we've cried;
If love alone could have saved you
You never would have died.
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we love you still;
In our hearts you hold a place
No one else can ever fill.
It broke our hearts to lose you,
But you don't go alone,
For part of us went with you
The day God took you home.

LOVE,
HIS WIFE

Paltz Eatery Hit for $70

NEW PALTZ—Southern Ulster County had its second armed robbery in two days when an unidentified white male in his early 20s walked into Carrol's in this village shortly before 10 last night and escaped with about $70 in cash.

State Police from the Highland barracks said the robber used a long-barreled semi-automatic pistol in the commission of the crime. He fled on foot. The thief is said to be of medium build—5 feet 8 to 5 feet 10 and about 165 pounds —has long, dark curley hair and was wearing a jacket with blue jeans at the time of the robbery.

Sunday night a Gardiner couple was robbed at gunpoint of $200 in cash and some stereo equipment by two assailants. Police are still searching for that pair.

Stake-Out Pays

Rosendale police report they staked out the woods to come up with the arrest of two 18-year-old men on charges of possession of stolen property, and possession of a controlled substance, marijuana.

Town police report they arrested David Durham and John Sulko both of Tillson at 12:15 a.m. in the woods off Gristmill Road. Arraigned before Town Justice Albert Morelli, they were remanded to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $600 bail each. They will reappear before Morelli at a later date. Police say the investigation is continuing.

House Fire

Ulster County Mutual Aid reports the Ellenville Fire Company was out on a house fire in Ulster Heights that broke out shortly after 11 p.m. Monday. Firemen were on the scene until 2:20 this morning. The house was heavily damaged.

Girl Still Missing

Kingston City Police say that 14-year-old Sandra Bernstein of 89 Hone Street, reported missing Saturday night, has still not returned home. The girl, described as about 4 feet 10 and 80 pounds with long dark hair, was reported missing at 9 p.m. Saturday night, reportedly walking home from Bloomington. She was wearing a black windbreaker and dungarees when last seen.

Kingston AARP Nominates Slate

KINGSTON — New officers for the new year were nominated at the recent dinner meeting of the Kingston chapter of the Ameracan Association of Retired Persons.

The nomination committee, chaired by Ward Tongue, offered the following slate: George Holmes, president; Emma Aprea, first vice-president; William Blair, second vice-president; Lucille Davidson, third vice-president; Margaret McCardle, secretary; John Barton, assistant secretary; Sophie Cornelske, assistant treasurer; Ernest Myer and John McCardle, directors and Caroline Garon, Egbert Maxwell and Ward Tongue, nominating committee. Elections will be held in May.

The dinner meeting was held at St. Joseph's School, and included a presentation by William Heitzman, president of the St. Joseph's Senior Citizens Club, who discussed the activities of his organization.

Also discussed were several possible bus trips this summer, including trips to the Saratoga Performing Arts Center and a dinner trip to The Inn in Connecticut.

In other matters discussed at the meeting, Mrs. McCardle explained the defensive driving course that will be offered by the local chapter May 5, 6, 12 and 13 at the Holiday Inn. Instruction will take place each of those dates from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The organization's next meeting will be held Tuesday, May 20 in the cafeteria of the George Washington School starting at 7:30 p.m. All persons 55 years of age and older are invited to join the club.

County Projects Included in DOT Plans

ALBANY — Bids from contractors will be opened May 17 by the State Transportation Department (DOT) for 28 projects to include highway improvements and railroad intersection upgrading in Ulster County.

Initial work on the second span of the Newburgh-Beacon Bridge, safety improvements at some 100 railroad crossings in most counties, and widespread highway reconditioning jobs are among the projects announced by Transportation Commissioner Raymond T. Schuler.

Priority projects for Ulster County are: reconditioning of Route 44-55 for 2.4 miles in the Town of Lloyd from Route 9W to Chapel Hill Road. The two-lane pavement will be resurfaced with asphalt and sidewalks or paved shoulders, four feet wide, will be provided along with adequate drainage;

•Reconditioning Route 55 for 3.2 miles in the Town of Wawarsing from a point near Continental Road northeast to Route 55A, where the intersection will be rebuilt on an "improved alignment." Route 55 will be resurfaced with asphalt with four-foot shoulders, new guide rails, and improved drainage;

•Drainage improvements along Route 9W for 3.3 miles in the Town of Lloyd from the Esopus town line south to Woodside Place. Deteriorated catch basins will be repaired or replaced and will be restored where necessary;

•Safety improvements on Route 9W at six intersections between here and the Tappan Zee Bridge, including the junction with Route 209 in the Town of Ulster, just north of the recent state widening of Ulster Avenue Mall, and others at Routes 303, 318, 307, 209, and the Palisades Interstate Parkway.

The improvements on approaches to railroad crossings from state highways will consist of marking the pavement with rail crossing symbols, crossbars, and lane stripes and erection of rail crossing caution signs and no-passing signs.

Newburgh-Beacon Bridge work will consist of construction of the west abutment and four piers of the planned second span in the Town of Newburgh.

An Ulster Paint Job

TOWN OF ULSTER — Fire hydrants along Ulster Avenue Mall have a bright new coating of paint thanks to a community effort on the part of children in the town, businessmen who supplied paint, T-shirts and refreshments and the Town of Ulster Bicentennial Committee which coordinated the whole project.

Councilman Frank Sottile, the town board's liaison to the Bicentennial Committee said, "it certainly is gratifying during the Bicentennial year to see children, adults, senior citizens, business people, educators and town officials all working together for a common cause."

The Town Bicentennial Committee will sponsor the Stockaders performance on May 15 from noon to 3 p.m. at the Ulster Shopping Plaza. In addition to the colorfully costumed Stockaders from Kingston, fire companies in the town will display their life saving equipment.

Wallkill Terms Commuted

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Two Wallkill Correctional Facility inmates convicted of murder nearly 20 years ago have had their sentences commuted by Gov. Hugh Carey.

The two, both serving terms of 20 years to life for first-degree murder, were Thomas Frye, 39, convicted in 1957 for the slaying of a Queens store owner during a robbery, and Joseph Hughes, 40, who shot and killed a Buffalo delicatessen operator during a holdup.

Commutation enables them to appear before the State Parole Board for release under board supervision and jurisdiction until the expiration of their maximum sentences.

Frye has been incarcerated for about 18½ years. A news release issued by Carey's office Monday said clemency was recommended by the correctional authorities, the Parole Board and members of the Society of Friends.

Frye and co-defendant William Wynn were lookouts during the robbery. The two who actually participated in the killing were executed. Wynn was granted executive clemency by Gov. Malcolm Wilson in December 1974.

Hughes has been imprisoned for 18 years. Clemency was recommended by the superintendent of Wallkill, the Parole Board and several clergymen who have visited the prison.

During his incarceration, Hughes obtained a high school equivalency diploma, completed vocational training in welding and optics and began college studies.

'Holocaust Memorial Day'

KINGSTON — Mayor Francis R. Koenig has proclaimed today as "Holocaust Memorial Day" in memory of the six million Jews who died during World War II.

Koenig proclaimed that today be "officially declared Holocaust Memorial Day in this city, so that the memory of those unequalled crimes against the Jewish people and against humanity be perpetuated in the minds of all freedom loving peoples, so that they never again be repeated."

Was It Arson?

An empty gasoline can, shingles neatly piled near an old wooden staircase bannister and a sudden burst of flames lend credence that last week's fire in the historic West Strand section of Kingston was deliberately set.

If that assumption is true, we hope that police and fire detectives find whoever is responsible and prosecute them immediately.

Robert Johnson, who is fighting all kinds of odds in trying to resurrect the downtown area, has vowed to open his Cafe Downtown on the first floor of the burned building on the original May 15 scheduled date.

We wish Mr. Johnson luck and commend him for his determination. We hope his business does open on time. He deserves more than a gutted building which the insurance companies wouldn't even insure.

Warning for Sportsmen

Dear Editor:

Sportsmen are not aware of it, but they're being sold out by the N.Y. State Conservation Council to the state's game management bureaucracy (GMB) which, over the past 35 years, has been engaged in a conspiracy of using over-populations of predators to keep pheasants, grouse, ducks, Hungarian partridge and other birds scarce, including deer in the Adirondacks.

This conspiracy of keeping game scarce has had the approval of the Council, which, throughout its existence has opposed control of predators as a means of restoring an abundance of game,while at the same time it has approved increases in license fees and employment of more and more game managers to increase game. What a farce!

The latest development in this conspiracy is a Bill A-2256D in the Assembly, introduced by the Council to give the GMB authority to establish closed seasons on red and gray foxes and coyotes in this state.

The reason this Bill has been introduced by the Council is because the price of coyote, fox and raccoon pelts has rocketed to an all-time high in the past two years, with fox and coyote pelts bringing $25 to $40 and raccoon, $12 to $30. They are the three most destructive predators in the state, and the price of their pelts has served as an incentive for hundreds of trappers to renew their interest in trapping, and their annual take is threatening to reduce the over-population of these predators to the point where pheasants, grouse, ducks and even deer in the Adirondacks will begin to stage a rapid comeback. The Council and the GMB are fearful of this increase in game, as it will deprive them of the best argument they've had for raising license fees and employment of more game managers, whose main occupation is feeding sportsmen and the public with lies to discredit the value of predator control.

The GMB can't control the rising price of pelts. But, if Bill A-2256D is approved, it will give the GMB authority it wants to drastically reduce the take of foxes and coyotes. It could use the authority to close the season and open it in late fall when the ground is freezing. This would make the "dirt-hole" trap set, which is the only effective means for taking these predators, worthless and ineffective. That's the purpose of the Bill. I urge all hunters and trappers to write their Assemblyman and Senator to oppose the Bill.

Says Law Unlawful

Dear Editor

The LAW that incriminiates a person, before he or she commits a crime, is unlawful. A person is innocent until proven guilty.

Before buying a pistol in the State you have to get a permit. This is saying, that, a person is guilty before she or he buys a pistol.

I believe, that all gun control laws and pistol permits are unlawful, and anybody who says different should read our statutes.

You have heard about the Sullivan Law which, I believe, to be unlawful as a three dollar bill. Any person or persons making you obey an unlawful law as this, should be put into jail, for disobeying the law of the LAND!

Sincerely,
ROBERT J. TOMPKINS
New Paltz

'One-Vote' Reminder

Dear Editor:

When we write or call our representatives in government the answer too often comes back the same:

They are not out to get the "Good Guys" only the "Bad Guys." "Bad Guys" want and have pistols four inches and under. "Good Guys" stay home "Saturday nights" and don't want or own a four-inch pistol.

Stopping the manufacturing of four-inch and under pistols will abolish them for ever and ever from this land. So, the Bad Guys won't be able to buy or make a four-inch pistol, because the Good Guys can't buy or make one, legally.

Again and again we've tried to tell our politicians they are leaning too much on our Rights as Americans. And too many times the answers are: "well, what do you expect me to do?" "I have only one vote!"

Yes, we do agree here! I have "one vote," my husband has "one vote" our friends and relatives have "one vote" each. Our "one votes" put them in their offices and these same "one votes" can put them out of office.

Sincerely,
CAROL TOMPKINS

Disputes 'Stable' SPCA

Dear Editor:

Mrs. Mary Russell's letter in The Sunday Freeman on April 4th makes an appeal for people "willing to be candidates for the Board of Directors" of the Ulster County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. She assured future board members "that the organization is in a very stable situation at this time". I would truly appreciate her explanation of just where in the S.P.C.A. she finds this "very stable situation."

An organization with an operating deficit of $24,163.84 for the first eight months of the current fiscal year (as shown on the statement of Profit and Loss dated 12 - 31 - 75) would appear to be in a somewhat less than "stable situation" financially. The S.P.C.A. has never been a profit-making organization; however, this is the largest deficit I can recall.

The management of the affairs of the S.P.C.A. is vested in a Board of Directors composed of 12 members of the Society. Each year four members are elected for a term of three years each. On May 31, 1975 four directors were elected to three year terms. At the quarterly membership meeting in November 1975 it was reported that three board members had resigned; at the next quarterly meeting the resignations of two more board members were reported making a total of five resignations from the Board of Directors in less than nine months. Three of the four directors elected to three year terms in May had resigned by February 24th. It would seem that in the area of government the Society's situation could hardly be termed "very stable."

There was no shelter report made at the last quarterly meeting, so concerning the animals, I must base my views on the last report given to the membership (covering the quarter August - October 1975). During those three months, 545 dogs were brought in to the shelter; 202 dogs were adopted-out and 265 dogs were destroyed. During the same period, 790 cats were brought in to the shelter; 101 cats were adopted-out and 641 cats were destroyed. Not a "very stable situation" for the shelter animals. If the time ever comes when we have as many suitable homes as we have adoptable animals to place in those homes, we will then be able to say we have "a very stable situation" for the animals. O Lord, how we pray for that day to arrive!

It may be because our total assets (i.e. shelter and grounds, equipment, and what ever is left of our former trust fund, etc.) might be said to be worth more than our current obligations, Mrs. Russell views this as assurance of a very stable situation. Perhaps she is right.

Yours truly,
MRS. DOROTHY CARLSON
Member of Ulster County S.P.C.A.

Just A Few Questions

Dear Editor:

Brian Harding's letters in your April sixth issue amazes me in that a man of his non-beliefs could live in such a religious community as Kingston.

May I pose a few questions — Why did George Washington pray at Valley Forge, the postage stamp was issued in 1928 showing Washington on his knees (Scott s Catalogue No. 64)? Why?

Why do we have chaplains in all branches of our armed services?

Why does the Congress have chaplains?

Why do we have the motto "in God we trust" on our coinage?

Why does Ford go to church?

Why was Harding born?

God forgive this mentally deranged man.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH P. FUREY

Any Spare Placenta?

Robert Pear of the Washington Star reports, rather matter-of-factly, that ingenious American enterprise has discovered a use for human placenta. These tissues are, one gathers, quite valuable. They are being gobbled up by the cosmetics industry, and a big line of products is now available, the base of which is the human placenta.

The story does not specify just exactly how one goes about securing these tissues. Does a representative of Revson approach the delivery room, and offer five dollars to the mother? Or — perhaps — five dollars to the nurse? Or is the initiative taken by a member of the hospital staff, who spirits away the substance, as in days gone by the undertakers would spirit away the corpses, for a little profit?

It occurs to me that we never did find out exactly what the Nazi scientists established at Belsen about the commercial uses of human skin. We know that the Bitch had some lampshades made out of them, but don't know whether that was the only contemplated use of human skin. To be sure, the cosmetics industry was not then so highly developed, so it is even possible that the scientists found that human skin was not very useful for anything at all, except to sheathe human flesh, and provide a warm glowing light in the lamps of the world's concentration camps.

The dispatch says that some people are in fact put off by the knowledge that the hair spray or whatever they are about to buy has its base in human placenta. But not many. It is a clinical age we live in, and we have thus far successfully controlled any unruly emotions at the sight of photographs of fetuses, five, and six months old, routinely evacuated from the womb by doctors who once took a Hippocratic oath.

Mr. Nicholas Von Hoffman, who has a highly developed capacity for indignation, is indignant at the continuing indignation of the anti-abortion people, and he explains his indignation in a most peculiar manner. By citing examples of what Communist women recently reported at a conference in Emilia-Romagna, as a frequent practice by women who do not want the child, but cannot get an abortion.

He cites the testimony of one woman: "We wouldn't even tell our husbands we were pregnant, nor our mothers-in-law who used to live in the family. It would all be agreed among us young wives. Then, when the moment had come, we would leave the men in the fields for a while, we would give birth to the child with the help of some sister or sister-in-law and then we would go back to work so the men wouldn't know."

Now Mr. Hoffman's instincts for self-preservation are sharp enough to cause him to concede that it is not fully documented that the accounts are true. But he does pass it along, and expresses no skepticism about the powers of the Communist mothers of Emilia-Romagna to go nine months with child without any external trace of pregnancy detectable by their husbands, or their mothers-in-law. Just to begin with, the mothers should offer their secrets to Revlon, in return for Italian rights to their placenta patents. But accurate or not, Mr. Hoffman suggests that to such lengths are women driven if you deny them a safe, surgical abortion.

For reasons unknown and perhaps unknowable, such stories circulate even in an age where their relevance for Americans is nugatory. Surely any American woman who is prepared to commit infanticide rather than bear a child will guard against conception by using any of the several methods widely advertised? And surely any such mother, unless she is aberrant, would know that there are agencies that will accept unwanted babies? And waiting lines of people who wish to adopt them? If the mother is unbalanced, we cannot, really, guard against anything she does. But surely the national debate oughtn't to center on the alternatives madwomen might take? And surely a national period of meditation is in order on the diminished sensibilities of a society that uses human material as a base for cosmetics?

Ford Flip-Flop

WASHINGTON — President Ford dropped his support of legislation to curb corporate mergers after his most prominent campaign fundraiser complained about the bill to top White House and Treasury officials.

The decision to scuttle the consumer measure was reached at a secret White House meeting after fundraiser Bernard Lasker intervened. Lasker, an investment banker and former head of the New York Stock Exchange, has been a key member of Ford's executive campaign finance committee since November.

The amendment which so infuriated Lasker would have given the government a better chance to block major corporate mergers which often strangle competition and run up consumer prices.

But the legislation could also cost the client's of Lasker's internationally known investment firm hundreds of millions of dollars.

So, a few weeks ago Lasker began calling his friends in Washington to object to the anti-trust bill as "inflexible." He spoke with Treasury and White House officials, including the President's top economic aide, William Seidman.

Almost immediately, the matter was brought up at a closed meeting of the White House's powerful economic board. There, the Treasury officials whittled away at the arguments of the Justice Department's anti-trust chief Thomas Kauper. Finally, the Lasker view prevailed.

To avoid making Kauper publicly back down, the White House had his boss, Deputy Attorney General Harold Tyler, convey the bad news to Senate Anti-Trust Chairman Philip Hart, D-Mich.

"The Administration," wrote Tyler, "does not support enactment of the pre-merger stay provision." The letter all but sounded the death knell for the bill because of the implicit threat of veto.

Seidman, who acted as a fair-minded mediator in the matter, confirmed he had spoken to the powerful fundraiser about the provision. Treasury officials also conceded they spoke with Lasker. Lasker did not return our call.

Footnote: President Ford also flip-flopped on a previous anti-trust measure. After pressure from business groups, Ford reversed himself on a bill to allow states to file anti-trust suits on behalf of their consumers.

BOOZE AND BOMBS: High-ranking officers of the Navy's Flagship carrier Saratoga, on at least one occasion, used the ship's nuclear storage spaces to smuggle whisky and furniture past U.S. customs.

The gold-braid smugglers correctly guessed that the customs inspectors, lacking nuclear clearance, wouldn't try to check the nuclear areas for contraband.

For more than two years, the Saratoga crew, disciplined to protect nuclear secrets, has been even more tight-lipped about the booze that was stashed in the bomb spaces. The secret might never have leaked out if the top brass hadn't revoked the liberty privileges of scores of enlisted men for drunkeness.

The indignant sailors got in touch with us to complain that their alcoholic trespasses were trivial compared to the escapades of certain top officers, including an admiral who turned out to be the secret owner of some confiscated spirits.

We have carefully verified the complaints from eyewitnesses and Navy files. Here are the fascinating facts:

Just before the Saratoga pulled out of the Tonkin Gulf in winter 1973, some Navy bigwigs loaded crates of whisky into a nuclear storage room on the third deck below the hangar bay. Some rattan furniture from the Philippines was also hidden in the secret nuclear area, according to our sources. The contraband, safe in its nuclear hiding place, was sneaked into the United States, duty free. The commanding officer of the Saratoga at that time was Capt. James R. Sanderson.

Last year, some Filipino stewards were also caught smuggling a load of booze aboard the Saratoga off the shores of Rota, Spain.

An alert Master at Arms spotted the stewards in the act of lugging the heavy crates and confiscated the bootleg liquor. We described the incident, in accordance with Navy regulations, in an investigative report.

But the report was quietly discarded after Rear Adm. Forrest Petersen angrily told Saratoga officers the booze belonged to him. In fact, he ordered the Saratoga's executive officer to personally return the liquor to the admiral's spacious cabin.

Petersen, incidentally, likes sports almost as much as booze. For when the Saratoga anchored just off Casablanca during that same tour, he loaded his golf clubs into one of the carrier's helicopters for a game with the Pasha of Mohammedea. Naturally, this didn't go over very well with the enlisted men, who were left behind to swab the decks.

Footnote: Sanderson denied any knowledge of efforts to avoid the payment of legitimate import duties on furniture or liquor. He says he declared about $2,800 worth of goods to customs inspectors. Petersen said the stewards were bringing him only "two or three bottles of cooking sherry." He added that his helicopter trip to the golf course in Casablanca was for an official function.

Because It's the Law

WASHINGTON —One of the most important legal decisions of the last 50 years was made in Washington, D.C., last week. U.S. Dist. Judge Charles Richey ruled that employes whose continued employment is conditioned on submission to the sexual advances of their supervisors may sue their bosses for sex discrimination.

Judge Richey, in his opinion, said that, while the case before him involved a female subordinate employe and male boss, the situation could be reversed — and a finding of discrimination could be made where a female supervisor made sexual advances to the male employes in her office.

However, Judge Richey ruled, sexual discrimination probably could not be raised as an issue if the supervisor was bisexual and made demands on employes of each sex.

The reason the ruling has such far-reaching implications is that it sets new guidelines for how bosses can behave during and after office hours all over the country. This is probably how things will go now.

"Thank you, Mr. Novak."

"And that's a lovely shirt you're wearing, Mr. Callihan."

"Thank you, Mr. Novak."

"Would you mind staying late tonight and helping me with my report, Miss Roseberry?"

"I-I-I guess so, Mr. Novak."

"You too, Callihan."

That night.

"Well, that seems to do it, Miss Roseberry. We got the report finished. What say we go out for a nice dinner?"

"I don't know, Mr. Novak. I think I'd better go home."

"Oh, let's relax. You know I've got my eye on you, and there is a promotion coming up in the department and I think I know someone who might be getting it. Heh, heh, heh."

"Well, all right, as long as we make it an early evening."

"You coming, Callihan?"

"Gee, Mr. Novak, I've got a date."

"Well, break it if you want to stay in this job."

"Yes, sir."

A small French restaurant.

"You know, Miss Roseberry, my wife doesn't understand me. You're the only one who knows the pressure I'm under."

"I do, too, Mr. Novak."

"When I want your opinion I'll ask for it, Callihan. Just eat your soup and shut up."

"Yes, sir."

"People think being a supervisor is all peaches and cream. But under this tough exterior, Miss Roseberry, beats the heart of a man with all the same desires and needs for love and affection as anyone else."

"If you hold my hand, Mr. Novak, I can't eat my soup."

"Sorry about that, Callihan."

Two hours later.

"Well, Miss Roseberry, here we are at your apartment. Can I come in for a drink?"

"Oh, it's so late, Mr. Novak."

"Remember what I said about that promotion, Miss Roseberry."

"All right, but just one drink."

"Good night, Mr. Novak."

"Get in here, Callihan. You don't leave until I leave."

"But I'm tired, Mr. Novak, and I have to review all those applications tomorrow morning."

"Who isn't tired? You think it's fun having to worry about being sued every time I take someone from the office out for dinner? You can take Miss Roseberry anywhere you want to.

But if I take her I have to take you, too. I don't make that kind of money, Callihan."

"I guess it does take the fun out of being a boss, Mr. Novak."

"Why me, Mr. Novak?"

If Jackie Swears Like a Stevedore, Should the Public Know?

WASHINGTON (KFS) - During her first year as the nation's First Lady, a private conversation of Jacqueline Kennedy was picked up accidentally by an illegal police telephone tap.

The incident, heretofore unreported, demonstrates once again - in case you haven't gotten the message by now - that not a single person's privacy is immune from snoops and spies if such practices are permitted on a broad scale.

The story was told to me by an old Kennedy family friend, who has police connections and who acted as go-between in the crisis that the phone tap produced.

Late in 1961, New York police placed a tap for which they had not requested a warrant on a public telephone booth frequented by a bookie on whom they were trying to collect evidence. On an unpublicized visit to Manhattan, Jackie Kennedy stopped to use that very telephone. It was the kind of coincidence that looks phoney in novels, but it really happened.

The police eavesdroppers recognized her unusual, breathy voice immediately. The call was placed to Oleg Cassini, her dressmaker, regarding a perfectly innocent business transaction. But the problem was not what she said but how she said it.

She had called Cassini to complain about the inadequacies of some dresses he was creating for her. And she used language more readily identified with stevedores than first ladies. She cussed and cursed in a manner which the younger generation would not find offensive today but which was considered crude and unladylike 15 years ago.

At the time, Jackie was being idolized in the press as a fairy princess, an elegant and dazzling beauty who patronized the arts and was bringing class and style at last to the White House. She was already number two on the Gallup Poll's list of the 10 women in the world the American people most admired (and a year later she was ranked number one).

But fairy princesses do not swear. The police realized they had a hot potato which, if printed, could spoil her regal image.

They hastily gave the tape of the conversation to an undercover agent, who passed it on to the Kennedy family friend. He in turn went to Jackie's brother-in-law, Robert, who happened at the time to be Attorney General, the nation's chief law enforcement officer.

It was an awkward conversation. The Attorney General was furious, but the friend is not certain whether he was angry at Jackie or the police or both. In the end, the Attorney General did not exactly order the tape destroyed, but the friend clearly got the message that it was his neck if it ever surfaced. "Have a nice weekend," Kennedy finally said coldly and abruptly rose and stalked out of the office.

It was not an earth-shaking crisis. But it does provide an interesting glimpse into the real White House world, which we have learned the past few years is not always what it seems to be.

The book "Final Days" by Watergate reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein has been harshly criticized for invading the privacy of First Lady Pat Nixon by describing her lack of sexual relationship with the President and her heavy drinking in those final days before he resigned. But there is no legitimate reason why the public should not know the truth about their behavior in private, since it is highly revealing of total character. If more about Nixon's true nature - and its effect on his family- had been known earlier, perhaps he would not have been able to get away so long with lying to the public about his police-state abuses.

What would have happened if a newspaper had acquired the tape of Jackie's conversation and printed it? Perhaps she would only have made swearing the vogue sooner than it happened.

Sinecure Scurry, Ethics Take Beating

WASHINGTON—It happens every four years. Like the rabbits of "Watership Down" who fled the warren to find a new home, politicians and bureaucrats are fleeing government to find new sinecures.

Theoretically, politicians who sit in Congress and high-ranking bureaucrats who run the Executive Branch are in Washington only temporarily. But three decades ago, when an Idaho senator named David Worth Clark was defeated and opened a Washington law office, it was said that "They never go back to Pocatello."

Instead of going home, politicians and bureaucrats trade on their government experience to set themselves up in private business as Washington lawyers, lobbyists, consultants, industry representatives and what have you. Using public office for private gain of course is unethical and there are conflict-of-interest laws. But laws rarely are enforced against politicians' and bureaucrats' conflicts-of-interest. It is the exception, rather than the rule, that anyone in Washington even thinks of ethics.

Consider the case of H. R. Crawford, a bureaucrat with the title Assistant Secrstary of Health, Education and Welfare for Housing Management.

Crawford was in charge of the government's huge public housing programs. Months ago he decided to leave government and go into business as a consultant to local public housing authorities. While still in government service, Crawford contacted public housing authorities in New York, Dallas and Winston-Salem to line up consulting contracts.

Crawford reportedly hoped to gross $600,000 in consulting fees in his first year out of government.

However, while still in his government job, he did not receive any money or any other tangible benefits from prospective clients, according to his lawyer.

President Ford fired Crawford bsfore he had a chance to leave government voluntarily. HUD said Crawford was fired because his efforts to line up business and consulting fees "raised possible conflicts of interest." The FBI began an intensive investigation of Crawford and the case still is pending at the Justice Department.

What Crawford did obviously was unethical. But, if what he did was illegal, then hundreds of politicians and bureaucrats should be in jail.

Crawford is black. He was the highest black in the Ford Administration. As Assistant Secretary at HUD, he was controversial. He made enemies.

I don't know whether Crawford was fired because he is black. I do know that Crawford, because he is black, had to work harder at trading on his government experience than a white with a Harvard Law School degree. I do know that Ford applied a double standard to Crawford.

A federal criminal statute says that no government employe shall "solicit or accept anything of value" and that politicians and bureaucrats should avoid even "the appearance of using public office for private gain."

The statute is violated daily. My investigation shows that young Justice Department lawyers routinely write letters soliciting jobs from Washington law firms that have substantial business pending before the Justice Department.

The other day, a top bureaucrat at the Health, Education and Welfare Department while still in office announced that he has accepted a $48,600-a-year education job in Utah.

A lawyer and former Federal Communications Commission chairman now represents American Telephone & Telegraph, which is regulated by the FCC.

A lawyer and former director of the Environmental Protection Agency now represents the polyvinyl chloride industry, which is regulated by EPA.

It happens every day. But every four years, when presidential elections roll around, politicians and bureaucrats by the hundreds seek private gains for fear of losing their public offices.

The use of public office for private gain robs the American people of effective government. The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, for example, has had six chairmen in 12 years. Worse, the use of public office for private gain feeds the cynicism of big government that is eroding democratic government.

Reid's Problems As Encon's Boss

ALBANY (UPI) — If Henry Aaron had as much trouble with timing as Ogden Reid has with his, Aaron would have batted .039 in the Three-I League and never been heard of again.

Fortunately for Aaron, his timing has been near perfect, as he has demonstrated in a quarter of a century of professional baseball.

Unfortunately for New York State's environmental conservation commissioner, Reid's timing has been a near disaster.

Reid's misadventure with timing perhaps goes back to the day of his birth because his aristocratic wealth gives him the kind of background that many people resent out of habit rather than reason.

But, his real problems began when he took over as commissioner of one of the state's most difficult departments — a department torn for the past 10 years in the battle between environmentalists and fish and game specialists.

Fishing and Hunting

For many years, the department was primarily interested in fishing, hunting and, to a lesser degree, recreation, with just a nodding acquaintance with environmental concerns.

As a result, many of its middle and top-level professionals are more inclined to dismiss environmental problems, not because they are not concerned but because their training and experience leads them to think of the department in terms of fish, game and swimming.

Henry Diamond was the first commissioner to begin the drive to environmental concerns. He also had his problems, but he had something going for him in the figure of former Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

Hive of Bees

Rockefeller had a tendency to treat attacks on his commissioners from within or without as an attack on himself. As any state official of those Rockefeller years can tell you, an attack on Rockefeller brought on more troubles than a hive of bees at a flower show.

The next commissioner who also had environmental concerns on his mind was James Biggane. A fine administrator, as he has since proved as secretary of the Senate Finance Committee, Biggane also had something else going for him.

A career employe of the department who worked his way up through the ranks, Biggane was what is known in Southern stock car circles as a "good ol boy."

STATE OF NEW YORK
PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

APRIL 13, 1976

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE THAT BY ORDER ADOPTED APRIL 13, 1976 THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION HAS INSTITUTED A PROCEEDING TO DETERMINE WHETHER AND TO WHAT EXTENT:

1. THE PRACTICE OF RENT-INCLUSION SHOULD BE PROSCRIBED WITH RESPECT TO FUTURE CONSTRUCTION; AND

2. CURRENT TARIFF PROVISIONS WHICH GENERALLY PROHIBIT THE PRACTICE OF SUB-METERING SHOULD BE MODIFIED. IN A RENT-INCLUDED BUILDING, TENANTS GENERALLY PAY FOR ELECTRICITY ON AN AVERAGE BASIS INCORPORATED INTO THEIR MONTHLY RENTAL AND NOT SEPARATELY IDENTIFIED. IN A SUB-METERED BUILDING, ELECTRICITY IS GENERALLY BOUGHT AT WHOLESALE RATES FROM THE UTILITY AND RESOLD TO TENANTS ON A METERED BASIS.

IN ITS ORDER, THE COMMISSION STATED THAT IT HAS REVIEWED THE RECORD IN CASE 26806, PROCEEDING ON MOTION OF THE COMMISSION AS TO RATE DESIGN, INCLUDING MATERIALS WHICH SUGGEST THAT USERS BE HELD ACCOUNTABLE FOR THEIR CONSUMPTION OF ELECTRICITY, AND HAS TENTATIVELY CONCLUDED THAT A PROSPECTIVE CHANGE IN THE EXISTING POLICY OF PERMITTING RENT-INCLUSION IS REQUIRED. THE COMMISSION ANNOUNCED ITS INTENTION TO DIRECT THE ELECTRIC UTILITIES UNDER ITS JURISDICTION TO AMEND THEIR TARIFFS TO PHOHIBIT RENT-INCLUSION IN NEW CONSTRUCTION, UNLESS INTERESTED PARTIES COULD SHOW CAUSE WHY SUCH A PROHIBITION WOULD NOT BE DESIRABLE. INTERESTED PARTIES WERE ALSO REQUIRED TO PROVIDE THE COMMISSION WITH GUIDANCE AS TO THE EARLIEST FEASIBLE EFFECTIVE DATE FOR ANY SUCH PROHIBITION.

WITH RESPECT TO SUB-METERING, THE COMMISSION HAS REQUESTED INTERESTED PARTIES TO FILE COMMENTS WHICH WILL ENABLE IT TO DECIDE WHETHER TO REMOVE, MODIFY OR RETAIN THE PRESENT RESTRICTIONS ON SUB-METERING OR, ALTERNATIVELY, WHAT FURTHER PROCEEDINGS WILL BE REQUIRED. THE COMMISSION STATED THAT, IN GENERAL, IT BELIEVES DIRECT UTILITY METERING TO BE SUPERIOR TO SUB-METERING IN LIGHT OF THE MANY ABUSES WHICH PROMPTED THE LATTER'S PROSCRIPTOON. INTERESTED PARTIES WHO WISH TO OFFER COMMENTS WERE REQUESTED, TO THE EXTENT FEASIBLE, TO ADDRESS, INTER ALIA, WHETHER AND IN WHICH SITUATIONS UTILITY METERING, SUB-METERING, OR EITHER CAN REPLACE RENT-INCLUSION IN EXISTING BUILDINGS; THE IMPACT OF A POSSIBLE PROSPECTIVE BAN ON RENT-INCLUSION ON THE NEED FOR A MODIFICATION OF SUB-METERING POLICY; THE EXTENT TO WHICH A CHANGE IN POLICY ON PRE-EXISTING BUILDINGS IN FAVOR OF SOME FORM OF SUB-METERING COULD INDUCE BETTER LOAD MANAGEMENT, ESPECIALLY IN LIGHT OF THE AGE OF SUCH BUILDINGS; THE FINANCIAL IMPACT ON UTILITIES AND OTHER AFFECTED PERSONS OF ANY CHANGE IN POLICY; AND WHETHER A CHANGE IN POLICY COULD ENCOURAGE ABUSES BY SUB-METERS, AND PROPOSALS TO DEAL THEREWITH, GIVEN EXISTING COMMISSION AUTHORITY.

THE COMMISSION SET A DEADLINE OF JUNE 1, 1976 FOR INTERESTED PARTIES TO SHOW CAUSE, IN WRITING, WHY THE PRACTICE OF RENT-INCLUSION, AS DESCRIBED HEREINABOVE, SHOULD NOT BE PROSCRIBED WITH RESPECT TO FUTURE CONSTRUCTUON. THE COMMISSION SET A DEADLINE OF JUNE 28, 1976 FOR COMMENTS, AS HEREINABOVE DESCRIBED, WITH RESPECT TO THE SUB-METERING ISSUE. INTERESTED PARTIES MAY OBTAIN A COPY OF THE COMMISSION'S ORDER BY REQUESTING A COPY OF SAID ORDER FROM THE UNDERSIGNED.

Dear Abby

Teens Seek Help with Love, Family Problems

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 and so is Todd. Every time we are alone, he tries to touch me in places I don't want him to. The only thing is that part of me wants him to, but the other part of me stops him.

I have been going with Todd for about five months, and I have never felt this way about any other boy. I wouldn't say that I am "in love" with him, but I sure do like him a lot.

I hope I don't lose him because I really enjoy his company. When he tries to touch me, and I make him stop, he doesn't put up a fight. He stops. But the first time he gets the chance, he tries again.

Please don't tell me to quit seeing Todd because I don't want to. And don't tell me I am too young to feel this way because if I feel this way I must not be too young.—NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: You are a very bright young woman, so listen carefully. Obviously you have normal sexual feelings, which is nothing to be ashamed of, but you are not yet sufficiently mature emotionally to handle a physical relationship. The word from here is: Tell Todd to knock off the hand bit. And if he doesn't—YOU do!

DEAR ABBY: As my high school graduation draws near, I am becoming more concerned about this problem. My parents are divorced, and my mother married a man my father absolutely detests. The feeling is mutual, and if they meet each other face to face, there is sure to be a fight.

I have sent invitations to my mother and father. My mother insists on having her husband attend with her. I am just terrified of what is going to happen when my father and stepfather meet at my graduation. And there is no way they can avoid seeing each other.

My graduation is a very important event in my life, and I want everything to go right. My father says he won't start anything, but if my stepfather takes a poke at him, he will defend himself.

I get tied up in knots just thinking about it. I've even considered not showing up myself. If there's a fight, I'll be disgraced. —IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: Don't borrow trouble. There may not be a fight. And if there is, remember, you are not responsible for the behavior of your father or your stepfather. They can disgrace only themselves.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been recently approved to be adoptive parents. In making a list of friends to whom we want to send announcements, we've come up against a problem. S even years ago, a friend of mine had a baby out of wedlock, and she gave the child up for adoption. It was a very difficult decision for her, and to this day she talks about it.

I see this friend about once a year. Knowing how deeply she feels about the decision she made, I wonder if it would be appropriate to send her an announcement about our adopted child.

We have many friends in common, and I know that soon after the announcements are sent, she will hear about it. If so, she might feel that I purposely overlooked her. Can you help me? —SOON-TO-BE MOTHER

DEAR SOON: If you aren't sure how she would react to a printed announcememt, phone her and tell her the news at the same time the others will be learning of it. Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

'Roughage' Defined

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have diverticulosis or pockets of the colon. Eating roughage hurts and cramps my colon with gas, yet I know I must have fiberous foods. On the other hand, I am told not to eat roughage. I do suffer more when I eat raw fruits and vegetables. Could you give me an idea of what to eat for roughage that would not cause discomfort? Is there anything better to take than Metamusil for my condition?

DEAR READER — The proponents of fiber for the diet believe that it will relieve many of the problems in diverticulosis. The idea is that those pockets of the colon are really a complication of a spastic or over contracted colon associated with inadequate bulk in the diet.

The word roughage is not a good word for the type of food you really need. What you need in your diet is "softage." The best source of bulk in food really is the cereal fiber found in bran or the husk of wheat. This is superior to the amount of fiber you'll get in either fruits or vegetables and since those bother you, you should try cereal fiber.

Among the readily available prepared cereals that you can get from the supermarket to satisfy your problem are Kellogg's All-Bran, Bran Buds and Nabisco Bran. If you will eat one ounce (about one teacup dry measure) of any one of these a day you will get enough "softage" to obtain whatever benefits you might expect from this procedure. In case you don't like any of those, you can use two ounces of Bran Flakes or Raisin Bran. Use two ounces of these a day because they don't contain as much cereal fiber.

Cereal fiber is not roughage. As soon as it is moist, as would happen in the stomach, it swells and becomes soft, not greatly different from the consistency you might see in cooked oatmeal. It won't irritate the digestive tract.

You may have an increased amount of gas during the first three weeks of using these foods. If you have too much, cut down on the amount you are using and gradually increase it. If you do well on this program you can then add other whole wheat products to your dietary plan, including whole wheat bread as opposed to the white flour types. In general try to increase your cereal fiber. For information on Diverticulosis send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 5-6. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. DEAR DR. LAMB — What causes mastoid trouble? When my daughter was about 1 year old she had it and had an operation. She seems to think it was caused by something I gave her. It bothers me.

DEAR READER — Most mastoid trouble is caused by an infection. That does not mean an infection that your daughter would have gotten from you. Mastoid infections were common complications of ear infections and the types of infections we classified as respiratory infections in years past. We don't see them much anymore because antibiotics eliminate most of the bacterial infections that would cause mastoiditis. You can be fairly certain that your daughter's problem was a complication of an infection that she developed as a child totally unrelated to anything that you might have done or anything she may have gotten from you.

Blue-Eyed Mantra for Meditation

Do you know what Mayva said to me the other day? She said, "You are under stress."

"Why would you say a thing like that?" I asked.

"Because you just dusted the coffee table with a deodorant. Besides, you don't seem to have any energy anymore."

"A lot of people rest between chewing while they eat," I said defensively.

"Ice cream? I'd like to see you get into some kind of a meditation technique. I can't tell you what it's done for me."

"I know what it's done for you," I said. "You're so content you're no fun anymore. A REAL friend, Mayva, is fat when you are fat, depressed when you are depressed, and overdrawn when you are overdrawn. I liked you better when you cried when you returned empties to the recycling center."

"You don't mean that," she said gently. "It's not that I have any fewer problems than you do. I'm just able to handle them better. What would you say if I told you all it takes for peace of mind is a few minutes out of each day sitting in a chair relaxing with your eyes closed?"

"You show me a woman sitting in a chair in the middle of the day with her eyes closed and I'll show you three kids having a peanut butter orgy!"

"Just try it," she pleaded. "Here, just sit in this chair and get comfortable."

"I hear flushing!" I said, gripping the arms of the chair.

"Just put everything out of your mind."

"Listen! Are chose marbles in the cold air ducts?"

"It would help if you had a mantra."

"I'm not that cold, but there's probably one in the hall closet."

"No, a mantra is a thought-sound — a word that we use to meditate on and reduce mental activity."

"Do you have one?" I asked. (Mayva nodded.) "Then, maybe I could borrow yours."

"I can't do that," she smiled. "I can't even tell you what my mantra is."

"That's terrific!" I said. "When you were pregnant, I offered to carry the baby for you and you can't even loan me your mantra for a few minutes. It's all right. I'll get my own!"

They tell me they found me in my chair 40 minutes later. The kitchen was a disaster area, the front door was open, there was no hint of dinner, the phone was ringing, and the dog was eating cottage cheese out of an ashtray.

They found me rocking back and forth with a smile on my face reciting over and over "Paul Newman . . . Paul Newman . . . Paul Newman . . ."

Gambling to Save a Boy's Life

Pretend for a moment that you are a social worker and this is the problem you face:

Johnny is 14. His father is a junkie and his mother, when she is home, is usually with a strange man who leaves $10 or $20 on the dresser when he departs.

Johnny is starting to get into serious trouble. He's been fighting, cutting class, involved with a gang in stealing cars and some minor shoplifting. Now he's got a .32 revolver underneath his mattress and he's ready for bigger things, mugging, perhaps armed robbery.

Johnny's also been doing some hustling — selling his body to older men. Johnny doesn't think of himself as a homosexual — it's just a way to pick up a few extra bucks.

Johnny's just been arrested and the court has made him a ward of the state. He sits in a juvenile detention center, learning how to be a better criminal while waiting for placement in a foster home. Only there aren't too many foster parents who want a kid with a criminal record who also has had some serious contacts with homosexuals.

Along comes Mr. X. who admits he's a homosexual but claims he's not sexually interested in kids. So you gamble and allow Johnny to go home with Mr. X. Lo and behold, Johnny starts to look and behave better. He attends school, gets decent grades and is happy, smiling, even joyful.

And then you, the social worker, discover that Mr. X is having sexual relations with Johnny! What do you do?

This is just one dilemma dealt with by Robin Lloyd in his shocking and challenging book about homosexuality and prostitution entitled "For Money or Love" (Vanguard Press). In this case, Lloyd asked the social worker what he did decide — take the boy from Mr. X and return him to his "natural" environment or just let it slide. This, according to Lloyd, is what the social worker replied:

"I let it slide. I'm going to play the percentages. If that's the trade off for this kind of change of life, I'm not going to face that kid and say — 'This is wrong Johnny. You're going to have to go back to what you were and maybe somebody else will come along who doesn't do that.' If I see that Johnny is happy, I'm going to have to go along with modern thinking that even if Mr. X. is having sex with Johnny, if the man is responsible, he might phase out the sex and go into a pure father-son relationship."

Robin Lloyd agrees with that decision. "I think that's a fairly fair trade off," he says.

Make no mistake. Lloyd has contempt, even hatred, for the pornographers and pimps who prey on the helpless and hungry teen and preteen boys. And Lloyd brutally makes you aware that boy prostitution is not geographically limited to big cities like New York and Los Angeles, that it happens in smaller towns across the nation.

'No Need To Panic'

WEST POINT—A gun powder cannister is buried at West Point. There is no need to panic, however as the four-foot cylinder buried in front of the elementary school is not being used for explosive purposes but rather as an authentic time capsule.

The capsule—the only one of its kind at West Point— is a project of the children of the Point's elementary school. The children filled the capsule with textbooks and materials currently being used in their classroom.

Also included were commemorative items such as scrapbooks, paper flags and other items prepared by children from grades one through four.

It is buried in a six-foot hole in front of the school to be recovered in the year 2076.

Mike Janicak and Lisa Middleton, students at West Point's Elementary School , hold cable on time capsule to be lowered into ground until the year 2076.

Marriage Savers

'Gurus' Can Shatter Lives

By Joanne and Lew Koch

(Fifth in a series)

Men and women in the 1970s probably have no more marital difficulties than they had in the 1940s. But they believe they have a right to feel better.

Never before in the history of marriage have so many husbands and wives believed they were entitled not only to be free of boredom and suffering, but free to experience satisfaction, joy and even ecstacy.

To meet this demand, an enormous supply of gurus, therapists, trainers, group leaders and swamis have rushed into the marketplace.

Unfortunately, couples who have come to the bazaar of human potential wares usually come feeling very needy, longing to find a way to resurrect the dead senses that used to tingle at the sight of each other or to shift gears which are too monotonously meshed. They hope for a dramatic change in their behavir and their marriage. They look at the modern therapies and think they see magic.

Take the case of Diane Wayne. Dr. X. sounded to her like other reputable therapists. He claimed to believ in the creative possibilities of each individual. He had a degree from a reputable school and appeared frequently on TV because of his air of authority and intelligence and his handsome appearance. He is also the highest-priced therapist in one of our largest cities.

So how was Diane Wayne to suspect anything? Her boyfriend had been in therapy with Dr. X. for several months. Dr. X. convinced Diane, who is a beautiful woman, that she, too, needed therapy.

Diane's youth was stormy. Her parents had each been married four times, and, at 25, she, herself, was a divorcee with a three-year-old daughter. She had not yet tapped her considerable artistic resources and so she looked for her total satisfaction to her young, rather unstable lover.

After a few months of weekly visits, Diane noticed that Dr. X. was becoming suggestive, then seductive, during therapy. Dr. X. called Diane's apartment one evening.

"There was Turkish harem music going in the background. He suggested that I come over. I was really shocked, shocked and confused, and I turned him down."

Diane ended therapy two days later telling Dr. X. she wasn't going to pay $35 an hour to have him make passes — especially since the therapy had been oriented toward the goal of improving her relationship with another man.

A few months after terminating treatment, Diane broke up with her boyfriend. She felt confused and upset with no place to turn. In desperation she turned to Dr. X.

"Dr. X. said that I should definitely still be in therapy. He said maybe we could do both — se each other as friends and also do the therapy. He knew that I had this rift with my boyfriend. He knew that I was vulnerable. He, himself, was in between marriages. Anyway he urged me to come over for dinner.

"As soon as I walked in the door, he grbbed me, started kissing me, and led me into his bedroom. The whole experience was very bizarre, very devastating. He tried to get me to stay the weekend, claiming that he couldn't stand to be alone. I said I had to get out and he became rude and surly. He called the next day, urging me to be his patient. He knew that I was coming undone with all the confusion in my life. He even said, 'Gee, I feel like I've dropped you on your head.' "

In fact, that's what Dr. X. had done. He had exploited a woman, knowing she was psychologically vulnerable, and set her moving in a downward spiral of confusion and helplessness which would end a year later in a mental breakdown.

After a number of harrowing experiences — including one LSD trip which left her with a recurring hallucination of the world coming to an end, and a cancer scare, which finished off her shattered nerves — Diane made the slow climb back to stability.

She has remarried now, but still retains bitter feelings toward Dr. X. She is contemplating legal action but hasn't decided whether her case is strong enough.

Last year, a woman named Julie Roy won a $350,000 damage suit against psychiatrist and magazine columnist Renatus Hartogs. Dr. Hartogs was charged by the 36-year-old Ms. Roy with inducing her to have sex with him while undergoing therapy.

We were curious to see how Dr. X. would react to the decision in the Hartogs case. After discussing the general topic of marriage counseling with him, we asked his opinion.

"Now, in the heyday of malpractice," said Dr. X. "any patient can turn on any doctor for anything. That girl (Ms. Roy) probably was a psychopath. I wouldn't presume Dr. Hartogs was destructive; just too friendly to that girl. It isn't only therapists who sleep with their patients. There are doctors, lawyers, ministers who do the same . . . There are schools of therapy that say their patients need this sexual enlightenment, though they usually don't feel such enlightenment is called for when the patient is an old, beat-up broad."

Dr. Willard Gaylin of Columbia University Medical School — one of those who condemned Dr. Hartogs' behavior in court during the case — estimates that five to 10 per cent of psychiatrists have sex with their patients. He noted that sexual intimacy is specifically forbidden by the rule of the American Psychiatric Association.

Dr. Gaylin stresses that the psychiatric code of ethics, as well as the Hippocratic Oath, whereby the doctor swears to do no harm to the patient, are broken when a psychiatrist takes advantage of a patient.

Diane, Julie Roy, and too many other men and women are what is known in the therapy world "casualties." Casualties are most likely to occur when a therapist with a charismatic personality or a passionate evangelical belief in one mode of therapy evokes an emotional high — a catharsis, a letting go, or a letting down of defenses — on the part of the client.

It's a classic Elmer Gantry or Marjoe revival rip-off. But men and women who consider themselves much too sophisticated to be taken in by old-time religious hucksters are uniquely vulnerable to the intellectual patter, the allure of degrees and the comfort of knowing one's faith is in the exclusive and chic province of "psychology."

LIFE

Design Influentials

Aimbez — 'I Don't Compromise'

GIL AIMBEZ

NEW YORK — (NEA) — "I started out with extreme styling that only 10 per cent of the population would buy but that's not what I want. If you're on Seventh Avenue you want to succeed as a manufacturer. Still, I don't compromise. You don't see a basic tailored shirt in my line or an A-line skirt because a woman has a thousand of these in her closet. She doesn't need me to design them for her."

What Gil Aimbez does dream up for the Genre label — at a maximum cost of $100 — are simple, innovative clothes, many cut square and loose. For summer, there are U-neck sundresses with toggles at the shoulder in crinkle cloth, wrap skirts, aprons, square sleeve big tops, trousers, shorts, jumpsuits and caftans in "no-colors" such as plum, apricot and yellow to meld with lots of other colors as well as the plaid he designed exclusively for them.

And there's his sense of humor. That harem jumpsuit in paper-thin cotton spreads out to the dimensions of a sheet. "You can wear it to the beach and use it as a blanket," he says.

He's a comer, this short, friendly 35-year-old. "People say to me, you're that old!" And in the year and a half that he has been designing for Genre, his work has been featured in the magazines that matter and Women's Wear Daily. Three times in one week in the latter, although, he admits laughing, the last mention was to correct a caption attributing his clothes to someone else.

It hasn't happened quickly for the black-bearded man with glasses, high forehead and bulbous nose.

"I worked for 13 years in this business before I finally got to do what I wanted," he says. "I never felt the jobs I was offered gave me the chance to express myself fully."

When he came to New York from California, he put in his time as a pattern maker and assistant to Anne Klein and, later, to Carol Horn.

"Anne Klein taught me that as long as you design for the fabric you're working with you can design anything and it will be in good taste as well as seasonless."

And Aimbez believes in seasonless dressing. What you buy now can be worn months from now. The secret lies in layering.

"Layering is fun," he says. "Each piece goes on easily and was designed to work with others or alone. That's why layering isn't bulky. Proportion makes the art of layering. The armhole of a vest, for instance, must be cut longer than that of the shirt."

In the workrooms behind the showroom at Genre, where employes look up and smile, there are stacks of cardboard boxes labeled "Gil's ideas."

"I try to learn from my mistakes," he says, smiling. "I save charts of the past season to see what worked and what didn't. In my apron dress, for instance, I changed to shoulder buttons because I found women didn't like to pull it over their heads."

Dress Betty and People Notice

NEW YORK — (NEA) — They're all here for designer Albert Capraro's summer showing.

The hard-faced ladies in massive minks, 18 carat bangles and leather boots so supple they must have been gummed by ancient Eskimo women.

And the winsome young men with thick hair and secrets in their eyes as they smile and wave at each other.

Endlessly, New York's fashion set spills into the Fashion Institute of Technology's auditorium.

It's an airy, modified amphitheater—tier upon tier of gray carpeted stairs facing a large stage. Hard on the back, but impressive.

While taped disco music pounds the hearing into gruel, one of Capraro's partners seats the more important spectators. Tall and maitre d'ish in a black suit, he says in passing, "No, the White House couldn't come, but they sent flowers."

And there you have the reason for the hoopla.

A year ago, Betty Ford saw a feature on Albert Capraro in a local Washington paper and called him to design for her. Up he flew to a royal box on Olympus.

His summer showing, fittingly, verges on a Gower Champion production. Lights down, lights up, music blaring, models cavorting. Group after group in his line is greeted with rolls of applause: yellow and white striped beachwear; sophisticated white, pencil-skirted suits; flowing black eveningwear.

Capraro, clearly, is a designer to talk to. But. There's no rapid transit system to Olympus.

Three times the interview is canceled and rescheduled. Albert, poor dear, has the flu. Albert is rushing off for an out-of-town showing and must rest. Albert is going on vacation, but, perhaps, this week.

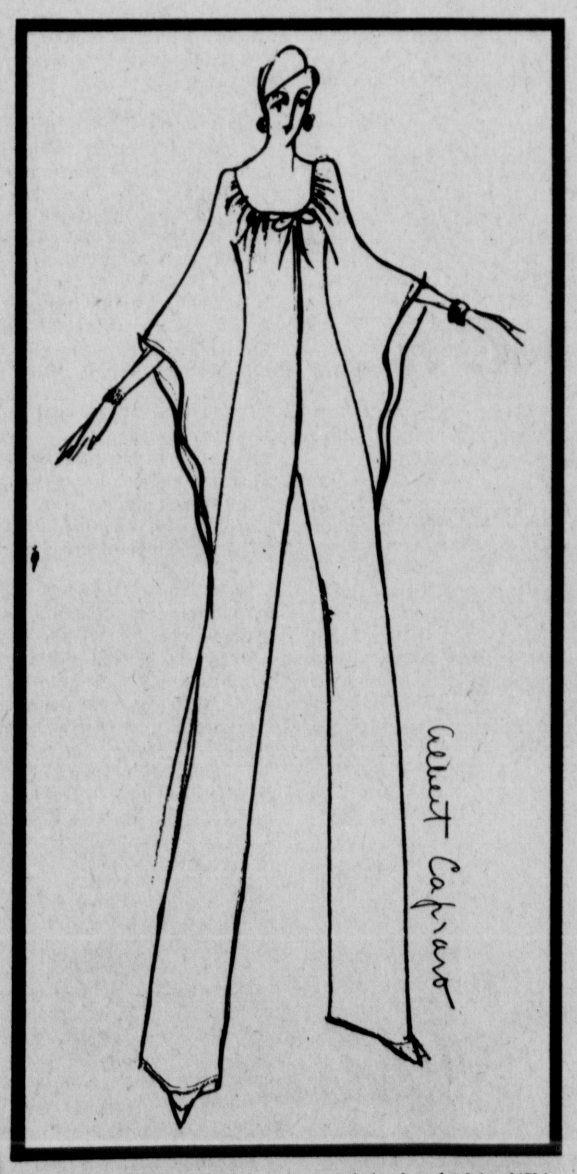
Finally, late one afternoon, his gray, plump secretary makes welcome sounds in his busy showroom on Seventh Avenue. Nevertheless . . .

"We'll have to cut it to half an hour, dear, because Albert has the flu, you know. And he has another interview with a Japanese reporter and Polly Bergen is in with him now. But you can get what you need. Albert is very fast."

Capraro bounces into the showroom, a short, round man with black curly hair, mustache and goatee. His flu, evidently, is an exotic and uncharted strain. He's a bit breathless, but his brown eyes are unglazed, his step unwavering.

He does speak rapidly, but amiably. "I'm thirty-two," he says with a woeful smile, "and I've had my own business for two years. Before that I worked for Oscar de la Renta for eight years, and Lily Dache before that.

"When Mrs. Ford's assistant called, I could hardly speak on the phone. Mrs. Ford loved my philosophy of very romantic and feminine clothes at a price. My clothes are under $200. I didn't understand at first that they wanted me to come to the White House. I thought they'd send me fabric which the President had brought back from his trips."



COTTON JERSEY, batwing jumpsuit is sketched for NEA by Albert Capraro as a summer wearing treat, in black or red.

Luba the Last of the Rudenkos

BLOUSON jumpsuit sketched for NEA by Luba is in black with a black and white floral calico interfacing. It is part of her "pioneer" calico cottons group.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Luba is the last Rudenko. Except for her parents, the others were killed during the Russian revolution.

When Luba is gone, then, what will she leave behind? She puzzles over it, fiddling with her cigarettes.

Her voice is lightly accented. Husky. "Do you mean the house, money?", she asks. No, not that.

"Well," she says, "if you begin to question something like that, you are not living in the present the way you should. See?" She holds up her cigarettes — a box of Now — and grins, brown eyes mischievously bright.

It's natural enough for a former soloist with the Ballet Russe. But that was then. Now, Luba Marks, nee Rudenko, is known for Luba Designs, the flourishing contemporary sportswear firm she and her husband, Richard Marks, exhausted themselves and their marriage to build.

When they started in the '50s, two people doing the work of 10, "We worked seven days a week with no vacation and it became a $5 million company that offered American women $500 clothes for $90. It was a new concept and America loved it.

"But there was a toll," she continues. "You become physically exhausted so that no vitamin will help and your personal life falls apart." The couple still work together but live apart.

"For two months in 1973, I had to rest," she says. "I re-evaluated, juggled, joggled, went in the ocean in January for a cool swim and in March, I was back in business." By then, Peabody House owned Luba Designs and the pressure had eased. "We're going to make $7-8 million this year," she says, "and we anticipate 12 later on. That's why I don't think about tomorrow. It's only the beginning."

That's Luba now. Then, as a Russian child growing up in Paris, there was another life.

"During the Russian revolution, my parents escaped to Paris. My father had many professions. In Paris he was a tenor with a company of Cossacks. Then he had a restaurant with gypsy music and then he lost everything because a president of France was killed by a Russian and the French, being very chauvinistic, insisted every Russian restaurant had to close."

From then on, it fell mostly to the child to support the family. And she did it by dancing. "I was such a good ballerina my teacher taught me free. And she'd feed me because I was such a skinny child."

There were times, she says, "when I had to win first prize in a contest so we could eat."

The memories are not apparently painful. They are otherwordly images, scudding by, to be wondered at.

Americans have a lot to thank God for. During this country's 200th birthday, we're often reminded of that. In other parts of the world, many people have not had our prosperity. Right now, in Asia, millions of them are starving to death. Floods and earthquakes have left others homeless and penniless – and family-less. The God we worship expects us to help them. Join with others at your local church or synagogue and help make this world – and this country – a better place.

The Community Unites to Help Coach House Players Recover

KINGSTON — Chalk up the spring of '76 as one of the busiest in history for Kingston's Coach House Players.

First and foremost, the local theater group is preparing for its upcoming production of "The Gazebo," which will play at the J. Watson Bailey School May 6,7 and 8 at 8:30 p.m. This comedy-mystery promises to delight local theater audiences.

Hard on the heels of "Gazebo," Coach House will present a benefit performance Saturday, May 15 at Kingston High School at 8 p.m. This musical benefit will include many local groups such as the Sweet Adelines, Kingston Maennerchor, and the Kingston Kiwanis Club. Also included will be a selection of musical hits from past Coach House productions, sung by the original Coach House cast members.

The purpose of the benefit will be to raise money to help defray the cost of repairing the Coach House building which was damaged by fire last December. And that brings attention to another spring activity that is keeping most Coach House members busy—cleaning and repairing the interior portions of the building that suffered smoke damage.

While Coach House members have done much of the work themselves, there is some work such as roof repairs, plumbing, electrical wiring, brick work and installation of a heating system, which must be paid for. It is hoped that the benefit will have the twofold purpose of providing an evening's entertainment and financially helping Coach House.

More information on both "Gazebo" and the benefit will appear in future Freeman articles.

'Sugar Britches' Writes CB Guide

NEW YORK — Lanie Dills is living the Cinderella story. Only there's no Prince Charming leading her on the path to fame and fortune. She did it entirely on her own, with a splendid idea and considerable ability, wit and personality.

On March 10, Lanie Dills published "The 'Official' CB Slanguage Language Dictionary (distributed by Louis J. Martin and Associates, Inc., New York City), a complete guide to the jargon of Citizens Band Radio. Lanie was a new author and an independent publisher, attempting a publishing rarely risked and seldom successful. Nineteen days later, her book was on the Bestseller Lists and more that 200,000 copies has been sold, a feat any publisher would announce with great boasting. For a new author and publisher, it was a stunning victory.

By March 10, the publication date of "The 'Official' CB Slanguage Language Dictionary, the first printing was sold out. On March 29, nineteen days later, the book was in its third printing (revised edition) with 300,000 books in print and it began to appear on the Bestsellers Lists around the country. Today it is number three on The New York Times Book Review Trade Paperback Bestseller List, number four on the Trade Paperback Bestseller List of Publishers Weekly, number two on the Waldenbooks List, number four on the B. Dalton Booksellers List, and in the Top Five on the Bestseller Lists across the nation.

Reorders are pouring into the warehouse of Louis J. Martin & Associates distributors, as stores that had first ordered 25 copies are now asking for 100 and 200. In fact, on March 29,more than 25,000 copies were sold on that one day alone. As fast as the orders came in, books were shipped out. And, suddenly, Lanie Dills was a celebrity. Newspapers, magazines and radio and television shows througho throughout the country sought her as the assured, unquestioned expert on Citizens Band Radio and its "slanguage" language. Every field has its authority: Mead on culture; Spock on children; Beard on Bread. Citizens Band Radio, newly discovered on the American scene and exploding into the sales phencmenon of the decade at last has its expert: Lanie Dills, better known by. her CB handle, "The Sugar Britches."

Goalies Will Play Key Roles

MONTREAL (UPI) — The two best goaltenders in the National Hockey League square off tonight when the Montreal Canadiens and New York Islanders open their Stanley Cup semifinal series.

Montreal advanced to the semifinals by whipping the Chicago Black Hawks in four straight games in the best-ofseven quarterfinals. The Islanders eliminated the Buffalo Sabres in six games.

Canadiens coach Scotty Bowman said he expects a very tough series against the upstart Islanders. In regular season play, Montreal had a win and a tie here and a win and a loss at New York.

"They have the best power play in the league and they play well when they're a man short. They've shown that they can overcome a deficit. You have to take them seriously," he said.

"The Islanders are certainly a disciplined hockey team. They're good on defense with the Potvin brothers, Bert Marshall and Dave Lewis."

Bowman said both goaltenders will play a major role in the series. Canadiens netminder Ken Dryden won the Vezina Trophy with a 2.03 goals against average in regular season play, but New York goalie Glenn Resch boasted a second best 2.07.

Dryden said he expects the Islanders' series to be hard going too. "They've always been hard for us to play against and we haven't actually seen them since last November. They're a well-balanced, disciplined, controlled team. They're not flashy, but they can be extremely rough at times. I expect the Islanders are going to be tough," he said.

Peter Mahovlich feels the key to a Montreal victory is to bottle up Denis Potvin."We've really got to key on this guy. We've got to concentrate on him," Mahovlich said. "No matter what way you look at it, Potvin is the one we've got to stop. He's the guy, although they've got a fine allaround team. I mean, we beat them twice in four games, but if you add everything up, I'll bet there's not much separating the teams."

Mahovlich emphasizes the Canadiens are also going to have to pay strict attention to Bryan Trottier, Clark Gillies and Billy Harris.

"Mostly though, it's going to be very important for us to stop their power play and for us to have our power play going," he added.

The Islanders had 91 power play goals this season. The Canadiens, who had the best NHL regular season record, had 75 power play goals.

"Power play goals are going to play a big, big role in this series," Mahovlich said. "But the biggest thing we've got going for us against the Islanders is the way Kenny played against Chicago when he had to, and the way the defense played as a group."

Mike Schmidt . . . 11 Home Runs and Counting

By UPI

Mike Schmidt's teammates believe there is no limit to the Philadelphia Phillies slugger's home run potential provided he can handle the pressure of superstardom.

The 26-year old Schmidt, who led the majors with 38 homers last season, equalled the big league record of 11 homers in the month of April Monday night when he hit two in the Phils' 10-9 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. Schmidt has now hit 10 homers in his last eight games and shares the April mark with Willie Stargell and Graig Nettles.

General Manager Paul Owens and Schmidt's teammates talked about him Monday night with the awe the New York Yankees used to reserve for Mickey Mantle.

"I don't want to put pressure on him but, sure, he is capable of hitting 50, 60 or 70 home runs," said Owens. "He is so big, so strong and such a natural athlete. And he is getting better all the time."

"I played with Johnny Bench and Tony Perez but I've never seen anything like Schmidt," said Bobby Tolan. "He can hit it out to the opposite field even when he has been fooled on the pitch. He can be the best if he ever stops worrying about striking out. He has to learn that it's no disgrace to strike out when you hit them that far."

"I'm not ready to become a scout yet but anyone can see he's a natural talent," said Tug McGraw. "There is no limit to what he can do."

"Schmidt has a natural talent and there is no limit to his physical ability," said Dave Cash. "The only limit is in his head. He has to think he can do it. If he does, I feel he can anything."

The two homers by Schmidt paced the Phillies to a 6-1 lead after four innings but the Reds battled back to take a 9-7 lead. Pete Rose singled home two runs to highlight a five-run sixth inning and doubled home two more runs when the Reds scored three in the seventh to take the lead.

Tolan's two-run homer in the seventh tied the score for the Phillies, who scored the winning run in the eighth when Cash singled and took second on an error, went to third on a sacrifice and scored on Bench's passed ball.

The New York Mets defeated Atlanta 3-1, St. Louis beat San Francisco 15-7, Los Angeles topped Pittsburgh 7-1 and San Diego downed the Chicago Cubs 6-2 in other National League games. Houston at Montreal was rained out. Milwaukee edged California 1-0 in the only American League game.

Cardinals 15, Giants 7

Ron Fairly had four hits and drove in three runs and Lou Brock, Don Kessinger and Bake McBride each drove in two runs in St. Louis' 16-hit attack. Ken Reitz hit a three-run homer for San Francisco. The Giants scored seven runs in the first inning for a 7-1 lead but the Cardinals tied the score in the fifth and went ahead for good in the sixth.

Dodgers 7, Pirates 1

Tommy John, who has been suffering with an arm ailment since July, 1974, went seven innings, yielding eight hits and one run, to win his first game for Los Angeles in nearly two years. Ron Cey hit a two-run homer, Bill Buckner had three hits and Steve Garvey and Bill Russell two each in the Dodgers' 12-hit attack. Doc Medich was the loser for Pittsburgh.

Padres, 6 Cubs 2

Jerry Turner's two-run triple capped a three-run fifth-inning rally which sent San Diego on its way to victory. Bill Greif went five innings for the win with Alan Foster and Butch Metzger shutting out the Cubs for the last four. Rick Reuschel was tagged for five runs in six innings and suffered the loss.

Brewers 1, Angels 0

Don Money homered in the first and Jim Colborn and Eduardo Rodriguez combined in a three-hitter for the Brewers, who dealt Frank Tanana his second defeat. Tanana, the major leagues' strikeout leader in 1975, fanned 12 and walked three while allowing only two hits. He leads the AL with 29 strikeouts this season.

Lolich Knew It Would Come

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mickey Lolich was class all the way Monday when he won his first National League game—striking out the side in the ninth inning, explaining how he's learning about his teammates' defensive capabilities and giving plenty of credit to a 26-year old catcher.

"Sooner or later I knew it would come," said Lolich after pitching the New York Mets to a 3-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves. "I thought I had pitched a couple of good games. The Astroturf has been a factor. Basically I try to keep the ball low. In the two ball parks I pitched in, the turf turned a couple of singles in doubles and a couple of outs into singles."

Lolich, the Detroit Tigers' 1968 World Series hero when he won three games against the St. Louis Cardinals, had lost his first three decisions with the Mets. The Mets acquired him last winter in a controversial trade that sent slugger Rusty Staub to the Tigers.

"I had good control and a very good sinking fastball on the outside corner and Hodges made me stick with it," Lolich added, referring to the Mets' catcher, Ron, who wasn't even in organized ball in 1968. "He called a great game.

"The biggest thing in coming over to the new league was learning my own defense," Lolich continued. "I didn't know how much range (shortstop Bud) Harrelson or (third baseman Wayne) Garrett had. I didn't know if it would be caught when a ball was hit. But now I know their range and I have more confidence."

Manager Joe Frazier, who must have had his doubts about the Lolich-Staub trade before Monday's game, was exultant.

"This is the Mickey Lolich we traded for," said Frazier. "This kind of pitching will be good for 12 or 15 wins."

Lolich allowed five hits, struck out nine and walked six in 40-degree weather as the Mets handed Dick Ruthven his first loss after three victories. The nine strikeouts raised Lolich's career total to 2,701 — tops among active pitchers.

The Mets scored two runs in the second inning on a single by Ed Kranepool, a double by Garrett and Hodges' two-run single. They added another run in the third when Kranepool hit into a double play to score Felix Millan, who had walked and moved to third on Del Unser's single.

Suddenly, Warriors Are In Tie

By UPI

The Golden State Warriors perhaps took themselves a bit too seriously and the Detroit Pistons a bit too lightly as they prepared for the quarterfinals of the NBA playoffs. But the defending NBA champions are suddenly finding themselves locked in a series with a team playing with more determination than talent.

The Warriors finished the season with a 59-23 record, best in the league, and expected an easy time of it when they learned that the Pistons would be their opponents in the quarterfinals. After all, Detroit had the worst regular season record of any team in the playoffs, 36-46, finishing with a sub .500 record in the weak Midwest Division.

The Pistons won a best-of-three series against Milwaukee to earn the right to face the Warriors, who they had not beaten all season.

In a series that was expected to go no more than four or five games, the Pistons managed to tie the Warriors at two games apiece with a 106-102 victory Monday night as Howard Porter hit two free throws with seven seconds left to ice the victory.

"It narrows down to two out of three," Coach Al Attles of the Warriors said. "We lost there the last time, so we'll just have to wait and see (if the home court is an advantage)."

The home court was definitely an advantage to the Pistons Monday night as they played before a sellout crowd.

"The home court advantage was worth 10 points to us Monday night," said Detroit Coach Herb Brown. "The reason is that the fans were with us all the way. They didn't die on us once.

Bob Lanier rebounded from a poor third game with a 30-point performance that included 11 points and a vital deflection in the fourth quarter.

Forwards George Trapp (17), Curtis Rowe (15) and Porter (16) joined Lanier as the Pistons completely outplayed the Warriors on the inside.

Forward Elvin Hayes scored 28 points, including a key threepoint play in overtime, to lead the Washington Bullets to a 10298 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers, tying their NBA quarterfinal series at three games each. The seventh and deciding game will be played Thursday night at Richfield, Ohio.

Hayes, the Bullets' most prolific scorer during the playoff series, also had 13 rebounds and tied a club record with eight blocked shots as the Bullets saw a fourth quarter lead disappear before rallying to win in overtime.

Phil Chenier added 24 points for Washington, while Nick Weatherspoon had 19. Wes Unseld scored only six points but had 17 rebounds and eight assists.

Austin Carr led the Cavaliers with 27 points while Jim Chones and Campy Russell had 16 each.

Seattle travels to Phoenix to face the Suns tonight as the Sonics attempt to battle back from a 3-2 disadvantage in the best-of-seven series. There are no ABA playoff games scheduled.

History Repeats?

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — History has a way of repeating itself and it may do just that tonight when the Philadelphia Flyers meet the Boston Bruins in the opener of their Stanley Cup semifinal series.

The Flyers, now seeking to become the first team since the 1963-64 Toronto Maple Leafs to win three straight Stanley Cups, won their first championship in 1974 by beating the Bruins 1-0 in a memorable sixth game of the finals at the Philadelphia Spectrum.

Bernie Parent was in goal for the Flyers and Gilles Gilbert in the nets for the Bruins and the setting may be the same tonight.

Gilbert, who gave up the lone goal in the deciding 1974 game on a Rick MacLeish tip-in of a slapshot by Andre Dupont, has been splitting playing time this year behind Gerry Cheevers.

But he played in place of an injured Cheevers and shut out the Los Angeles Kings 3-0 Sunday night to win the seventh game of a quarterfinal series.

Bruins coach Don Cherry has not officially named his starter in goal for tonight but it probably will be Gilbert.

"I'm sort of leaning that way but I don't know," Cherry said.

Parent played little during the regular season because of neck and shoulder ailments but was in goal for all seven of the games against the Leafs, although he did not appear to be at his best form.

Parent said it was "a matter of confidence. I feel great and I'm beginning to challenge the shooters again."

MacLeish, the Flyers' best scorer in the playoffs last year, has not seen any postseason action because of a knee injury, and probably won't.

But Dupont is ready and scored a goal in Sunday's 7-3 victory by the Flyers over the Leafs in another quarterfinal seventh game.

The Bruins' Jean Ratelle, who scored two goals and had one assist in Sunday night's game, said he felt this series will be the same as the one against the Kings.

"There will be a lot of forechecking," he said. "Let's face it. They're a tough team and we will have to play well."

Bobby Clarke, the Flyers' captain and catalyst, also sees a tough series.

"There are only four teams left so anybody you play is going to be tough," he said. "We played 100 games to get here and we know we don't want to go home yet."

Leafs coach Red Kelly unleashed a "pyramid power" symbol against the Flyers and his team responded by winning all three of the games played in Toronto.

American League Expansion Path Is Clear

CHICAGO (UPI) — The path was cleared today for the American League to add franchises in Toronto and Seattle, expanding to 14 teams, in 1977 by a National League decision not to expand and to remain a 12-team circuit next season.

The National League decided by a 7-5 vote not to expand in 1977 and also voted to send a resolution asking baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to intervene in the American League decision, made previously, to add Toronto and Seattle.

"There's nothing to stop the American League from expanding to Toronto," National League President Chub Feeney said.

"Our vote closes the subject of expansion in 1977 as far as the National League is concerned."

The National League met to conform to a request from Kuhn that they "implement" an expansion plan before next week, or leave the way open for the American League to take in Toronto.

Kuhn's interest in the National League expansion was the hope that it would add Washington as the 14th team in the NL to make good on what the commissioner called "a long standing promise" to return baseball to the national capital.

The National League had asked the commissioner to intervene after a previous vote to expand to Toronto and Washington failed to carry, although 10 of the 12 owners approved. National League rules require a unanimous vote for expansion.

"The commissioner said he would give us a certain amount of time to implement our expansion plan and if we did not, then he would have to let the American League go ahead," Feeney said. "We did not implement it. As far as I know this puts an American League team in Toronto and expansion for the moment is not an issue in the National League."

The vote to ask intervention by the commissioner was 8-4 and was taken after the expansion proposal failed by the 10-2 margin.

Feeney said he could not explain why only seven owners favored expansion Monday except that "people thought it over and decided in the best interest of the league to remain the way we were."

Philadelphia and Cincinnati were the two teams that objected previously to the proposal to expand to Toronto and Washington and it was believed that St. Louis, San Francisco and Atlanta joined them Monday to account for the 7-5 vote.

It was a peace-making decision by the National League since the American League earlier had said it would defy Kuhn and continue its plans to add Toronto in 1977 regardless of any National League action or action by Kuhn.

Glorifying Round Ball

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — The occasion was the Basketball Hall of Fame enshrinement. The purpose, though, was to salute all those who have helped glorify the game invented in this western Massachusetts city 85 years ago.

Talk of the day at Monday's festivities concerned the four inductees: Bill Sharman "the pure shooter"; Tom Gola, the great collegiate player with a knack for making the big play in the pros; Harry Litwack, a great coach of less than great players; and Edward "Moose" Krause, the prototype pivot man.

Several hundred Hall of Fame visitors ambled through the three floors of basketball memorabila stopping to chat with former stars like Dolph Schayes. The Syracuse Nationals' forward talked for a while while standing next to a headless mannequin wearing his No. 4 jersey.

Schayes cast an imaginary spell, in the method of Dancing Hary as he walked past Sharman.

"I'll tell you why I did that," said the Syracuse Hall of Famer. "When Sharman was with the Celtics, he was a great foul shooter (.883 career average) and I was always second to him.

"One year Sharman had hit (a record) 56 free throws in a row and I had made 50 straight. We were playing the Celtics and I went to the foul line.

"I can swear Sharman had instructed (Celtics teammate Frank) Ramsey to give me the whammy just as I shot. I saw his hands move and I missed the free throw," Schayes laughed.

Eddie Gottlieb, founder of the Philadelphia Warriors and an NBA forefather, called Sharman "one of the greatest pure shooters I've ever seen. He was uncanny" with a two-handed set shot "from 20 feet in."

Gottlieb also remembers Gola, who played 10 years for the Warriors. "Gola came out of college with one of the greatest records in college basketball," Gottlieb said of LaSalle's all-time scoring leader.

"We had a .500 year in Philadelphia in 1954-55 but everyone still picked us to win the championship the next year because we got Gola as a rookie."

The predictors were correct as Gola led the Warrriors to the NBA title in his first season. He played 10 more years, becoming one of the first men to play both forward and guard positions in a game.

Of the inductees, Litwack maintained the lowest profile throughout the ceremonies. The little man, who won 373 games as Temple coach, stayed with his wife, children and grandchildren.

When asked to speak, he talked of "the privilege of being inducted into the Hall of Fame and becoming associated with the history made by these great players."

Good Workout For 'Pleasure

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A cold snap hit the Blue Grass state Monday morning and, after the initial early morning shock gave way to the warmth of the sun, trainer LeRoy Jolley watched with satisfaction as Honest Pleasure took a brisk gallop around the Churchill Downs track.

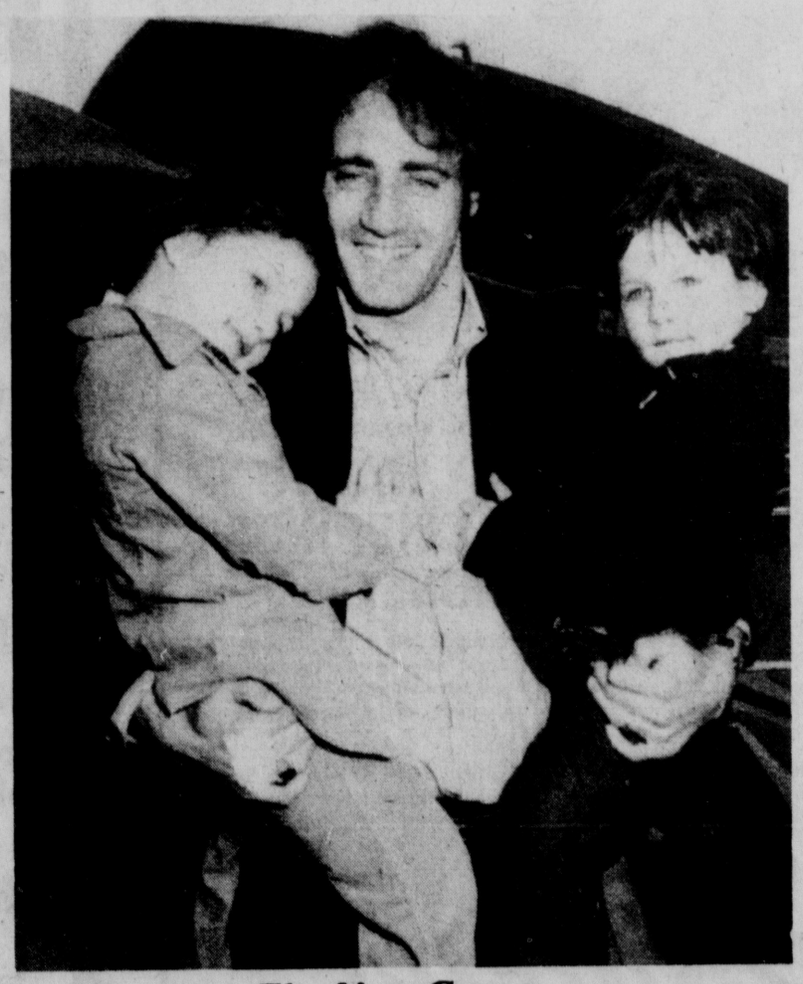
Honest Pleasure, who probably will go to the post Saturday as an odds-on favorite in the $125,000-added Kentucky Derby, seemed to respond to the 40-degree weather and was full of energy, working easily under John Nazareth.

Jolley won last year's Kentucky Derby with Foolish Pleasure and can become only the fourth trainer to win in successive years, joining H.J. "Derby Dick" Thompson, Ben Jones and Jones' son, Jimmy.

Bert Firestone's Honest Pleasure, who has won nine straight races to increase his career earnings past the $600,000 mark, generally is conceded to be the best among the field of nine colts.

Ridden by Braulio Baeza, Honest Pleasure has raced four times as a 3-year-old and included among his victories are the Flamingo, the Florida Derby and Blue Grass Stakes, scaring off most of the 252 horses nominated for the 102nd running of the Kentucky Derby.

Judging from past performances, the only colt in Honest Pleasure's class is E. Rodriguez Tizol's Bold Forbes, winner of the Wood Memorial. Included among Bold Forbes' opposition in that 4½-length victory were four Kentucky Derby starters Balmak Stable's On The Sly, Entremont's Cojak and Elmendorf's Play The Red.



The New Cosmo

Young Aims To 'Crack' Ali

NEW CARROLLTON, Md. (UPI) — Jimmy Young, dubbed "The Squirrel" by world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, will "crack" the champ in their title fight Friday night, according to one of Young's managers.

"If he (Ali) is depending on this tiger to run out of gas, he's sadly mistaken," said Ray Kelly. "Last year, I wouldn't have taken this fight, but right now, Ali is right to be taken.

"I predict victory in 15 rounds or less. We might stop him on cuts or a knockout before the end of the fight. This isn't a dream. Young isn't any Jean Pierre-Coopman (a recent Ali knockout victim)."

Ali, at age 34, is "working desperately" to get in shape for his 27-year-old challenger, according to Kelly.

"He took us lightly when he got here but after he watched our workout Easter Sunday, he went out and boxed 10 rounds without stopping. We didn't come to talk, we came to fight."

Both fighters did plenty of talking Monday during and after their workouts. At one point Young, in jest, grabbed a chair and threatened the champion, causing one observer to crack: "That's the only way he could beat him."

Ali once playfully told Young to leave his workout "or my boys will beat your butt," but later recanted, saying: "It's important that you check me out. If you win, you can move out of the ghetto."

The champion also silenced hecklers with lines like: "I get paid for being crazy, what's your excuse?" When one pressed for a prediction on the fight, he replied: "I'm predicting you can't afford a ringside seat."

Sawyer Girls In Rout

SAUGERTIES — Saugerties High School's girls softball team rapped out 17 hits and made the most of eight John Jay errors to record a one-sided 19-1 Dutchess County Scholastic League victory.

In another game, Arlington slipped by Kingston, 6-5.

Peg Hain was the big star in Saugerties' win. She pounded out four hits in five trips, including a three-run homer, driving in four runs total and scoring four. She also was the winning pitcher, limiting Jay to five hits.

Mickey Stilphen had two doubles and a single good for two runs for the Sawyers and Tracey Craft drove in four runs with a single and a double.

The win was Saugerties' fourth in five outings.

Kingston fell behind Arlington 6-1 after three innings and spent the rest of the day trying to catch up. The bid fell short.

Lori Eaton powered the KHS attack with two singles and a double, driving in three runs. Diana Eaton had two hits including a solo home run. Diana Baker also had two hits.

Kelly Pirro took the defeat for Kingston.

Protesters Sentenced

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Missouri man who along with his 11-year-old son attempted to set fire to an American flag in the outfield at Dodger Stadium was sentenced Monday to pay a $60 fine or spend three days in jail in addition to a year's probation.

William Errol Thomas, 37, Eldon, Mo., was sentenced by Municipal Court Judge Jack Tso following his arrest on a charge of trespassing.

The father and son, apparently in a protest against treatment of American Indians, jumped from the left field pavilion and onto the field during Sunday's Dodgers-Cubs game.

They unfurled the flag on the field and tried to set it afire with lighter fluid and matches but Cubs' outfielder Rick Monday rushed over and grabbed the flag away before it could be burned.

In Chicago, Mayor Richard J. Daley announced that Monday will serve as grand marshall of the Chicago Salute to the American Flag Parade June 12.

Trials Postponed

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Additional time trials and qualifying in the National Hot Rod Association's Winston World Championship Series at Indianapolis Raceway Park will begin Saturday, because of rainouts the past weekend.

Bob Glidden, Greenwood, Ind., was among a few pros able to make qualifying runs before the rains Saturday. Sunday's rains prevented more efforts.

Glidden, the current NHRA world champion, set a low elapsed time of 8.86 seconds for the quarter-mile at 155 miles per hour for the Pro Stock class, putting him in the No. 1 position for the rescheduled event. His position could change in next weekend's qualifying, however.

Winner Must Share Spotlight

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — The Kentucky Derby Festival's mini-marathon was run under nearly ideal condition for a North Carolina distance runner Monday, but he had to share the spotlight with a pair of Muncie, Ind., girls and the mayor of Louisville.

Heinz Wiegand, 28, of Mountain Home, N.C., won the Derby Festival mini-marathon for his second straight title, covering the 13-mile distance in 1 hour 6 minutes 21 seconds.

Wiegand said the cooler, less humid weather this year enabled him to clip one minute and a half off his winning time one year ago.

However, attenteion was focused on 14-year-old Laura Cartwright of Muncie, Ind., who came in 78th for the best finish among the women who competed in the event staged under clear skies with temperatures in the 50s. Her nine-year-old sister Amy was also among those who finished.

Another 14-year-old, Mike McKay of Louisville, also completed the marathon and finished 57th in the race.

Louisville Mayor Harvey Sloane, 39, finished 184th in the field of about 600 runners who started at Iroquis Hill and finished at the downtown Louisville Riverfront Plaza. Sloane put on a finishing kick in the final 50 yards to outsprint another runner to the finish line.

Sloane said although he finished worse this year than he did in 1975, he had a much better time. He was clocked in 1 hour 34 minutes, about six minutes slower than the pace he managed last year.

Vega Returns To Meet Whyms

KINGSTON — The last time Luis Vega fought at the Municipal Auditorium he ran up against the talented Dom Monaco. And although a loser in the bout, Vega let Monaco know he'd been in a fight.

Vega returns to Kingston Thursday and this time the Scranton, Pa., scrapper will meet Ron (Black Bomber) Whyms in the evening's eight-round co-feature. Whyms was here last month and turned on the Auditorium crowd when he came from behind to pick up a thrilling draw.

The other headliner on promoter Joe Garfield's 8:15 p.m. program matches Eddie (KO Flame)Gregory, one of the world's top middleweights, against D.C. Walker of Hartford, Conn.

Gregory had been scheduled to meet Johnny Harris, also of Hartford, but an injury has put Harris on the shelf. An ailment also has shelved Vince Pavone of Staten Island, who was to meet White Plains' Richie Lugo in a six-rounder. Garfield has brought in Carlos Gonzalez of Staten Island as a replacement.

In other action on Thursday's program, Ismael Moldonado of Brooklyn squares off against Carlos Ortiz of Scranton, Ernie Johnson of Long Island takes on Jeff Jenkins of Brooklyn, and the popular Irish Johnny Turner of Hunter runs up against Charlie Benjamin of Hartford.

Garfield hopes to make it a 40-round program by pairing Joe Machetta of White Plains with an opponent as yet unknown.

As a sidelight to the program, Garfield reports that nationally-known trainer Chickie Ferraro will be working with Gregory as he continues his bid for a shot at the middleweight championship.

UCLA Pennants Are Stolen

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "It was an inside job," campus police speculated today following the theft of all but one of UCLA's 10 NCAA basketball championship banners from the rafters of Pauley Pavilion last week.

The banners, won during John Wooden's years as coach of the Bruins, had been the most impressive sight in the pavilion, ringing the rafters like baseball pennants at Yankee Stadium on World Series day.

But sometime during the Easter week break at school, the banners disappeared and campus police were piecing together a fragmented chain of evidence which led to the belief that it was a tongue-in-cheek caper.

Shortly after the theft, a group calling itself "The Boys from American Bridge" claimed responsibility for the action in a letter to the Daily Bruin April 19.

The group said it had acted on behalf of UniCamp, a UCLA student project to send under-privileged children to summer camp, and called on several organizations to make contributions to the chairty to get the banners back. The contributions were to be made through the "personals" section of the campus newspaper.

"We beseech the support of every Bruin, other students and alumnus, in this crusade for the underprivileged children," the letter said. "Please help send these kids to camp this summer."

Message for Bristol: Stay Out of Suites

NEW YORK (UPI) — I have two messages for Dave Bristol.

The first one is keep winning.

The second one is stay away from those hotel suites generally assigned to all major league managers. They're nice and luxurious, but the job he saves could be his own.

Dave Bristol's boss, Ted Turner, owns the Atlanta Braves, and he has this thing about hotel suites. He doesn't like his help staying in them. More important, he doesn't like having to pay for them.

Ted Turner provided a strong clue to his feelings about hotel suites last month while the Braves were training in West Palm Beach, Fla., upon walking into one occupied by Donald Davidson. Turner had promoted Davidson to vice president himself a few weeks after buying the club.

A word here about Donald Davidson. He isn't your usual vice president.

He started with the Braves as a batboy 40 years ago and has been with them almost continuously since. Before Turner took over, Davidson served the club as publicity director, traveling secretary, game director, and assistant to the president. You name it, he worked it.

Everybody in baseball knows Donald Davidson. Weighing 90 pounds and standing only four feet tall, he sticks out like a Tom Thumb.

"I'm a little taller with elevator shoes," he says, "but my wife won't let me wear 'em. I fall down."

Donald Davidson goes with the Braves franchise.

He did until last Saturday when Ted Turner fired him.

To get back to that West Palm Beach hotel suite Davidson had last month, Turner surveyed the three-room unit and noticed it had two beds.

"Who sleeps in all these beds?" he wanted to know.

Davidson said he used only one of the beds. He explained there was no extra charge to the Braves for the suite and that the club was paying the regular single room rate of $22 a day, plus tax, but his explanation didn't thrill Turner to any appreciable extent.

Last Saturday in Philadelphia the same topic came up.

Davidson was sitting in the lobby of the hotel where the Braves stay, talking with sportswriter Wayne Minshew of the Atlanta Constitution, when Turner came along. The three talked for awhile and the conversation eventually switched to the accomodations in the hotel.

SPORT PARADE

Milton Richman, UPI Sports Editor

Turner said he didn't understand why Davidson and Bristol had to have suites, and wanted to know how much they cost.

"Mine is complimentary," said Davidson.

"How much is Bristol's?" Turner inquired.

"Forty dollars a day," said Davidson.

Turner made a face, the same kind you make when you suck on a lemon.

"Nobody who works for me lives in suites," he said, "and if there is a free suite, I think I should have it."

"Okay, I'll go get you one," said Davidson.

"I don't want it," said Turner.

Davidson said this wasn't the place to talk about it. He said he was going up to his room, suite 2049-2051, and call the hotel in New York where the Braves were due to check in next. He was going to give instructions that his suite there be given to Turner instead. While he was at it, Davidson told Turner exactly how he felt about the whole thing, and the way he felt was not especially good.

Davidson caught the elevator to go to his room and wasn't there 30 seconds when the phone rang. It was Turner, and he was hot. Flaming hot.

"You're through," he told Davidson. "You do not fit into the new image of the Braves. I'm giving you 60 days' pay. Get the hell out of town!"

Davidson asked Turner whether he could come down and talk with him. Turner said no. He would do Davidson a favor though, announcing Davidson had resigned instead of saying he had been fired. Davidson wasn't interested in that favor.

Back home in Atlanta now, the initial shock has worn off and Davidson isn't unduly worried. He is more capable than guys twice his size and has a legion of friends in baseball, so he shouldn't be out of a job too long.

"I'm not upset," he says. "These things are part of the game. I've always advised players not to pop off when they're released, traded or sent to the minors, so I'm going to follow my own advice. I have only one problem. In my will, my body is to be cremated and my ashes are supposed to be spilled over second base and home plate in Atlanta Stadium so whenever anyone slides in and the umpire makes a wrong call, I can cuss him out. Now, if I get another job someplace else, I suppose they'll have to fly the ashes back to Atlanta..."

Oh yes, about Dave Bristol...

And his hotel reservation here is all straightened out. Instead of a suite, Atlanta's easy-to-please manager has a large single room.

Donald Davidson took care of that. It was his last official act before he got the hell out of Philadelphia.

SHS Golfers Open By Topping Jay

SAUGERTIES — The Sawyerkill Country Club was cool and wet Monday, but it was still a friendly place for the Saugerties High golf team to begin its season.

Behind a fine 39 by Steve Van Tassel, the Sawyers took a 5½-4½ victory from John Jay to kick off DCSL competition.

Under the league's new 10 point scoring system, the teams split the six individual match points before the Sawyers claimed their edge in overall medal score. Van Tassel whipped the 42 of John Jay's Lou Bosch, and second man Jim Delmedge beat Patriot Del Chambers, 42-44.

Jay linksters won the next three matches before Mark Nezich, with a surprise 42, beat Oddvar Bakken by six shots to even the count at three points apiece.

Dave Johnson beat Warren Yetter, 42-44, Pat Fahey topped Jerry Mackey, 43-55 and Doug Delise bested Pat Harder, 45-54 for John Jay's three points.

The four remaining match points were awarded to the four best medal scores. Van Tassel picked up one uncontested, then Delmedge and Nezich of Saugerties and Bosch and Johnson of John Jay split the remaining three points for their matching 42's.

Clemson Scores

CLEMSON, S.C. (UPI) — Steve Nilsson's ninth-inning sacrifice fly drove home Al Hoover with the winning run Sunday as Clemson won the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball title with a 3-2 win over Maryland.

It was the first ACC title championship since 1967 for the Tigers, who got to the finals of the double-elimination tourn ament for the past three years.

Hoover singled to lead off the final inning and after a walk, Billy Wingo's sacrifice moved the runners up. Nilsson's fly to left scored Hoover with the winning run.

'Stop Carter' Pennsylvania Drive Tied to HHH Possibility

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Front-runner Jimmy Carter sought to crush Henry Jackson and Morris Udall in today's crucial Pennsylvania primary and begin a steamroller toward the Democratic presidential nomination next July.

But he was fighting a "Stop Carter" movement as labor and the party machine swung behind Jackson, partly to keep the door open for Hubert H. Humpl. :y in the event of a deadlocked convention.

The weather was frigid, and rain and snow were forecast for much of Pennsylvania. But more than half the state's voters were expected to cast ballots, lured by the hot Democratic presidential race. Polls were open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. EDT.

Carter was the slight favorite in balloting that could go a long way toward determining whether the former Georgia governor - surprise of the Bicentennial election year — can maintain the momentum needed to capture the party's nomination in July at Madison Square Garden.

President Ford was unopposed for the 84 Republican convention delegates to be selected, with 19 to be chosen later.

The nominally uncommitted delegates, along with a similiar group from New York, will be in Ford's corner in any showdown with Ronald Reagan at the convention.

At stake on the Democratic side are 134 delegates, with 44 to be apportioned later. In addition there is a statewide "beauty contest," the popular vote that probably will overshadow the delegate selection since the complicated ballot may not yield delegate winners for a day or two.

Carter predicted he would win the popular vote, while Jackson was expected to get a majority of the convention delegates. Udall backers said they would consider second place in the popular vote a victory.

George Wallace, who finished second here four years ago, all but resigned himself to fourth place, and did little campaigning. There are five others on the Democratic ballot, who either are far back in the field or no longer active candidates.

Carter campaigned in Connecticut today and Udall in Maryland, while Jackson was back in Washington. All three were to return to Philadelphia later to watch election returns.

The three criss-crossed the state Monday in last-minute handshaking tours, and Udall spent $10,000 from his badly depleted campaign treasury on a five-minute, nationwide television appeal for financial support.

"Give me your hand, your heart, your help," Udall asked viewers in a spot that is to run again Thursday on a different network.

In the Republican Senate race, Rep. H. John Heinz III tried to stave off a late challenge by Arlen Specter, former Philadelphia district attorney who, in the waning days of the race, charged Heinz unfit to serve because of allegations of past illegal campaign contributions.

The winner is expected to face Democrat Rep. William J. Green, a heavy favorite over state Rep. Jeannette Reibman.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 28

Your birthday today: You now leave the past behind and transform yourself to a wiser, more efficient person. The first half-year you begin to search and experiment. The last half finds you well on the road to successful schedules and realistic programs. Relationships weather the early six months and improve after midyear. Today's natives have willpower that fortifies their other assets.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Financial directions change. Your success depends upon your ability to adjust quickly. Apply for rewards for past achievements, scholarships and benefits. Hold back your temper and impulses.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Be firm but not tactless. The little help that is available is going to cost you later. Give others space to switch courses or attitudes.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): The best professional advice still requires evaluation. A whim leads to unusual circumstances in which you need a sense of humor and a glib tongue.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Friends become busybodies, with illogical suggestions. Gently tell them about the flaws in their schemes and your proposed solutions. Loved ones don't deserve shoptalk.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You can't be in two or more places at once. Ration your hours even if it means hasty trips between stops. Expect minimal cooperation and no favors.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Interruptions, startling news and bright ideas are par for the day. Relationships formed too casually turn out to be costly. You benefit by minding the store.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Things owned in common provide a basis for a vigorous debate. Resolving a clash of opinions is more important than the final decision, itself. Avoid untried procedures.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Drastic action to patch up domestic conditions creates more problems than it solves. Blunt remarks upset otherwise peaceful people. Don't buy luxury items.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): People beyond your scope of operations have influence over your situation. Accept a sudden shift in plans or strange news.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Add one gimmick too many, and the whole venture you're promoting gets derailed. Try to avoid discussions with old associates, which put you in a difficult spot.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You get more than your portion of commentary, some of which is unfair. Pointing out errors of others won't improve your status. Assign priorities early.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): If you don't make a big production out of it, a short journey brings in odd information. Avoid unusual maneuvers or legal action.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

A LITTLE TAP: (Q.) Does it mean a boy likes you when he hits you? Gene always hits me when he sees me. Not hard, just a little tap. And I always hit him back. He talks to me, too, sometimss. And he doesn't hit any other girls.

I really like him a lot. My friend says it's a love tap. What do you think? I'm 13 and he is too.—The Only One in New Jersey

(A.) It sounds very much like a "love tap" to me. There are many ways to talk without using words. You and Gene have found one of them.

RESTRICTED: (Q.) A year ago my mother got divorced. She went to work as a waitress. She worked at night. I was 12 and had to take care of the other children, who were 2, 5 and 11. I kept them until she came home at 1 or 2 a. m.

Now we are living on a farm with her boy friend and she does not have to work. I do not have to babysit now. But she will not let me go anywhere. She thinks I just want to go out and chase guys. What I want is to have some fun, with my girl friend and other friends of hers and mine, 19- and 20-year-old adults.

I am an A and B student. I do what she asks me to do and I have never done anything really wrong. If I could babysit alone at night why can't I be depended on now and have friends and see them?—Prisoner, Ags 13, in Ohio

(A.) You deserve time and freedom to be with friends of your own age (but not with 19- or 20-year-olds).

Your mother has had a hard time, and is clearly afraid you will have a hard time too. In an emergency she had to put a big load on you. She probably feels guilty about that, and thinks about what might have happened, and is trying to "protect" you.

Continue to be dependable. Assure her at every opportunity and show by all your actions that she can trust you. As she grows calmer and easier about her own situation, she will grow calmer and more relaxed about you, and may be able to see your needs more clearly.

Victor Mollo does not show the East-West hands when he is discussing declarer play. If you can do so, don't look at them until you have planned your play.

West starts out by leading out the ace, king and queen of clubs. The unthinking player ruffs and starts after trumps. Now take a look at the East-West cards and see what happens to the unthinking declarer. West has five trumps and the unthinking declarer will have the opportunity to complain about bad luck.

How about the thinking declarer. He will say to himself that trumps have been known to break 5-0 and that when he can take out insurance against such a break he should do so. Particularly since he really doesn't have to pay a premium for that insurance.

He has to lose a diamond some time. Why not right away. So he throws a diamond on the third club and can't be beaten at his four-spade contract.

Rolison Seeks 6th

POUGHKEEPSIE — State Senator Jay P. Rolison (R.-Poughkeepsie) has tossed his hat in the ring for the sixth time in announcing his intention to seek re-election in the 39th District.

The district includes all of Dutchess and Putnam counties and a portion of Columbia and Westchester Counties. Prior to redistricting, Rolison had represented part of Ulster County in the Senate.

The senator is chairman of the Senate Standing Committee on Banks, and a member of Committees on Judiciary, Codes, Education, and Elections.

Rolison's heart is with the Education Committee, he noted in a news release. "In the past for years I have been a member of the Senate Education Committee and I am most anxious to continue my work in this field," he stated, "I will be writing to members of the Republican County Committees in the counties I represent seeking their help and support for my re-election campaign. I look forward to a strong and vigorous campaign this fall."

Gilman: Nuke Safety

BUCHANAN — Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman, R-26th Dist., has called for a "three-pronged plan" to determine the safety of the three Indian Point nuclear power plants located in Westchester County.

Gilman has asked the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to appropriate funds for seismic research at Indian Point, to initiate a coordinated effort to exchange information and research among agencies having responsiblilty for protecting other earthquake-prone structures, and to launch an immediate study of the structural ability of the Indian Point facilities to withstand an earthquake.

Gilman's request was made at a Nuclear Regulatory Commission hearing in White Plains which was called to investigate the seismic safety of the three nuclear power plants. The Indian Point complex is located along the Ramapo Fault, where an earthquake was recorded earlier this year.

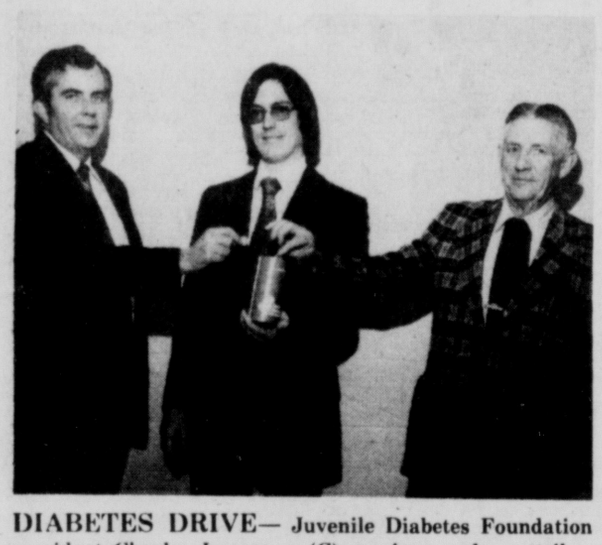
"The future and safety of residents throughout Southeastern New York may be in jeopardy. The questions must be fully resolved," said Gilman, "An exhaustive study of the safety of nuclear power, including siting, will help the public to more fully accept nuclear power as a viable alternative source of energy."

Waste Water Meeting

KERHONKSON — Town and county officials have invited all interested Kerhonkson area residents to attend a special meeting April 29 at the fire house to discuss waste water problems in Kerhonkson and the possible formation of a sewer district.

Warwarsing Town Supervisor Franklin Sahler said that several representatives from the Ulster County Department of Health, the town engineer and town attorney, and others will be available to answer questions.

In asking for public support in the sewage question, Sahler commented, "Your town board asks for your assistance and input to help us determine the direction we must follow to solve the waste water problem in Kerhonkson." The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m., Thursday.



DIABETES DRIVE— Juvenile Diabetes Foundation president Charles Lawrence (C) receives early contributions for May fund raising campaign from Ulster County legislators, Thomas Roach, Dist. 8, Public Health chairman (L) and S. Robert Kelder, Dist. 7, Youth and Recreation chairman. Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago recently designated May as Juvenile Diabetes Month in Ulster County. Lawrence addressed recent afternoon session of the Legislature on the pressing needs of the Foundation.

Feraca Opposes Shifting

KINGSTON — Joseph Feraca, candidate for election to the Kingston Schools Consolidated Board of Education, said today that he supports the "neighborhood schools and would fight any move to transfer students. Feraca contends a shifting of students would cause more problems than it would solve. "The fact is that students are not items to be placed in empty spaces in various buildings and attempting to solve space problems in this manner ignores reality and promotes assembly-line education," said the former school board member.

Feraca went on to reiterate his solution to the problem of overcrowding at Kingston High School; i.e., "purchase of the library property (adjaent to the high school), using 9th period and partly refurbishing the high school."

"Kingston waited too long to face this problem," said Feraca, "but as difficult as it is to face now, it will only become more difficult and costly as we postpone its solution.

"We must recognize the rights of the individual students," he said. "Preserve the desirablity of academic success and meet the career needs of the students and inspire a sense of community among students and faculty. This is what it is all about," Feraca concluded.

Meyer: Quality Education

KINGSTON — Ronald J. Meyer, cnadidate for re-election to the Kingston Schools Consolidated Board of Education, declared today that he had "made the commitment" necessary to be a productive member of the board during his year's term of office.

"Social functions, some business matters and unfortunately, some family activities have taken a back seat to school district business," said Meyer. "I feel every person owes the community in which he lives a share of his time, ability and efforts."

Meyer claims to have been responsive to all the needs "of our school district during the past year, as chairman of the Communications Committee holding public information meetings, providing the residents of this school with direct access to school records with the 'sunshine law' and installing a public information line."

He goes on to repeat what has been for him a frequent campaign statement: "The education of our students, maintaining the neighborhood school concept are the main issues in this school board election, not buildings."

Meyer says he will continue to fight for a referendum on any major building projects in the district. He points out that he was the only member of the present board who sponsored such legislation. It was defeated.

$ for County Students

ALBANY — Ulster County residents received more than $2.5 million in state funded scholarships, student loans and tuition assistance payments during the 1974-75 school year, according to the New York State Higher Education Service Corporation.

According to statistics released recently, 1,133 Ulster County students received $1.4 million in guaranteed student loans in '74-'75; 2,252 students received tuition assistance totaling $780,000 and 618 students received Regents Scholarships totaling $234,752.

In addition, New York State residents attending school in Ulster County received $3.1 million in scholarships and loans during the 1974-75 school year.

Among local institutions, the largest recipient was the State University College at New Paltz, where 3,206 state residents received $1.1 million in scholarships and tuition assistance and 1,206 students received $1.5 million in guaranteed student loans, for a total of just less than $2.7 million.

Second on the list of recipients was Ulster County Community College, where 791 state resident students received $274,000 in state scholarships and 155 students received $144,000 in guaranteed student loans.

Other local recipients included Ulster County BOCES, where four students received loans totaling $3,100 and Richard I School of Beauty Culture, where 11 students received $10,400 in guaranteed loans.

Statewide, New York residents attending college in the state received $109 million in scholarships and $178 million in guaranteed student loans during the '74-'75 school years.

S-1 Viewed Threat

POUGHKEEPSIE — Senate Bill No. 1 (also known as S-1) is a definite threat to our individual liberties, according to the New York Civil Liberties Union, Mid-Hudson Chapter, and members are taking their case for defeat to the people.

A program entitled "S-1—The Death of Justice" will be held at 8 p.m. today at the Unitarian Building, 67 South Randolph Avenue, Poughkeepsie, and the public is welcome.

Jeff Segal of New York City will explain the ramifications of S-1, a proposed redification of the United States Criminal Code that has been strongly opposed by the Civil Liberties Union. Segal is an associate of the Center for Constitutional Rights and of the National Lawyers Guild and has authored a booklet "Stop S-1" published by The Guardian.

Buckley: Savings Bonds a Rip-Off!

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "A $100 bond purchased in 1976 will be worth less than $50 in 1986 in terms of purchasing power at maturity," according to U.S. Sen. James L. Buckley, R, C-N.Y., claiming that Americans are being "embezzled tens of billions of dollars. from the value of their savings entrusted to their government."

For years Americans have placed their money in U.S. Savings Bonds feeling assured that their investments were "as good as gold," according to Buckley. But, Buckley explained, "while the government continues to promote deliberately inflationary policies, it at the same time continues to promote savings bonds as a sound, prudent investment, a kind of deception that the Securities and Exchange Commission would not tolerate in private issue."

He said that assuming the continuation of the average inflationary rate we have experienced over the last 10 years, anyone who purchases a savings bond today could expect to see the real value of the principal erode by 50 per cent by the time the bond matures in 10 years.

In the meantime, Buckley said the depreciation of the value of the principal will more than offset the interest earned by the holder of the bond; "and to add insult to injury, the holder is compelled to pay taxes on this fictitious 'income.' "

To fully protect investors in savings bonds, he has introduced the Fair Savings Bond Act of 1976, which would adjust interest and principal payments on U.S. Savings Bonds to reflect changes in the consumer price index.

If, for example, between the date of purchase and the date of maturity, the cost-of-living index has doubled in order to reflect a 50 per cent decline in the purchasing power of the dollar, then the bond holder will be paid at maturiy twice the value of the bond, Buckley said.

His bill "would eliminate a portion of the profit the government realizes from inflation, while restoring to the individual some ability to protect savings and to provide for retirement years."

Auto Insurance Will Rise

KINGSTON—A tale of industry mismanagement, consumer greed, increased medical costs and escalating auto parts prices has surfaced locally in the wake of an announcement Monday that auto insurance premium costs may skyrocket this year.

An unnamed source in the State Insurance Department said Monday that auto insurance premiums may increase between 20 and 25 per cent this year for New York State motorists. The cost of medical treatment and auto replacement parts was blamed for the anticipated increase.

Today, a number of Kingston area auto insurance carriers confirmed that grim projection. And judging from their comments, it doesn't look like anyone will be spared.

A spokesman for the Allen L. Hanstein Insurance Co. said today, "The various companies that we represent expect to file for rate increases averaging 25-35 per cent. Whether those rate increase are approved remains to be seen."

The Hanstein spokesman acknowledged that the high price of auto parts and increased medical costs must share part of the blame, but he pointed to one other factor that has contributed to the problem.

Part of the reason is the stock market," he said, "In previous years, the insurance companies were making enough money on Wall Street to offset their losses. With the present condition of the stock market, they can't make that investment income to offset their losses."

"Unless there is a change in the economy and the stock market," he added, "rates will continue to increase."

Louis P. Conti suggested another factor. "The trend toward increasing rates will end only when the insured realize that they can't put in a claim for every little scratch," said Conti. People always want their cars to look like new, but the more claims there are, the higher the cost will be."

Frank Adams noted that premiums have increased once this year already, and that further increases may be approved between now and September. "There are two keys," said Adams, "it costs a fortune! to fix a car, and no-fault is draining the insurance carriers."

Despite the gloomy reports, there is at least one agent locally who feels the situation may not deteriorate as much as some predict. "I think the insurance rates for most companies have increased as much as they will this year," said Frank H. Reis. "The next three or four months will be critical. If the insurance companies can turn themselves around, we may avoid substantial increases."

Reis said that his firm has received rate increase announcements this year from every company it represents, including Allstate, Prudential, Aetna and Kemper. "But the tide may be starting to turn," said Reis. "If the premiums begin catching up to the losses, we may avoid further substantial increases this year."

Reis said the insurance industry itself must share a large part of the blame. "In the early 1970s," he said, "the insurance companies became profitable, and they started giving the hay in the barn away, instead of charging for it. Now the companies are trying to play catch-up. If they had increased their rates to keep pace with inflation and costs we wouldn't be in this situation now."

One company that has a lot of catching up to do is GEICO, which now sits on the thin edge between survival and disaster. This week, GEICO was granted a 47 per cent rate increase, but some local agents say even that may not be enough.

The impact of industry problems on consumers isn't limited to economic factors. A spokesman for Ralph J. Carpino Inc. said today that many companies, faced with mounting losses, are becoming more selective as to who they insure.

And, as if this bad news wasn't bad enough, there is one other point to ponder. Conti noted that there is a move afoot to apply the four per cent state sales tax to all insurance premiums.

West Camp, Shady P.O.'s Non-Profit; Face Closing

WEST CAMP — The U.S. Post Office is thinking about closing its facilities in West Camp and Sahdy and either contracting mail services or converting to a rural route service.

Most people are unhappy about it according to Richard Haines, officer in charge at West Camp.

The 135 post office patrons there, who pick up their mail daily at the post office located inn the Community Market, don't relish becoming rural route patrons and Haines maintains that bidding on a contract to perform the services would not be worthwhile.

The two post offices are among about 1,000 in the country, which do not pay their own way and are being considered for closure.

Postal officials, faced with court suits and criticism of planned closing this summer, said hundreds of post offices have been shut in the past with little fanfare. Such offices, they said, are not closed unless patrons can get equal or better service.

West Camp Post Office currently operates with a $16,000-a-year budget with a $4,000 income leaving a $12,000 deficit, roughly the amount of salary for the postmaster, Hains said.

To bid for the post office contract would not be worthwhile, he said, citing the Town of Fosterdale where the U.S. Post Office accepted a $2,500 bid on a yearly contract. "That's about 200 a month for a 48½-hour week." Haines explained.

In Shady, Catherine Woehrle, officer-in-charge, declined to give details concerning the post office operation because she has not received official word from the U.S. Post Office. She did acknowledge however, that residents of the area had received communiques from the post office officials seeking their opinion on the proposals.

Hains said two options have been advanced but post office patrons prefer to have the service remain as it is. The rural route does not appeal to them because it necessitates their having to come to the Post Office for packages or certified mail if they are not at home at time of delivery, he said.

Compared with 76,945 post offices in 1901, there were 30,754 listed in the United Stautes last year.

One of them is Gabaldon, N.M., where the town's eight families will be placed on a "star route."

The post office cites Gabaldon, costing $3,736 a year to maintain, as an example of how it can save millions of dollars by closing the small, mostly rural post office facilities which do not break even.

About 300 post offices are bing considered for closure or conversion this summer and many are complaining. Members of Congress say voters are complaining to them.

Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman,, R-26th Dist., whop is a member of the Post Office Committee, said that another Mid-Hudson post office, in Johnson, in Orange County, is also being considered for closure.

Fifty House and Senate members have joined Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., in suing the Postal Service to prevent it from closing any post office just because it is losing money.

Committee Convenes On Welfare Default

KINGSTON — "We are in sympathy with Woodstock, but other towns throughout the county and country have the same problems."

So said Ernest J. Gardner, R.-Dist. 5, following Monday night's meeting of the Social Services Committee of the Ulster County Legislature. Gardner, who chairs that committee, was referring to the recent decision of Woodstock Town Board to refuse to pay present and future welfare bills submitted to the town by Commissioner Bernhardt S. Kramer of the county's Department of Social Services.

'Woodstock Cannot Be An Exception to the Law'

No official decision was reached in the matter at the meeting and no specific action taken. For the time being, at least, the Woodstock welfare issue will remain in the hands of legal counsel. Said Gardner, "Our county attorneys are still researching the statutes to try and find out what kind of footing we are on — and what legal action we have to take."

The committee chairman noted, however, that "Just as soon as we get a legal opinion from our attorneys, we will take whatever action is necessary." He added that no deadline had been set for attorneys to arrive at a conclusion.

How sympathetic is the committee with Woodstock's plight? Nine out of 12 members of the committee were present at the session and Gardner said, "Everybody is in sympathy with Woodstock, but we are also in sympathy with the problems of others. This is not just a local Woodstock problem. It's countywide, statewide and nationwide."

That, insists Woodsock Supervisor Val Cadden, is precisely the point. Woodstock has gone on record as saying the issue goes higher than the county level and that major reforms must be implemented by state and federal governments. By taking the stand it has, the town is looking for help, support and backing.

The reaction so far has been highly favorable, says Cadden. "Letters are pouring in from all over New York and Connecticut," she says, "urging us to keep up the battle because we're fighting for everyone. We're getting great support."

Still, the Gardner committee feels it has to maintain a legal basis in the matter. "We must work within the legal framework of the law," he says, "and Woodstock cannot be an exception to the law."

Gardner also noted that, months ago, five proposals on Ulster County welfare reform came out of an upstate seminar and were presented to the State Legislature. They have not as yet been acted upon, he said.

All of which would seem to indicate that Woodstock, as only one small cog in the national welfare machine, will have to pay the county piper unless help comes from the state or federal government.

Major Surgery Proposed for CIA Ills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Recommending major surgery for the intelligence agencies to excise ills extending back more than 25 years and prevent their recurrence, the Senate intelligence committee proposes 87 changes headed by strong congressional oversight.

The recommendations came in a massive, 651-page report on U.S. foreign and military intelligence issued Monday by the panel winding up 15 months of investigations of the spy agencies.

Another 97 recommendations are due Wednesday when the committee releases its final report on domestic activities carried out by the FBI, CIA and the National Security Agency.

Just before the report was released, CIA Director George Bush succeeded in keeping a lid on publication of the full annual budget of all U.S. intelligence agencies — said to range from $6 billion to $10 billion worldwide.

But after he left, the committee voted 6-5 to let the Senate decide whether to reveal the budget for the first time.

LISBON, Portugal — Socialist leader Mario Soares has rejected the idea of a coalition with any of the other three top finishers in Sunday's legislative elections.

K: Unrelenting Pressure on Rhodesia

LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI) — The United States will use "unrelenting" economic pressure to force Rhodesia's white regime to accept black majority rule and "avoid a great tragedy," Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said in a major policy speech today.

The 10-point program stopped short of giving any direct military aid to black anti-Rhodesian liberation movements, but included an administration push to repeal the controversial Byrd amendment, which permits the United States to evade the United Nations' embargo on the import of Rhodesian chrome.

Memoriam

In loving memory of Joseph DeLuca, on his Birthday, April 27.

A million times we've needed you, million times we've cried;
If love alone could have saved you
You never would have died.
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we love you still;
In our hearts you hold a place
No one else can ever fill.
It broke our hearts to lose you,
But you don't go alone,
For part of us went with you
The day God took you home.

LOVE,
HIS WIFE

Was It Arson?

An empty gasoline can, shingles neatly piled near an old wooden staircase bannister and a sudden burst of flames lend credence that last week's fire in the historic West Strand section of Kingston was deliberately set.

If that assumption is true, we hope that police and fire detectives find whoever is responsible and prosecute them immediately.

Robert Johnson, who is fighting all kinds of odds in trying to resurrect the downtown area, has vowed to open his Cafe Downtown on the first floor of the burned building on the original May 15 scheduled date. We wish Mr. Johnson luck and commend him for his determination. We hope his business does open on time. He deserves more than a gutted building which the insurance companies wouldn't even insure.

Warning for Sportsmen

Dear Editor:

Sportsmen are not aware of it, but they're being sold out by the N.Y. State Conservation Council to the state's game management bureaucracy (GMB) which, over the past 35 years, has been engaged in a conspiracy of using over-populations of predators to keep pheasants, grouse, ducks, Hungarian partridge and other birds scarce, including deer in the Adirondacks.

This conspiracy of keeping game scarce has had the approval of the Council, which, throughout its existence has opposed control of predators as a means of restoring an abundance of game, while at the same time it has approved increases in license fees and employment of more and more game managers to increase game. What a farce!

The latest development in this conspiracy is a Bill A-2256D in the Assembly, introduced by the Council to give the GMB authority to establish closed seasons on red and gray foxes and coyotes in this state.

The reason this Bill has been introduced by the Council is because the price of coyote, fox and raccoon pelts has rocketed to an all-time high in the past two years, with fox and coyote pelts bringing $25 to $40 and raccoon, $12 to $30. They are the three most destructive predators in the state, and the price of their pelts has served as an incentive for hundreds of trappers to renew their interest in trapping, and their annual take is threatening to reduce the over-population of these predators to the point where pheasants, grouse, ducks and even deer in the Adirondacks will begin to stage a rapid comeback. The Council and the GMB are fearful of this increase in game, as it will deprive them of the best argument they've had for raising license fees and employment of more game managers, whose main occupation is feeding sportsmen and the public with lies to discredit the value of predator control.

The GMB can't control the rising price of pelts. But, if Bill A-2256D is approved, it will give the GMB authority it wants to drastically reduce the take of foxes and coyotes. It could use the authority to close the season and open it in late fall when the ground is freezing. This would make the "dirt-hole" trap set, which is the only effective means for taking these predators, worthless and ineffective. That's the purpose of the Bill. I urge all hunters and trappers to write their Assemblyman and Senator to oppose the Bill.

Says Law Unlawful

Dear Editor

The LAW that incriminiates a person, before he or she commits a crime, is unlawful. A person is innocent until proven guilty.

Before buying a pistol in the State you have to get a permit. This is saying, that, a person is guilty before she or he buys a pistol.

I believe, that all gun control laws and pistol permits are unlawful, and anybody who says different should read our statutes.

You have heard about the Sullivan Law which, I believe, to be unlawful as a three dollar bill. Any person or persons making you obey an unlawful law as this, should be put into jail, for disobeying the law of the LAND!

Sincerely,
ROBERT J. TOMPKINS
New Paltz

'One-Vote' Reminder

Dear Editor:

When we write or call our representatives in government the answer too often comes back the same:

They are not out to get the "Good Guys" only the "Bad Guys." "Bad Guys" want and have pistols four inches and under. "Good Guys" stay home "Saturday nights" and don't want or own a four-inch pistol.

Stopping the manufacturing of four-inch and under pistols will abolish them for ever and ever from this land. So, the Bad Guys won't be able to buy or make a four-inch pistol, because the Good Guys can't buy or make one, legally.

Again and again we've tried to tell our politicians they are leaning too much on our Rights as Americans. And too many times the answers are: "well, what do you expect me to do?" "I have only one vote!"

Yes, we do agree here! I have "one vote," my husband has "one vote" our friends and relatives have "one vote" each. Our "one votes" put them in their offices and these same "one votes" can put them out of office.

Sincerely,
CAROL TOMPKINS

Disputes 'Stable' SPCA

Dear Editor:

Mrs. Mary Russell's letter in The Sunday Freeman on April 4th makes an appeal for people "willing to be candidates for the Board of Directors" of the Ulster County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. She assured future board members "that the organization is in a very stable situation at this time". I would truly appreciate her explanation of just where in the S.P.C.A. she finds this "very stable situation."

An organization with an operating deficit of $24,163.84 for the first eight months of the current fiscal year (as shown on the statement of Profit and Loss dated 12 - 31 - 75) would appear to be in a somewhat less than "stable situation" financially. The S.P.C.A. has never been a profit-making organization; however, this is the largest deficit I can recall.

The management of the affairs of the S.P.C.A. is vested in a Board of Directors composed of 12 members of the Society. Each year four members are elected for a term of three years each. On May 31, 1975 four directors were elected to three year terms. At the quarterly membership meeting in November 1975 it was reported that three board members had resigned; at the next quarterly meeting the resignations of two more board members were reported making a total of five resignations from the Board of Directors in less than nine months. Three of the four directors elected to three year terms in May had resigned by February 24th. It would seem that in the area of government the Society's situation could hardly be termed "very stable."

There was no shelter report made at the last quarterly meeting, so concerning the animals. I must base my views on the last report given to the membership (covering the quarter August - October 1975). During those three months, 545 dogs were brought in to the shelter; 202 dogs were adopted-out and 265 dogs were destroyed. During the same period, 790 cats were brought in to the shelter; 101 cats were adopted-out and 641 cats were destroyed. Not a "very stable situation" for the shelter animals. If the time ever comes when we have as many suitable homes as we have adoptable animals to place in those homes, we will then be able to say we have "a very stable situation" for the animals. O Lord, how we pray for that day to arrive!

It may be because our total assets (i.e. shelter and grounds, equipment, and what ever is left of our former trust fund, etc.) might be said to be worth more than our current obligations, Mrs. Russell views this as assurance of a very stable situation. Perhaps she is right.

Yours truly,
MRS. DOROTHY CARLSON
Member of Ulster County S.P.C.A.

Just A Few Questions

Dear Editor:

Brian Harding's letters in your April sixth issue amazes me in that a man of his non-beliefs could live in such a religious community as Kingston.

May I pose a few questions – Why did George Washington pray at Valley Forge, the postage stamp was issued in 1928 showing Washington on his knees (Scott's Catalogue No. 64)? Why?

Why do we have chaplains in all branches of our armed services?

Why does the Congress have chaplains?

Why do we have the motto "in God we trust" on our coinage?

Why does Ford go to church?

Why was Harding born?

God forgive this mentally deranged man.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH P. FUREY

Any Spare Placenta?

Robert Pear of the Washington Star reports, rather matter-of-factly, that ingenious American enterprise has discovered a use for human placenta. These tissues are, one gathers, quite valuable. They are being gobbled up by the cosmetics industry, and a big line of products is now available, the base of which is the human placenta.

The story does not specify just exactly how one goes about securing these tissues. Does a representative of Revson approach the delivery room, and offer five dollars to the mother? Or — perhaps — five dollars to the nurse? Or is the initiative taken by a member of the hospital staff, who spirits away the substance, as in days gone by the undertakers would spirit away the corpses, for a little profit?

It occurs to me that we never did find out exactly what the Nazi scientists established at Belsen about the commercial uses of human skin. We know that the Bitch had some lampshades made out of them, but don't know whether that was the only contemplated use of human skin. To be sure, the cosmetics industry was not then so highly developed, so it is even possible that the scientists found that human skin was not very useful for anything at all, except to sheathe human flesh, and provide a warm glowing light in the lamps of the world's concentration camps.

The dispatch says that some people are in fact put off by the knowledge that the hair spray or whatever they are about to buy has its base in human placenta. But not many. It is a clinical age we live in, and we have thus far successfully controlled any unruly emotions at the sight of photographs of fetuses, five, and six months old, routinely evacuated from the womb by doctors who once took a Hippocratic oath.

Mr. Nicholas Von Hoffman, who has a highly developed capacity for indignation, is indignant at the continuing indignation of the anti-abortion people, and he explains his indignation in a most peculiar manner. By citing examples of what Communist women recently reported at a conference in Emilia-Romagna, as a frequent practice by women who do not want the child, but cannot get an abortion.

He cites the testimony of one woman: "We wouldn't even tell our husbands we were pregnant, nor our mothers-in-law who used to live in the family. It would all be agreed among us young wives. Then, when the moment had come, we would leave the men in the fields for a while, we would give birth to the child with the help of some sister or sister-in-law and then we would go back to work so the men wouldn't know."

Now Mr. Hoffman's instincts for self-preservation are sharp enough to cause him to concede that it is not fully documented that the accounts are true. But he does pass it along, and expresses no skepticism about the powers of the Communist mothers of Emilia-Romagna to go nine months with child without any external trace of pregnancy detectable by their husbands, or their mothers-in-law. Just to begin with, the mothers should offer their secrets to Revlon, in return for Italian rights to their placenta patents. But accurate or not, Mr. Hoffman suggests that to such lengths are women driven if you deny them a safe, surgical abortion.

For reasons unknown and perhaps unknowable, such stories circulate even in an age where their relevance for Americans is nugatory. Surely any American woman who is prepared to commit infanticide rather than bear a child will guard against conception by using any of the several methods widely advertised? And surely any such mother, unless she is aberrant, would know that there are agencies that will accept unwanted babies? And waiting lines of people who wish to adopt them? If the mother is unbalanced, we cannot, really, guard against anything she does. But surely the national debate oughtn't to center on the alternatives madwomen might take? And surely a national period of meditation is in order on the diminished sensibilities of a society that uses human material as a base for cosmetics?

Ford Flip-Flop

WASHINGTON— President Ford dropped his support of legislation to curb corporate mergers after his most prominent campaign fundraiser complained about the bill to top White House and Treasury officials.

The decision to scuttle the consumer measure was reached at a secret White House meeting after fundraiser Bernard Lasker intervened. Lasker, an investment banker and former head of the New York Stock Exchange, has been a key member of Ford's executive campaign finance committee since November.

The amendment which so infuriated Lasker would have given the government a better chance to block major corporate mergers which often strangle competition and run up consumer prices.

But the legislation could also cost the client's of Lasker's internationally known investment firm hundreds of millions of dollars.

So, a few weeks ago Lasker began calling his friends in Washington to object to the anti-trust bill as "inflexible." He spoke with Treasury and White House officials, including the President's top economic aide, William Seidman.

Almost immediately, the matter was brought up at a closed meeting of the White House's powerful economic board. There, the Treasury officials whittled away at the arguments of the Justice Department's anti-trust chief Thomas Kauper. Finally, the Lasker view prevailed.

To avoid making Kauper publicly back down, the White House had his boss, Deputy Attorney General Harold Tyler, convey the bad news to Senate Anti-Trust Chairman Philip Hart, D-Mich.

"The Administration," wrote Tyler, "does not support enactment of the pre-merger stay provision." The letter all but sounded the death knell for the bill because of the implicit threat of veto.

Seidman, who acted as a fair-minded mediator in the matter, confirmed he had spoken to the powerful fundraiser about the provision. Treasury officials also conceded they spoke with Lasker. Lasker did not return our call.

Footnote: President Ford also flip-flopped on a previous anti-trust measure. After pressure from business groups, Ford reversed himself on a bill to allow states to file anti-trust suits on behalf of their consumers.

BOOZE AND BOMBS: High-ranking officers of the Navy's Flagship carrier Saratoga, on at least one occasion, used the ship's nuclear storage spaces to smuggle whisky and furniture past U.S. customs.

The gold-braid smugglers correctly guessed that the customs inspectors, lacking nuclear clearance, wouldn't try to check the nuclear areas for contraband.

For more than two years, the Saratoga crew, disciplined to protect nuclear secrets, has been even more tight-lipped about the booze that was stashed in the bomb spaces. The secret might never have leaked out if the top brass hadn't revoked the liberty privileges of scores of enlisted men for drunkeness.

The indignant sailors got in touch with us to complain that their alcoholic trespasses were trivial compared to the escapades of certain top officers, including an admiral who turned out to be the secret owner of some confiscated spirits.

We have carefully verified the complaints from eyewitnesses and Navy files. Here are the fascinating facts:

Just before the Saratoga pulled out of the Tonkin Gulf in winter 1973, some Navy bigwigs loaded crates of whisky into a nuclear storage room on the third deck below the hangar bay. Some rattan furniture from the Philippines was also hidden in the secret nuclear area, according to our sources. The contraband, safe in its nuclear hiding place, was sneaked into the United States, duty free. The commanding officer of the Saratoga at that time was Capt. James R. Sanderson.

Last year, some Filipino stewards were also caught smuggling a load of booze aboard the Saratoga off the shores of Rota, Spain.

An alert Master at Arms spotted the stewards in the act of lugging the heavy crates and confiscated the bootleg liquor. We described the incident, in accordance with Navy regulations, in an investigative report.

But the report was quietly discarded after Rear Adm. Forrest Petersen angrily told Saratoga officers the booze belonged to him. In fact, he ordered the Saratoga's executive officer to personally return the liquor to the admiral's spacious cabin.

Petersen, incidentally, likes sports almost as much as booze. For when the Saratoga anchored just off Casablanca during that same tour, he loaded his golf clubs into one of the carrier's helicopters for a game with the Pasha of Mohammedea. Naturally, this didn't go over very well with the enlisted men, who were left behind to swab the decks.

Footnote: Sanderson denied any knowledge of efforts to avoid the payment of legitimate import duties on furniture or liquor. He says he declared about $2,800 worth of goods to customs inspectors. Petersen said the stewards were bringing him only "two or three bottles of cooking sherry." He added that his helicopter trip to the golf course in Casablanca was for an official function.

Because It's the Law

WASHINGTON—One of the most important legal decisions of the last 50 years was made in Washington, D.C., last week. U.S. Dist. Judge Charles Richey ruled that employes whose continued employment is conditioned on submission to the sexual advances of their supervisors may sue their bosses for sex discrimination.

Judge Richey, in his opinion, said that, while the case before him involved a female subordinate employe and male boss, the situation could be reversed – and a finding of discrimination could be made where a female supervisor made sexual advances to the male employes in her office.

However, Judge Richey ruled, sexual discrimination probably could not be raised as an issue if the supervisor was bisexual and made demands on employes of each sex.

The reason the ruling has such far-reaching implications is that it sets new guidelines for how bosses can behave during and after office hours all over the country. This is probably how things will go now.

"Thank you, Mr. Novak."

"And that's a lovely shirt you're wearing, Mr. Callihan."

"Thank you, Mr. Novak."

"Would you mind staying late tonight and helping me with my report, Miss Roseberry?"

"I-I-I guess so, Mr. Novak."

"You too, Callihan."

That night.

"Well, that seems to do it, Miss Roseberry. We got the report finished. What say we go out for a nice dinner?"

"I don't know, Mr. Novak. I think I'd better go home."

"Oh, let's relax. You know I've got my eye on you, and there is a promotion coming up in the department and I think I know someone who might be getting it. Heh, heh, heh."

"Well, all right, as long as we make it an early evening."

"You coming, Callihan?"

"Well, break it if you want to stay in this job."

"Yes, sir."

A small French restaurant.

"You know, Miss Roseberry, my wife doesn't understand me. You're the only one who knows the pressure I'm under."

"I do, too, Mr. Novak."

"When I want your opinion I'll ask for it, Callihan. Just eat your soup and shut up."

"Yes, sir."

"People think being a supervisor is all peaches and cream. But under this tough exterior, Miss Roseberry, beats the heart of a man with all the same desires and needs for love and affection as anyone else."

"If you hold my hand, Mr. Novak, I can't eat my soup."

"Sorry about that, Callihan."

Two hours later.

"Well, Miss Roseberry, here we are at your apartment. Can I come in for a drink?"

"Oh, it's so late, Mr. Novak."

"Remember what I said about that promotion, Miss Roseberry."

"All right, but just one drink."

"Good night, Mr. Novak."

"Get in here, Callihan. You don't leave until I leave."

"But I'm tired, Mr. Novak, and I have to review all those applications tomorrow morning."

"Who isn't tired? You think it's fun having to worry about being sued every time I take someone from the office out for dinner? You can take Miss Roseberry anywhere you want to.

But if I take her I have to take you, too. I don't make that kind of money, Callihan."

"I guess it does take the fun out of being a boss, Mr. Novak."

"Why me, Mr. Novak?"

If Jackie Swears Like a Stevedore, Should the Public Know?

WASHINGTON (KFS) - During her first year as the nation's First Lady, a private conversation of Jacqueline Kennedy was picked up accidentally by an illegal police telephone tap.

The incident, heretofore unreported, demonstrates once again - in case you haven't gotten the message by now - that not a single person's privacy is immune from snoops and spies if such practices are permitted on a broad scale.

The story was told to me by an old Kennedy family friend, who has police connections and who acted as go-between in the crisis that the phone tap produced.

Late in 1961, New York police placed a tap for which they had not requested a warrant on a public telephone booth frequented by a bookie on whom they were trying to collect evidence. On an unpublicized visit to Manhattan, Jackie Kennedy stopped to use that very telephone. It was the kind of coincidence that looks phoney in novels, but it really happened.

The police eavesdroppers recognized her unusual, breathy voice immediately. The call was placed to Oleg Cassini, her dressmaker, regarding a perfectly innocent business transaction. But the problem was not what she said but how she said it.

She had called Cassini to complain about the inadequacies of some dresses he was creating for her. And she used language more readily identified with stevedores than first ladies. She cussed and cursed in a manner which the younger generation would not find offensive today but which was considered crude and unladylike 15 years ago.

At the time, Jackie was being idolized in the press as a fairy princess, an elegant and dazzling beauty who patronized the arts and was bringing class and style at last to the White House. She was already number two on the Gallup Poll's list of the 10 women in the world the American people most admired (and a year later she was ranked number one).

But fairy princesses do not swear. The police realized they had a hot potato which, if printed, could spoil her regal image.

They hastily gave the tape of the conversation to an undercover agent, who passed it on to the Kennedy family friend. He in turn went to Jackie's brother-in-law, Robert, who happened at the time to be Attorney General, the nation's chief law enforcement officer.

It was an awkward conversation. The Attorney General was furious, but the friend is not certain whether he was angry at Jackie or the police or both. In the end, the Attorney General did not exactly order the tape destroyed, but the friend clearly got the message that it was his neck if it ever surfaced. "Have a nice weekend," Kennedy finally said coldly and abruptly rose and stalked out of the office.

The tape of Jackie's conversation no longer exists.

It was not an earth-shaking crisis. But it does provide an interesting glimpse into the real White House world, which we have learned the past few years is not always what it seems to be.

The book "Final Days" by Watergate reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein has been harshly criticized for invading the privacy of First Lady Pat Nixon by describing her lack of sexual relationship with the President and her heavy drinking in those final days before he resigned. But there is no legitimate reason why the public should not know the truth about their behavior in private, since it is highly revealing of total character. If more about Nixon's true nature - and its effect on his family- had been known earlier, perhaps he would not have been able to get away so long with lying to the public about his police-state abuses.

What would have happened if a newspaper had acquired the tape of Jackie's conversation and printed it? Perhaps she would only have made swearing the vogue sooner than it happened.

Sinecure Scurry, Ethics Take Beating

WASHINGTON—It happens every four years. Like the rabbits of "Watership Down" who fled the warren to find a new home, politicians and bureaucrats are fleeing government to find new sinecures.

Theoretically, politicians who sit in Congress and high-ranking bureaucrats who run the Executive Branch are in Washington only temporarily. But three decades ago, when an Idaho senator named David Worth Clark was defeated and opened a Washington law office, it was said that "They never go back to Pocatello."

Instead of going home, politicians and bureaucrats trade on their government experience to set themselves up in private business as Washington lawyers, lobbyists, consultants, industry representatives and what have you. Using public office for private gain of course is unethical and there are conflict-of-interest laws But laws rarely are enforced against politicians' and bureaucrats' conflicts-of-interest. It is the exception, rather than the rule, that anyone in Washington even thinks of ethics.

Consider the case of H. R. Crawford, a bureaucrat with the title Assistant Secrstary of Health, Education and Welfare for Housing Management.

Crawford was in charge of the government's huge public housing programs. Months ago he decided to leave government and go into business as a consultant to local public housing authorities. While still in government service, Crawford contacted public housing authorities in New York, Dallas and Winston-Salem to line up consulting contracts.

Crawford reportedly hoped to gross $600,000 in consulting fees in his first year out of government.

However, while still in his government job, he did not receive any money or any other tangible benefits from prospective clients, according to his lawyer.

President Ford fired Crawford bsfore he had a chance to leave government voluntarily. HUD said Crawford was fired because his efforts to line up business and consulting fees "raised possible conflicts of interest." The FBI began an intensive investigation of Crawford and the case still is pending at the Justice Department.

What Crawford did obviously was unethical. But, if what he did was illegal, then hundreds of politicians and bureaucrats should be in jail.

Crawford is black. He was the highest black in the Ford Administration. As Assistant Secretary at HUD, he was controversial. He made enemies.

I don't know whether Crawford was fired because he is black. I do know that Crawford, because he is black, had to work harder at trading on his government experience than a white with a Harvard Law School degree. I do know that Ford applied a double standard to Crawford.

A federal criminal statute says that no government employe shall "solicit or accept anything of value" and that politicians and bureaucrats should avoid even "the appearance of using public office for private gain."

The statute is violated daily. My investigation shows that young Justice Department lawyers routinely write letters soliciting jobs from Washington law firms that have substantial business pending before the Justice Department.

The other day, a top bureaucrat at the Health, Education and Welfare Department while still in office announced that he has accepted a $48,600-a-year education job in Utah.

A lawyer and former Federal Communications Commission chairman now represents American Telephone & Telegraph, which is regulated by the FCC.

A lawyer and former director of the Environmental Protection Agency now represents the polyvinyl chloride industry, which is regulated by EPA.

It happens every day. But every four years, when presidential elections roll around, politicians and bureaucrats by the hundreds seek private gains for fear of losing their public offices.

The use of public office for private gain robs the American people of effective government. The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, for example, has had six chairmen in 12 years. Worse, the use of public office for private gain feeds the cynicism of big government that is eroding democratic government.

Reid's Problems As Encon's Boss

ALBANY (UPI) – If Henry Aaron had as much trouble with timing as Ogden Reid has with his, Aaron would have batted .039 in the Three-I League and never been heard of again.

Fortunately for Aaron, his timing has been near perfect, as he has demonstrated in a quarter of a century of professional baseball.

Unfortunately for New York State's environmental conservation commissioner, Reid's timing has been a near disaster.

Reid's misadventure with timing perhaps goes back to the day of his birth because his aristocratic wealth gives him the kind of background that many people resent out of habit rather than reason.

But, his real problems began when he took over as commissioner of one of the state's most difficult departments – a department torn for the past 10 years in the battle between environmentalists and fish and game specialists.

Fishing and Hunting

For many years, the department was primarily interested in fishing, hunting and, to a lesser degree, recreation, with just a nodding acquaintance with environmental concerns.

As a result, many of its middle and top-level professionals are more inclined to dismiss environmental problems, not because they are not concerned but because their training and experience leads them to think of the department in terms of fish, game and swimming.

Henry Diamond was the first commissioner to begin the drive to environmental concerns. He also had his problems, but he had something going for him in the figure of former Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

Hive of Bees

Rockefeller had a tendency to treat attacks on his commissioners from within or without as an attack on himself. As any state official of those Rockefeller years can tell you, an attack on Rockefeller brought on more troubles than a hive of bees at a flower show.

The next commissioner who also had environmental concerns on his mind was James Biggane. A fine administrator, as he has since proved as secretary of the Senate Finance Committee, Biggane also had something else going for him.

A career employe of the department who worked his way up through the ranks, Biggane was what is known in Southern stock car circles as a "good ol boy."

STATE OF NEW YORK
PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION
APRIL 13, 1976

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE THAT BY ORDER ADOPTED APRIL 13, 1976 THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION HAS INSTITUTED A PROCEEDING TO DETERMINE WHETHER AND TO WHAT EXTENT:

1. THE PRACTICE OF RENT-INCLUSION SHOULD BE PROSCRIBED WITH RESPECT TO FUTURE CONSTRUCTION; AND

2. CURRENT TARIFF PROVISIONS WHICH GENERALLY PROHIBIT THE PRACTICE OF SUB-METERING SHOULD BE MODIFIED. IN A RENT-INCLUDED BUILDING, TENANTS GENERALLY PAY FOR ELECTRICITY ON AN AVERAGE BASIS INCORPORATED INTO THEIR MONTHLY RENTAL AND NOT SEPARATELY IDENTIFIED. IN A SUB-METERED BUILDING, ELECTRICITY IS GENERALLY BOUGHT AT WHOLESALE RATES FROM THE UTILITY AND RESOLD TO TENANTS ON A METERED BASIS.

IN ITS ORDER, THE COMMISSION STATED THAT IT HAS REVIEWED THE RECORD IN CASE 26806, PROCEEDING ON MOTION OF THE COMMISSION AS TO RATE DESIGN, INCLUDING MATERIALS WHICH SUGGEST THAT USERS BE HELD ACCOUNTABLE FOR THEIR CONSUMPTION OF ELECTRICITY, AND HAS TENTATIVELY CONCLUDED THAT A PROSPECTIVE CHANGE IN THE EXISTING POLICY OF PERMITTING RENT-INCLUSION IS REQUIRED. THE COMMISSION ANNOUNCED ITS INTENTION TO DIRECT THE ELECTRIC UTILITIES UNDER ITS JURISDICTION TO AMEND THEIR TARIFFS TO PHOHIBIT RENT-INCLUSION IN NEW CONSTRUCTION, UNLESS INTERESTED PARTIES COULD SHOW CAUSE WHY SUCH A PROHIBITION WOULD NOT BE DESIRABLE. INTERESTED PARTIES WERE ALSO REQUIRED TO PROVIDE THE COMMISSION WITH GUIDANCE AS TO THE EARLIEST FEASIBLE EFFECTIVE DATE FOR ANY SUCH PROHIBITION.

WITH RESPECT TO SUB-METERING, THE COMMISSION HAS REQUESTED INTERESTED PARTIES TO FILE COMMENTS WHICH WILL ENABLE IT TO DECIDE WHETHER TO REMOVE, MODIFY OR RETAIN THE PRESENT RESTRICTIONS ON SUB-METERING OR, ALTERNATIVELY, WHAT FURTHER PROCEEDINGS WILL BE REQUIRED. THE COMMISSION STATED THAT, IN GENERAL, IT BELIEVES DIRECT UTILITY METERING TO BE SUPERIOR TO SUB-METERING IN LIGHT OF THE MANY ABUSES WHICH PROMPTED THE LATTER'S PROSCRIPTOON. INTERESTED PARTIES WHO WISH TO OFFER COMMENTS WERE REQUESTED, TO THE EXTENT FEASIBLE, TO ADDRESS, INTER ALIA, WHETHER AND IN WHICH SITUATIONS UTILITY METERING, SUB-METERING, OR EITHER CAN REPLACE RENT-INCLUSION IN EXISTING BUILDINGS; THE IMPACT OF A POSSIBLE PROSPECTIVE BAN ON RENT-INCLUSION ON THE NEED FOR A MODIFICATION OF SUB-METERING POLICY; THE EXTENT TO WHICH A CHANGE IN POLICY ON PRE-EXISTING BUILDINGS IN FAVOR OF SOME FORM OF SUB-METERING COULD INDUCE BETTER LOAD MANAGEMENT, ESPECIALLY IN LIGHT OF THE AGE OF SUCH BUILDINGS; THE FINANCIAL IMPACT ON UTILITIES AND OTHER AFFECTED PERSONS OF ANY CHANGE IN POLICY; AND WHETHER A CHANGE IN POLICY COULD ENCOURAGE ABUSES BY SUB-METERS, AND PROPOSALS TO DEAL THEREWITH, GIVEN EXISTING COMMISSION AUTHORITY.

THE COMMISSION SET A DEADLINE OF JUNE 1, 1976 FOR INTERESTED PARTIES TO SHOW CAUSE, IN WRITING, WHY THE PRACTICE OF RENT-INCLUSION, AS DESCRIBED HEREINABOVE, SHOULD NOT BE PROSCRIBED WITH RESPECT TO FUTURE CONSTRUCTUON. THE COMMISSION SET A DEADLINE OF JUNE 28, 1976 FOR COMMENTS, AS HEREINABOVE DESCRIBED, WITH RESPECT TO THE SUB-METERING ISSUE. INTERESTED PARTIES MAY OBTAIN A COPY OF THE COMMISSION'S ORDER BY REQUESTING A COPY OF SAID ORDER FROM THE UNDERSIGNED.

Dear Abby

Teens Seek Help with Love, Family Problems

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 and so is Todd. Every time we are alone, he tries to touch me in places I don't want him to. The only thing is that part of me wants him to, but the other part of me stops him.

I have been going with Todd for about five months, and I have never felt this way about any other boy. I wouldn't say that I am "in love" with him, but I sure do like him a lot.

I hope I don't lose him because I really enjoy his company. When he tries to touch me, and I make him stop, he doesn't put up a fight. He stops. But the first time he gets the chance, he tries again.

Please don't tell me to quit seeing Todd because I don't want to. And don't tell me I am too young to feel this way because if I feel this way I must not be too young.—NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: You are a very bright young woman, so listen carefully. Obviously you have normal sexual feelings, which is nothing to be ashamed of, but you are not yet sufficiently mature emotionally to handle a physical relationship. The word from here is: Tell Todd to knock off the hand bit. And if he doesn't—YOU do!

DEAR ABBY: As my high school graduation draws near, I am becoming more concerned about this problem. My parents are divorced, and my mother married a man my father absolutely detests. The feeling is mutual, and if they meet each other face to face, there is sure to be a fight.

I have sent invitations to my mother and father. My mother insists on having her husband attend with her. I am just terrified of what is going to happen when my father and stepfather meet at my graduation. And there is no way they can avoid seeing each other.

My graduation is a very important event in my life, and I want everything to go right. My father says he won't start anything, but if my stepfather takes a poke at him, he will defend himself.

I get tied up in knots just thinking about it. I've even considered not showing up myself. If there's a fight, I'll be disgraced. —IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: Don't borrow trouble. There may not be a fight. And if there is, remember, you are not responsible for the behavior of your father or your stepfather. They can disgrace only themselves.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been recently approved to be adoptive parents. In making a list of friends to whom we want to send announcements, we've come up against a problem. S even years ago, a friend of mine had a baby out of wedlock, and she gave the child up for adoption. It was a very difficult decision for her, and to this day she talks about it.

I see this friend about once a year. Knowing how deeply she feels about the decision she made, I wonder if it would be appropriate to send her an announcement about our adopted child.

We have many friends in common, and I know that soon after the announcements are sent, she will hear about it. If so, she might feel that I purposely overlooked her. Can you help me? —SOON-TO-BE MOTHER

DEAR SOON: If you aren't sure how she would react to a printed announcememt, phone her and tell her the news at the same time the others will be learning of it. Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

'Roughage' Defined

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have diverticulosis or pockets of the colon. Eating roughage hurts and cramps my colon with gas, yet I know I must have fiberous foods. On the other hand, I am told not to eat roughage I do suffer more when I eat raw fruits and vegetables. Could you give me an idea of what to eat for roughage that would not cause discomfort? Is there anything better to take than Metamusil for my condition?

DEAR READER — The proponents of fiber for the diet believe that it will relieve many of the problems in diverticulosis The idea is that those pockets of the colon are really a complication of a spastic or over contracted colon associated with inadequate bulk in the diet.

The word roughage is not a good word for the type of food you really need. What you need in your diet is "softage." The best source of bulk in food really is the cereal fiber found in bran or the husk of wheat. This is superior to the amount of fiber you'll get in either fruits or vegetables and since those bother you, you should try cereal fiber.

Among the readily available prepared cereals that you can get from the supermarket to satisfy your problem are Kellogg's All-Bran, Bran Buds and Nabisco Bran. If you will eat one ounce (about one teacup dry measure) of any one of these a day you will get enough "softage" to obtain whatever benefits you might expect from this procedure. In case you don't like any of those, you can use two ounces of Bran Flakes or Raisin Bran. Use two ounces of these a day because they don't contain as much cereal fiber.

Cereal fiber is not roughage. As soon as it is moist, as would happen in the stomach, it swells and becomes soft, not greatly different from the consistency you might see in cooked oatmeal. It won't irritate the digestive tract.

You may have an increased amount of gas during the first three weeks of using these foods. If you have too much, cut down on the amount you are using and gradually increase it. If you do well on this program you can then add other whole wheat products to your dietary plan, including whole wheat bread as opposed to the white flour types. In general try to increase your cereal fiber. For information on Diverticulosis send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 5-6. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What causes mastoid trouble? When my daughter was about I year old she had it and had an operation. She seems to think it was caused by something I gave her. It bothers me.

DEAR READER — Most mastoid trouble is caused by an infection. That does not mean an infection that your daughter would have gotten from you. Mastoid infections were common complications of ear infections and the types of infections we classified as respiratory infections in years past. We don't see them much anymore because antibiotics eliminate most of the bacterial infections that would cause mastoiditis. You can be fairly certain that your daughter's problem was a complication of an infection that she developed as a child totally unrelated to anything that you might have done or anything she may have gotten from you.

Blue-Eyed Mantra for Meditation

Do you know what Mayva said to me the other day? She said, "You are under stress."

"Why would you say a thing like that?" I asked.

"Because you just dusted the coffee table with a deodorant. Besides, you don't seem to have any energy anymore."

"Ice cream? I'd like to see you get into some kind of a meditation technique. I can't tell you what it's done for me."

"I know what it's done for you," I said. "You're so content you're no fun anymore. A REAL friend, Mayva, is fat when you are fat, depressed when you are depressed, and overdrawn when you are overdrawn. I liked you better when you cried when you returned empties to the recycling center."

"You don't mean that," she said gently. "It's not that I have any fewer problems than you do. I'm just able to handle them better. What would you say if I told you all it takes for peace of mind is a few minutes out of each day sitting in a chair relaxing with your eyes closed?"

"You show me a woman sitting in a chair in the middle of the day with her eyes closed and I'll show you three kids having a peanut butter orgy!"

"Just try it," she pleaded. "Here, just sit in this chair and get comfortable."

"I hear flushing!" I said, gripping the arms of the chair.

"Listen! Are chose marbles in the cold air ducts?"

"It would help if you had a mantra."

"I'm not that cold, but there's probably one in the hall closet."

"No, a mantra is a thought-sound — a word that we use to meditate on and reduce mental activity."

"Do you have one?" I asked. (Mayva nodded.) "Then, maybe I could borrow yours."

"I can't do that," she smiled. "I can't even tell you what my mantra is."

"That's terrific!" I said. "When you were pregnant, I offered to carry the baby for you and you can't even loan me your mantra for a few minutes. It's all right. I'll get my own!"

They tell me they found me in my chair 40 minutes later. The kitchen was a disaster area, the front door was open, there was no hint of dinner, the phone was ringing, and the dog was eating cottage cheese out of an ashtray.

Gambling to Save a Boy's Life

Pretend for a moment that you are a social worker and this is the problem you face:

Johnny is 14. His father is a junkie and his mother, when she is home, is usually with a strange man who leaves $10 or $20 on the dresser when he departs.

Johnny is starting to get into serious trouble. He's been fighting, cutting class, involved with a gang in stealing cars and some minor shoplifting. Now he's got a .32 revolver underneath his mattress and he's ready for bigger things, mugging, perhaps armed robbery.

Johnny's also been doing some hustling — selling his body to older men. Johnny doesn't think of himself as a homosexual — it's just a way to pick up a few extra bucks.

Johnny's just been arrested and the court has made him a ward of the state. He sits in a juvenile detention center, learning how to be a better criminal while waiting for placement in a foster home. Only there aren't too many foster parents who want a kid with a criminal record who also has had some serious contacts with homosexuals.

Along comes Mr. X. who admits he's a homosexual but claims he's not sexually interested in kids. So you gamble and allow Johnny to go home with Mr. X. Lo and behold, Johnny starts to look and behave better. He attends school, gets decent grades and is happy, smiling, even joyful.

This is just one dilemma dealt with by Robin Lloyd in his shocking and challenging book about homosexuality and prostitution entitled "For Money or Love" (Vanguard Press). In this case, Lloyd asked the social worker what he did decide — take the boy from Mr. X and return him to his "natural" environment or just let it slide. This, according to Lloyd, is what the social worker replied:

"I let it slide. I'm going to play the percentages. If that's the trade off for this kind of change of life, I'm not going to face that kid and say — 'This is wrong Johnny. You're going to have to go back to what you were and maybe somebody else will come along who doesn't do that.' If I see that Johnny is happy, I'm going to have to go along with modern thinking that even if Mr. X. is having sex with Johnny, if the man is responsible, he might phase out the sex and go into a pure father-son relationship."

Robin Lloyd agrees with that decision. "I think that's a fairly fair trade off," he says.

Make no mistake. Lloyd has contempt, even hatred, for the pornographers and pimps who prey on the helpless and hungry teen and preteen boys. And Lloyd brutally makes you aware that boy prostitution is not geographically limited to big cities like New York and Los Angeles, that it happens in smaller towns across the nation.

'No Need To Panic'

WEST POINT—A gun powder cannister is buried at West Point. There is no need to panic, however as the four-foot cylinder buried in front of the elementary school is not being used for explosive purposes but rather as an authentic time capsule.

The capsule—the only one of its kind at West Point— is a project of the children of the Point's elementary school. The children filled the capsule with textbooks and materials currently being used in their classroom.

It is buried in a six-foot hole in front of the school to be recovered in the year 2076.

Marriage Savers

'Gurus' Can Shatter Lives

By Joanne and Lew Koch

(Fifth in a series)

Men and women in the 1970s probably have no more marital difficulties than they had in the 1940s. But they believe they have a right to feel better.

Never before in the history of marriage have so many husbands and wives believed they were entitled not only to be free of boredom and suffering, but free to experience satisfaction, joy and even ecstacy.

To meet this demand, an enormous supply of gurus, therapists, trainers, group leaders and swamis have rushed into the marketplace

Unfortunately, couples who have come to the bazaar of human potential wares usually come feeling very needy, longing to find a way to resurrect the dead senses that used to tingle at the sight of each other or to shift gears which are too monotonously meshed. They hope for a dramatic change in their behavir and their marriage. They look at the modern therapies and think they see magic

Take the case of Diane Wayne. Dr. X. sounded to her like other reputable therapists. He claimed to believ in the creative possibilities of each individual. He had a degree from a reputable school and appeared frequently on TV because of his air of authority and intelligence and his handsome appearance. He is also the highest-priced therapist in one of our largest cities.

So how was Diane Wayne to suspect anything? Her boyfriend had been in therapy with Dr. X. for several months. Dr. X. convinced Diane, who is a beautiful woman, that she, too, needed therapy

Diane's youth was stormy. Her parents had each been married four times, and, at 25, she, herself, was a divorcee with a three-year-old daughter. She had not yet tapped her considerable artistic resources and so she looked for her total satisfaction to her young, rather unstable lover

After a few months of weekly visits, Diane noticed that Dr. X. was becoming suggestive, then seductive, during therapy Dr. X. called Diane's apartment one evening.

"There was Turkish harem music going in the background. He suggested that I come over. I was really shocked, shocked and confused, and I turned him down."

Diane ended therapy two days later telling Dr. X. she wasn't going to pay $35 an hour to have him make passes — especially since the therapy had been oriented toward the goal of improving her relationship with another man

A few months after terminating treatment, Diane broke up with her boyfriend. She felt confused and upset with no place to turn. In desperation she turned to Dr. X.

"Dr X said that I should definitely still be in therapy. He said maybe we could do both — se each other as friends and also do the therapy. He knew that I had this rift with my boyfriend. He knew that I was vulnerable. He, himself, was in between marriages. Anyway he urged me to come over for dinner.

"As soon as I walked in the door, he grbbed me, started kissing me, and led me into his bedroom. The whole experience was very bizarre, very devastating. He tried to get me to stay the weekend, claiming that he couldn't stand to be alone. I said I had to get out and he became rude and surly. He called the next day, urging me to be his patient. He knew that I was coming undone with all the confusion in my life. He even said, 'Gee, I feel like I've dropped you on your head.' "

In fact, that's what Dr. X. had done. He had exploited a woman, knowing she was psychologically vulnerable, and set her moving in a downward spiral of confusion and helplessness which would end a year later in a mental breakdown.

After a number of harrowing experiences — including one LSD trip which left her with a recurring hallucination of the world coming to an end, and a cancer scare, which finished off her shattered nerves — Diane made the slow climb back to stability.

She has remarried now, but still retains bitter feelings toward Dr. X. She is contemplating legal action but hasn't decided whether her case is strong enough.

Last year, a woman named Julie Roy won a $350,000 damage suit against psychiatrist and magazine columnist Renatus Hartogs. Dr. Hartogs was charged by the 36-year-old Ms Roy with inducing her to have sex with him while undergoing therapy.

We were curious to see how Dr X. would react to the decision in the Hartogs case After discussing the general topic of marriage counseling with him, we asked his opinion.

"Now, in the heyday of malpractice," said Dr. X. "any patient can turn on any doctor for anything. That girl (Ms Roy) probably was a psychopath. I wouldn't presume Dr. Hartogs was destructive, just too friendly to that girl. It isn't only therapists who sleep with their patients. There are doctors, lawyers, ministers who do the same . There are schools of therapy that say their patients need this sexual enlightenment, though they usually don't feel such enlightenment is called for when the patient is an old, beat-up broad."

Dr Willard Gaylin of Columbia University Medical School — one of those who condemned Dr. Hartogs' behavior in court during the case — estimates that five to 10 per cent of psychiatrists have sex with their patients He noted that sexual intimacy is specifically forbidden by the rule of the American Psychiatric Association.

Dr. Gaylin stresses that the psychiatric code of ethics, as well as the Hippocratic Oath, whereby the doctor swears to do no harm to the patient, are broken when a psychiatrist takes advantage of a patient.

Diane, Julie Roy, and too many other men and women are what is known in the therapy world "casualties." Casualties are most likely to occur when a therapist with a charismatic personality or a passionate evangelical belief in one mode of therapy evokes an emotional high — a catharsis, a letting go, or a letting down of defenses — on the part of the client.

It's a classic Elmer Gantry or Marjoe revival rip-off. But men and women who consider themselves much too sophisticated to be taken in by old-time religious hucksters are uniquely vulnerable to the intellectual patter, the allure of degrees and the comfort of knowing one's faith is in the exclusive and chic province of "psychology."

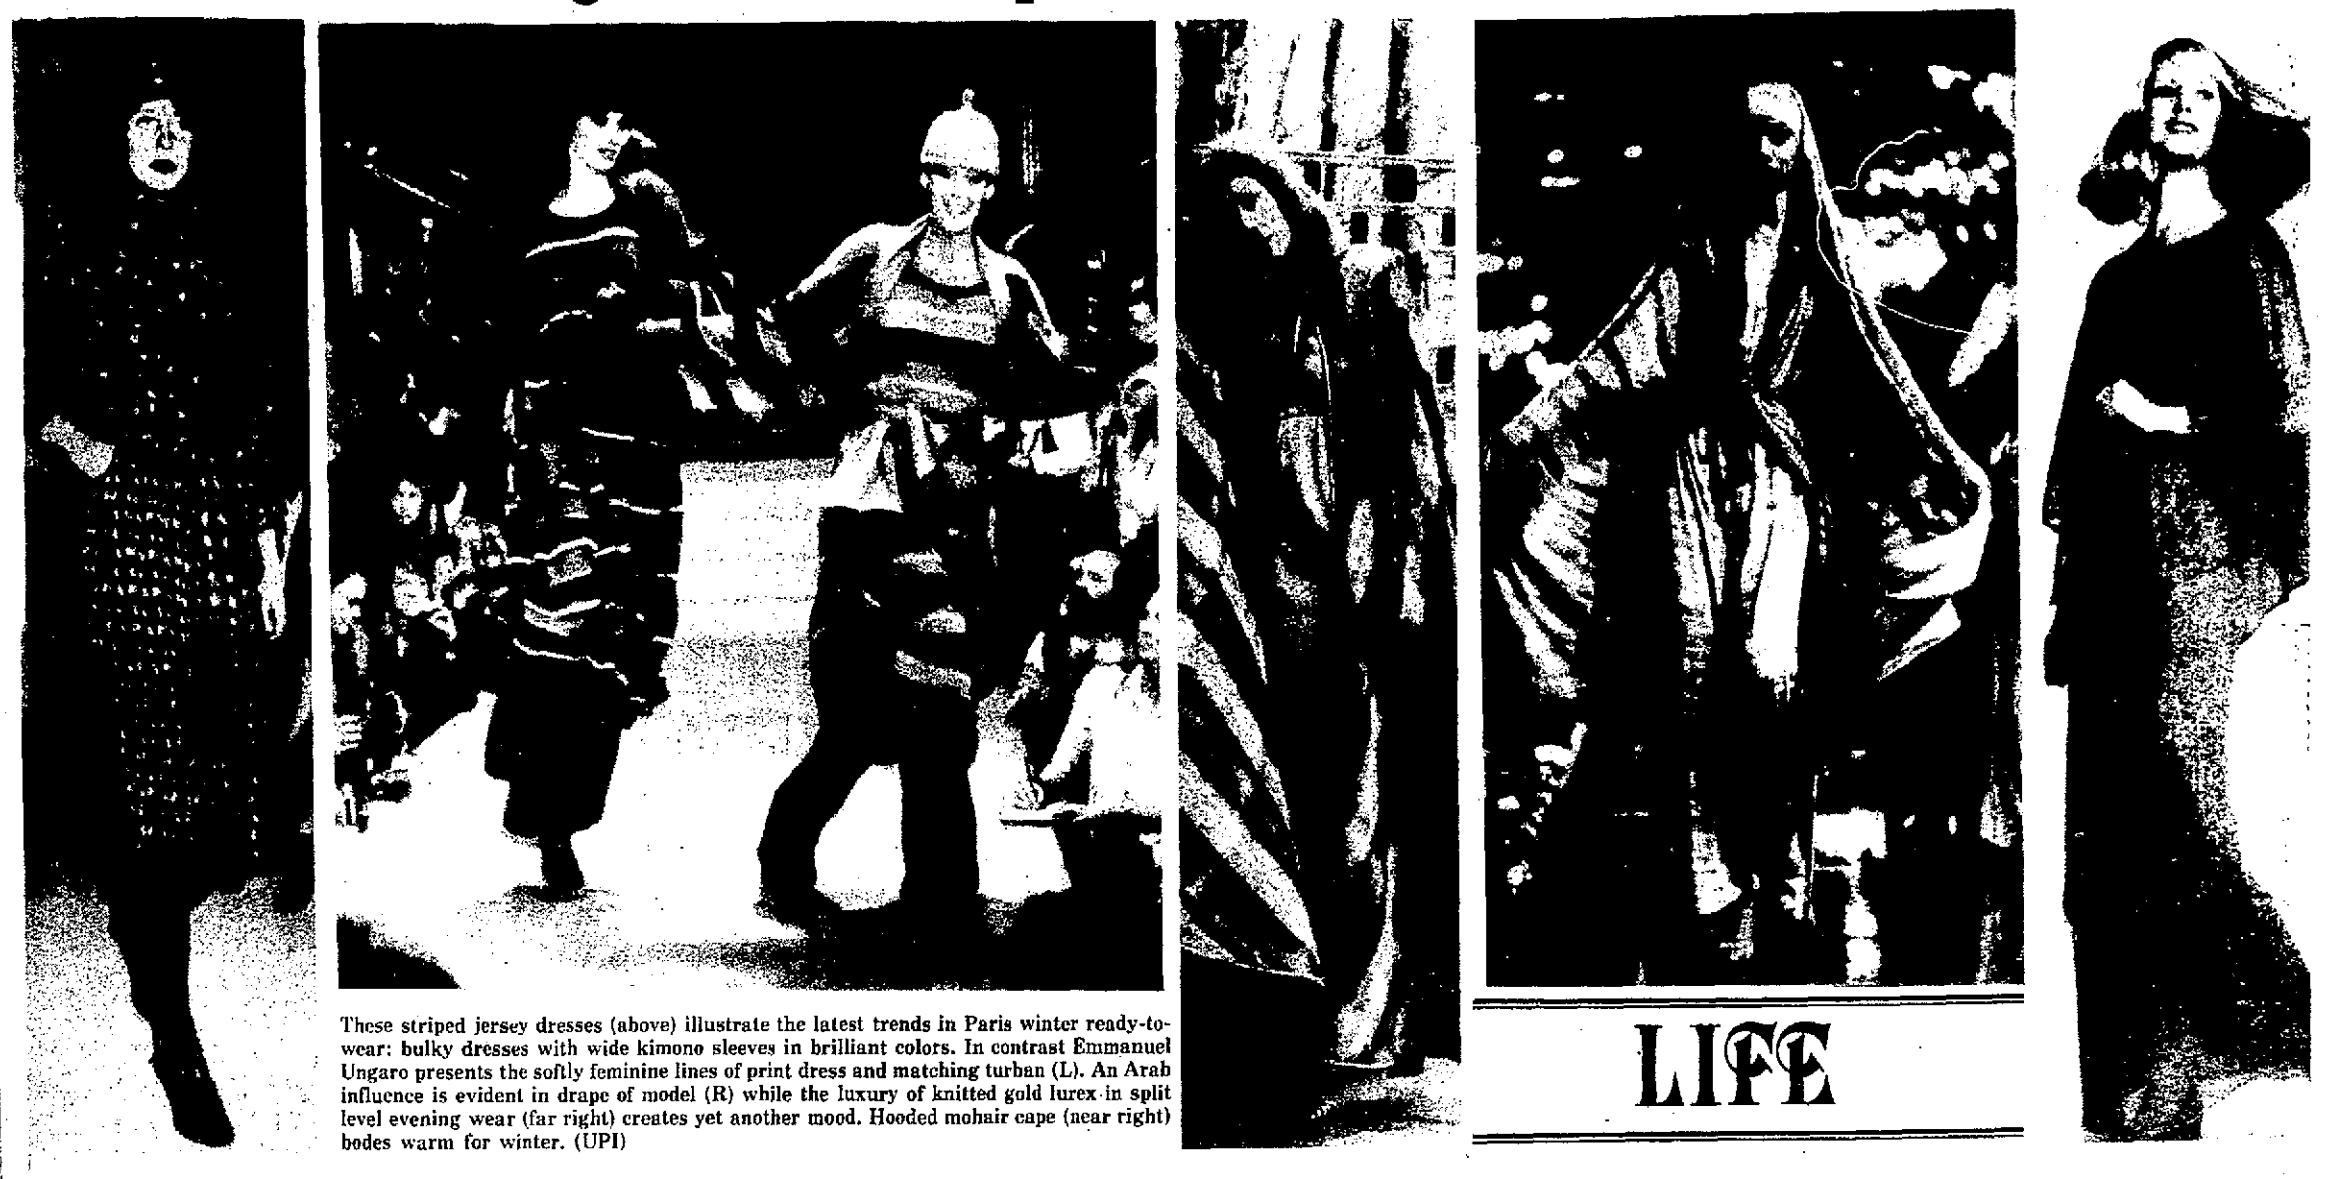
Are You Ready for This? — Fall Fashions!

The Designers Telescope the Seasons with Inspiration



These striped jersey dresses (above) illustrate the latest trends in Paris winter ready-to-wear: bulky dresses with wide kimono sleeves in brilliant colors. In contrast Emmanuel Ungaro presents the softly feminine lines of print dress and matching turban (L). An Arab influence is evident in drape of model (R) while the luxury of knitted gold lurex in split level evening wear (far right) creates yet another mood. Hooded mohair cape (near right) bodes warm for winter. (UPI)

LIFE

Design Influentials

GIL AIMBEZ

NEW YORK — (NEA) — "I started out with extreme styling that only 10 per cent of the population would buy but that's not what I want. If you're on Seventh Avenue you want to succeed as a manufacturer. Still, I don't compromise. You don't see a basic tailored shirt in my line or an A-line skirt because a woman has a thousand of these in her closet. She doesn't need me to design them for her."

What Gil Aimbez does dream up for the Genre label — at a maximum cost of $100 — are simple, innovative clothes, many cut square and loose. For summer, there are U-neck sundresses with toggles at the shoulder in crinkle cloth, wrap skirts, aprons, square sleeve big tops, trousers, shorts, jumpsuits and caftans in "no-colors" such as plum, apricot and yellow to meld with lots of other colors as well as the plaid he designed exclusively for them.

And there's his sense of humor. That harem jumpsuit in paper-thin cotton spreads out to the dimensions of a sheet. "You can wear it to the beach and use it as a blanket," he says.

He's a comer, this short, friendly 35-year-old. "People say to me, you're that old!" And in the year and a half that he has been designing for Genre, his work has been featured in the magazines that matter and Women's Wear Daily. Three times in one week in the latter, although, he admits laughing, the last mention was to correct a caption attributing his clothes to someone else.

"I worked for 13 years in this business before I finally got to do what I wanted," he says. "I never felt the jobs I was offered gave me the chance to express myself fully."

When he came to New York from California, he put in his time as a pattern maker and assistant to Anne Klein and, later, to Carol Horn.

"Anne Klein taught me that as long as you design for the fabric you're working with you can design anything and it will be in good taste as well as seasonless."

And Aimbez believes in seasonless dressing. What you buy now can be worn months from now. The secret lies in layering.

"Layering is fun," he says. "Each piece goes on easily and was designed to work with others or alone. That's why layering isn't bulky. Proportion makes the art of layering. The armhole of a vest, for instance, must be cut longer than that of the shirt."

In the workrooms behind the showroom at Genre, where employes look up and smile, there are stacks of cardboard boxes labeled "Gil's ideas."

"I try to learn from my mistakes," he says, smiling. "I save charts of the past season to see what worked and what didn't. In my apron dress, for instance, I changed to shoulder buttons because I found women didn't like to pull it over their heads."

Dress Betty and People Notice

The hard-faced ladies in massive minks, 18 carat bangles and leather boots so supple they must have been gummed by ancient Eskimo women.

While taped disco music pounds the hearing into gruel, one of Capraro's partners seats the more important spectators. Tall and maitre d'ish in a black suit, he says in passing, "No, the White House couldn't come, but they sent flowers."

And there you have the reason for the hoopla.

A year ago, Betty Ford saw a feature on Albert Capraro in a local Washington paper and called him to design for her. Up he flew to a royal box on Olympus.

His summer showing, fittingly, verges on a Gower Champion production. Lights down, lights up, music blaring, models cavorting. Group after group in his line is greeted with rolls of applause: yellow and white striped beachwear; sophisticated white, pencil-skirted suits; flowing black eveningwear.

Capraro, clearly, is a designer to talk to. But. There's no rapid transit system to Olympus.

Three times the interview is canceled and rescheduled. Albert, poor dear, has the flu. Albert is rushing off for an out-of-town showing and must rest. Albert is going on vacation, but, perhaps, this week.

"We'll have to cut it to half an hour, dear, because Albert has the flu, you know. And he has another interview with a Japanese reporter and Polly Bergen is in with him now. But you can get what you need. Albert is very fast."

Capraro bounces into the showroom, a short, round man with black curly hair, mustache and goatee. His flu, evidently, is an exotic and uncharted strain. He's a bit breathless, but his brown eyes are unglazed, his step unwavering.

He does speak rapidly, but amiably. "I'm thirty-two," he says with a woeful smile, "and I've had my own business for two years. Before that I worked for Oscar de la Renta for eight years, and Lily Dache before that.

"When Mrs. Ford's assistant called, I could hardly speak on the phone. Mrs. Ford loved my philosophy of very romantic and feminine clothes at a price. My clothes are under $200. I didn't understand at first that they wanted me to come to the White House. I thought they'd send me fabric which the President had brought back from his trips."

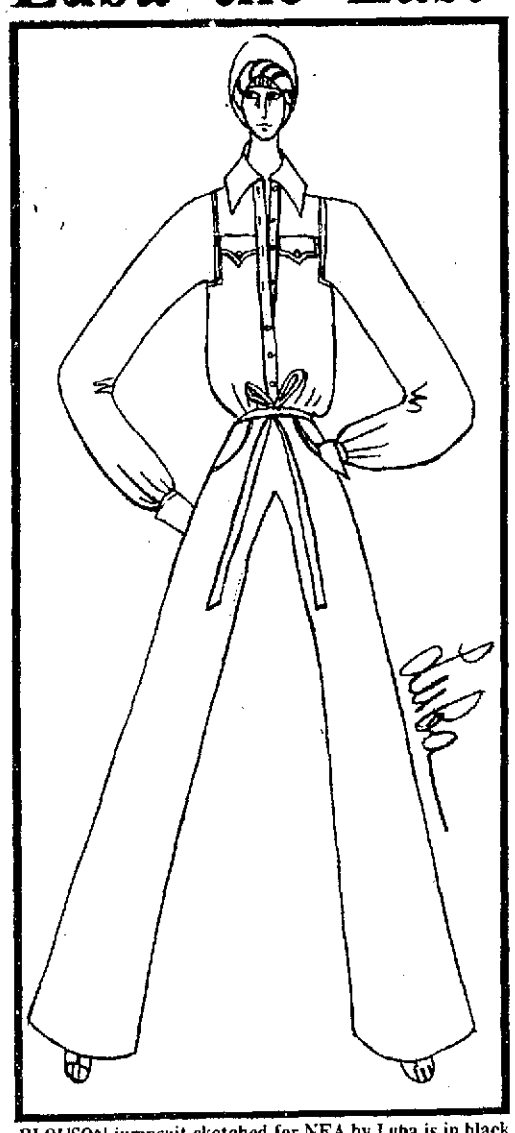
Luba the Last of the Rudenkos



BLOUSON jumpsuit sketched for NEA by Luba is in black with a black and white floral calico interfacing. It is part of her "pioneer" calico cottons group.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Luba is the last Rudenko. Except for her parents, the others were killed during the Russian revolution.

"Well," she says, "if you begin to question something like that, you are not living in the present the way you should. See?" She holds up her cigarettes — a box of Now — and grins, brown eyes mischievously bright.

It's natural enough for a former soloist with the Ballet Russe. But that was then. Now, Luba Marks, nee Rudenko, is known for Luba Designs, the flourishing contemporary sportswear firm she and her husband, Richard Marks, exhausted themselves and their marriage to build.

When they started in the '50s, two people doing the work of 10, "We worked seven days a week with no vacation and it became a $5 million company that offered American women $500 clothes for $90. It was a new concept and America loved it.

"But there was a toll," she continues. "You become physically exhausted so that no vitamin will help and your personal life falls apart." The couple still work together but live apart.

"For two months in 1973, I had to rest," she says. "I re-evaluated, juggled, joggled, went in the ocean in January for a cool swim and in March, I was back in business." By then, Peabody House owned Luba Designs and the pressure had eased. "We're going to make $7-8 million this year," she says, "and we anticipate 12 later on. That's why I don't think about tomorrow. It's only the beginning."

That's Luba now. Then, as a Russian child growing up in Paris, there was another life.

"During the Russian revolution, my parents escaped to Paris. My father had many professions. In Paris he was a tenor with a company of Cossacks. Then he had a restaurant with gypsy music and then he lost everything because a president of France was killed by a Russian and the French, being very chauvinistic, insisted every Russian restaurant had to close."

From then on, it fell mostly to the child to support the family. And she did it by dancing. "I was such a good ballerina my teacher taught me free. And she'd feed me because I was such a skinny child."

There were times, she says, "when I had to win first prize in a contest so we could eat."

Americans have a lot to thank God for. During this country's 200th birthday, we're often reminded of that. In other parts of the world, many people have not had our prosperity. Right now, in Asia, millions of them are starving to death. Floods and earthquakes have left others homeless and penniless – and family-less. The God we worship expects us to help them. The Community Unites to Help Coach House Players Recover

First and foremost, the local theater group is preparing for its upcoming production of "The Gazebo," which will play at the J. Watson Bailey School May 6,7 and 8 at 8:30 p.m. This comedy-mystery promises to delight local theater audiences.

Hard on the heels of "Gazebo," Coach House will present a benefit performance Saturday, May 15 at Kingston High School at 8 p.m. This musical benefit will include many local groups such as the Sweet Adelines, Kingston Maennerchor, and the Kingston Kiwanis Club. Also included will be a selection of musical hits from past Coach House productions, sung by the original Coach House cast members.

The purpose of the benefit will be to raise money to help defray the cost of repairing the Coach House building which was damaged by fire last December. And that brings attention to another spring activity that is keeping most Coach House members busy—cleaning and repairing the interior portions of the building that suffered smoke damage.

While Coach House members have done much of the work themselves, there is some work such as roof repairs, plumbing, electrical wiring, brick work and installation of a heating system, which must be paid for. It is hoped that the benefit will have the twofold purpose of providing an evening's entertainment and financially helping Coach House.

More information on both "Gazebo" and the benefit will appear in future Freeman articles.

'Sugar Britches' Writes CB Guide

On March 10, Lanie Dills published "The 'Official' CB Slanguage Language Dictionary (distributed by Louis J. Martin and Associates, Inc., New York City), a complete guide to the jargon of Citizens Band Radio. Lanie was a new author and an independent publisher, attempting a publishing rarely risked and seldom successful. Nineteen days later, her book was on the Bestseller Lists and more that 200,000 copies has been sold, a feat any publisher would announce with great boasting. For a new author and publisher, it was a stunning victory.

By March 10, the publication date of "The 'Official' CB Slanguage Language Dictionary, the first printing was sold out. On March 29, nineteen days later, the book was in its third printing (revised edition) with 300,000 books in print and it began to appear on the Bestsellers Lists around the country. Today it is number three on The New York Times Book Review Trade Paperback Bestseller List, number four on the Trade Paperback Bestseller List of Publishers Weekly, number two on the Waldenbooks List, number four on the B. Dalton Booksellers List, and in the Top Five on the Bestseller Lists across the nation.

Reorders are pouring into the warehouse of Louis J. Martin & Associates distributors, as stores that had first ordered 25 copies are now asking for 100 and 200. In fact, on March 29,more than 25,000 copies were sold on that one day alone. As fast as the orders came in, books were shipped out. And, suddenly, Lanie Dills was a celebrity. Newspapers, magazines and radio and television shows throughout the country sought her as the assured, unquestioned expert on Citizens Band Radio and its "slanguage" language. Every field has its authority: Mead on culture; Spock on children; Beard on Bread. Citizens Band Radio, newly discovered on the American scene and exploding into the sales phenomenon of the decade at last has its expert: Lanie Dills, better known by her CB handle, "The Sugar Britches."

Goalies Will Play Key Roles

MONTREAL (UPI) — The two best goaltenders in the National Hockey League square off tonight when the Montreal Canadiens and New York Islanders open their Stanley Cup semifinal series

Montreal advanced to the semifinals by whipping the Chicago Black Hawks in four straight games in the best-of-seven quarterfinals The Islanders eliminated the Buffalo Sabres in six games

Canadiens coach Scotty Bowman said he expects a very tough series against the upstart Islanders In regular season play, Montreal had a win and a tie here and a win and a loss at New York

"They have the best power play in the league and they play well when they're a man short They've shown that they can overcome a deficit You have to take them seriously," he said

"The Islanders are certainly a disciplined hockey team They re good on defense with the Potvin brothers, Bert Marshall and Dave Lewis "

Bowman said both goaltenders will play a major role in the series Canadiens netminder Ken Dryden won the Vezina Trophy with a 2 03 goals against average in regular season play, but New York goalie Glenn Resch boasted a second best 2 07

Dryden said he expects the Islanders' series to be hard going too "They've always been hard for us to play against and we haven t actually seen them since last November They re a well balanced, disciplined controlled team They re not flashy but they can be extremely rough at times I expect the Islanders are going to be tough he said

Peter Mahovlich feels the key to a Montreal victory is to bottle up Denis Potvin We've really got to key on this guy We've got to concentrate on him," Mahovlich said "No matter what way you look at it Potvin is the one we've got to stop He's the guy, although they've got a fine allaround team I mean, we beat them twice in four games, but if you add everything up I'll bet there's not much separating the teams "

Mahovlich emphasizes the Canadiens are also going to have to pay strict attention to Bryan Trottier, Clark Gillies and Billy Harris

Mostly though it s going to be very important for us to stop their power play and for us to have our power play going he added

The Islanders had 91 power play goals this season The Canadiens, who had the best NHL regular season record, had 75 power play goals

Power play goals are going to play a big, big role in this series," Mahovlich said But the biggest thing we've got going for us against the Islanders is the way Kenny played against Chicago when he had to and the way the defense played as a group

By UPI

Mike Schmidt s teammates believe there is no limit to the Philadelphia Phillies slugger s home run potential provided he can handle the pressure of superstardom

The 26 year old Schmidt who led the majors with 38 homers last season, equalled the big league record of 11 homers in the month of April Monday night when he hit two in the Phils 10 9 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Schmidt has now hit 10 homers in his last eight games and shares the April mark with Willie Stargell and Graig Nettles

General Manager Paul Owens and Schmidt s teammates talked about him Monday night with the awe the New York Yankees used to reserve for Mickey Mantle

I don t want to put pressure on him but sure he is capable of hitting 50 60 or 70 home runs said Owens He is so big so strong and such a natural athlete And he is getting better all the time

I played with Johnny Bench and Tony Perez but I ve never seen anything like Schmidt said Bobby Tolan He can hit it out to the opposite field even when he has been fooled on the pitch He can be the best if he ever stops worrying about striking out He has to learn that it s no disgrace to strike out when you hit them that far

I m not ready to become a scout yet but anyone can see he s a natural talent said Dusty McGraw There is no limit to what he can do

Schmidt has a natural talent and there is no limit to his physical ability said Dave Cash The only limit is in his head He has to think he can do it If he does I feel he can anything

The two homers by Schmidt paced the Phillies to a 6 0 lead after four innings but the Reds battled back to take a 9 7 lead Pete Rose singled home two runs to highlight a five run sixth inning and doubled home two more runs when the Reds scored three in the seventh to take the lead

Tolan s two run homer in the seventh tied the score for the Phillies who scored the winning run in the eighth when Cash singled and took second on an error went to third on a sacrifice and scored on Bench s passed ball

The New York Mets defeated Atlanta 4 1 St Louis beat San Francisco 13 7 Los Angeles topped Pittsburgh 7 1 and San Diego downed the Chicago Cubs 6 2 in other National League games Houston at Montreal was rained out Milwaukee edged Cleveland 1 0 in the only American League game

Ron Fairly had four hits and drove in four runs and Lou Brock Don Kessinger and Bake McBride each drove in two runs as St Louis hit four attack Ken Reitz hit a three run homer for San Francisco The Giants scored seven runs in the first inning for a 7 0 lead but the Cardinals tied the score in the fifth and went ahead for good in the sixth

Tommy John who has been suffering with an arm ailment since July 1974 went seven innings yielding eight hits and one run to win his first game for Los Angeles in nearly two years Ron Cey hit a two run homer Bill Buckner had three hits and Steve Garvey and Bill Russell two each in the Dodgers 12 hit attack Doc Medich was the loser for Pittsburgh

Padres, 6 Cubs 2

Jerry Turner s two run triple capped a three run fifth inning rally which sent San Diego on its way to victory Bill Greif went five innings for the win with Dan Foster and Butch Metzger shutting out the Cubs for the last four Rick Reuschel was tagged for five runs in six innings and suffered the loss

Brewers 1 Angels 0

Don Money homered in the first and Jim Colborn and Eduardo Rodriguez combined in a three hitter for the Brewers who dealt Frank Tanana his second defeat Tanana the major leagues strikeout leader in 1975 fanned 12 and walked three while allowing only two hits He leads the AL with 29 strikeouts this season

Suddenly, Warriors Are In Tie

By UPI

The Golden State Warriors perhaps took themselves a bit too seriously and the Detroit Pistons a bit too lightly as they prepared for the quarterfinals of the NBA playoffs But the defending NBA champions are suddenly finding themselves locked in a series with a team playing with more determination than talent

The Warriors finished the season with a 59 23 record best in the league and expected an easy time of it when they learned that the Pistons would be their opponents in the quarterfinals After all Detroit had the worst regular season record of any team in the playoffs 36 16 finishing with a sub .500 record in the weak Midwest Division

The Pistons won a best of three series against Milwaukee to earn the right to face the Warriors who they had not beaten all season

In a series that was expected to go no more than four or five games the Pistons managed to tie the Warriors at two games apiece with a 106 102 victory Monday night as Howard Porter hit two free throws with seven seconds left to give the victory

It narrows down to two out of three Coach Al Attles of the Warriors said We lost there the last time so we ll just have to win it and see if the home court is an advantage)

The home court was definitely an advantage to the Pistons Monday night as they played before a sellout crowd

The home court advantage was worth 10 points to us Monday night said Detroit Coach Herb Brown The reason is that the fans were with us all the way They didn t die on us once

Bob Lanier rebounded from a poor third game with a 30 point performance that included 11 points and a vital deflection in the fourth quarter

Forwards George Trapp (17) Curtis Rowe (10) and Porter (16) joined Lanier as the Pistons completely outplayed the Warriors on the inside

Forward Dave Bing scored 28 points including a key three point play in overtime to lead the Washington Bullets to a 102 98 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers twin, their NBA quarterfinal series at three games each The seventh and deciding game will be played Thursday night at Richfield Ohio

Bing the Bullets most prolific scorer during the playoff series also had 13 rebounds and tied a club record with eight blocked shots as the Bullets won a fourth quarter hold this apparent to rally to win in overtime

Phil Chenier added 24 points Wes Unseld while Nick Weatherspoon had 19 Unseld scored only six points but had 17 rebounds and eight assists

Austin Carr led the Cavaliers with 27 points while Jim Chones and Campy Russell had 16 each

Seattle travels to Phoenix to face the Suns tonight in the Sonics attempt to battle back from a 3 2 disadvantage in the best of seven series There are no NBA playoff games scheduled

Lolich Knew It Would Come

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mickey Lolich was class all the way Monday when he won his first National League game—striking out the side in the ninth inning explaining how he s learning about his teammates defensive capabilities and giving plenty of credit to a 26-year old catcher

Sooner or later I knew it would come said Lolich after pitching the New York Mets to a 4 1 victory over the Atlanta Braves I thought I had pitched a couple of good games The Astroturf has been a factor Basically I try to keep the ball low In the two ball parks I pitched in the turf tended to keep the ball down

The biggest thing in coming over to the new league was learning my own defense Lolich continued I didn t know how much range (shortstop Bud) Harrelson or (third baseman Wayne) Garrett had I didn t know if it would be alright when a ball was hit But now I know their range and I have more confidence

Manager Joe Frazier who must have had his doubts about the Lolich Stub trade before Monday s game was told the score for the Phillies who scored the winning run in the eighth when Cash singled and took second on an error went to third on a sacrifice and scored on Bench s passed ball

The New York Mets defeated Atlanta 4 1 St Louis beat San Francisco 13 7 Los Angeles topped Pittsburgh 7 1 and San Diego downed the Chicago Cubs 6 2 in other National League games Houston at Montreal was rained out Milwaukee edged Cleveland 1 0 in the only American League game

If Detroit had Cincinnati were the two teams that objected previously to the proposal to expand to Toronto and Washington but it was believed that St Louis San Francisco and Atlanta joined them Monday to account for the 7 5 vote

It was a political making decision by the National League since the American League either had said it would defy Kuhn and continue its plan to add Toronto in 1977 regardless of any National League action or action by Kuhn

History Repeats?

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — History has a way of repeating itself and it may do just that tonight when the Philadelphia Flyers meet the Boston Bruins in the opener of their Stanley Cup semifinal series

The Flyers now seeking to become the first team since the 1963 64 Toronto Maple Leafs to win three straight Stanley Cups won their first championship in 1974 by beating the Bruins 1-0 in a memorable sixth game of the finals at the Philadelphia Spectrum

Bernie Parent was in goal for the Flyers and Gilles Gilbert in the nets for the Bruins and the setting may be the same tonight

Gilbert who gave up the lone goal in the deciding 1974 game on a Rick MacLeish tip in of a slapshot by Andre Dupont has been splitting playing time this year behind Gerry Cheevers

But he played in place of an injured Cheevers and shut out the Los Angeles Kings 3 0 Sunday night to win the seventh game of a quarterfinal series

Bruins coach Don Cherry has not officially named his starter in goal for tonight but it probably will be Gilbert

I m sort of leaning that way but I don t know Cherry said

Parent played little during the regular season because of neck and shoulder ailments but was in goal for all seven of the games against the Leafs although he did not appear to be at his best form

Parent said it was a matter of confidence I feel great and I m beginning to challenge the shooters again

MacLeish the Flyers best scorer in the playoffs last year has not seen any post season action because of a knee injury, and probably won t

But Dupont is ready and scored a goal in Sunday s 7 1 victory by the Flyers over the Leafs in another quarterfinal seventh game

The Bruins Jean Ratelle who scored two goals and had one assist in Sunday night s game said he felt this series will be the same as the one against the Kings

There will be a lot of forechecking, he said Let s face it They re a tough team and we will have to play well "

Bobby Clarke the Flyers' captain and catalyst also sees a tough series

There are only four teams left so anybody you play is going to be tough, he said We played 100 games to get here and we know we don t want to go home yet

Leafs coach Red Kelly unleashed a pyramid power" symbol against the Flyers and his team responded by winning all three of the games played in Toronto

American League Expansion Path Is Clear

CHICAGO (UPI) The path was cleared today for the American League to add franchises in Toronto and Seattle expanding to 14 teams in 1977 by a National League decision not to expand and to remain a 12 team circuit next season

The National League decided by a 7 5 vote not to expand in 1977 and also voted to send a resolution asking baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to intervene in the American League decision made previously to add Toronto and Seattle

There s nothing to stop the American League from expanding to Toronto National League President Chub Feeney said

Our vote closes the subject of expansion in 1977 as far as the National League is concerned

The National League met to conform to a request from Kuhn that they implement an expansion plan before next week or leave the way open for the American League to take in Toronto

Kuhn s interest in the National League expansion was the hope that it would add Washington as the 14th team in the NL to make good on what the commissioner called a long standing promise to return baseball to the national capital

The National League had asked the commissioner to intervene after a previous vote to expand to Toronto and Washington failed to carry although 10 of the 12 owners approved National League rules require unanimous vote for expansion

The commissioner said he would give us first an amount of time to implement an expansion plan and if we did not then he would have to let the American League go ahead Feeney said We did not implement it As far as I know this puts in American League team in Toronto and expansion for the moment is not in issue in the National League

The vote to ask intervention by the commissioner was 8 4 and was taken after the expansion proposal failed by the 10 2 margin

Feeney said he could not explain why only seven owners favored expansion Monday except that people thought it over and decided in the best interest of the league to remain the way we were

Glorifying Round Ball

SPRINGFIELD, Mass (UPI) The first was the Basketball Hall of Fame enshrinement The purpose though was to salute all those who have helped glorify the game invented in this western Massachusetts city Seventeen did

Full of the day at Monday s festivities concerned the four inductees Bill Sharman the pure shooter Tom Gola the great all around player with a knack for making the big play in the pros Harry Litwack a great coach at a class that included great players and Edward Mo Krause the prototype pivot man

Several hundred Hall of Fame visitors milled through the three floors of basketball memorabilia stopping to chat with former stars like Dolph Schayes The Syracuse Nationals Coward talked for a while while standing next to a headless mannequin wearing his No 4 jersey

Schayes cast an imaginary spell in the meeting Let Damon Bailey s be walked past Sharman

I ll tell you why I did that said the Syracuse Hall of Famer When Sharman was with the Celtics he was a great foul shooter I never averaged 10 and I was always second to him

One year Sharman had but 12 records 6 free throws in a row and I had made 8 straight We were playing the Celtics and I went to the foul line

I am sure Sharman had instructed Celtics teammate Frank) Ramsey to give me the whammy pass as I shot I saw his hands move and I missed the free throw Schayes laughed

Eddie Gottlieb founder of the Philadelphia Warriors and an NBA forefather called Sharman one of the greatest pure shooters I ve ever seen He was unnerving with a two handed set shot from 20 feet in

Gottlieb also remembers Gola who played 10 years for the Warriors Gola came out of college with one of the greatest records in college basketball Gottlieb said of Lasalle s all time scoring leader

We had a 600 year in Philadelphia in 1974 so but everyone still picked us to win the championship the next year because we got Gola as a rookie

The predictors were correct as Gola led the Warriors to the NBA title in his first season He played 10 more years becoming one of the first men to play both forward and guard positions in a game

Of the inductees Litwack maintained the lowest profile throughout the ceremonies The little man who won 373 games as Temple coach stayed with his wife children and grandchildren

When asked to speak he talked of the privilege of being inducted into the Hall of Fame and becoming associated with the history made by these great players

Good Workout For 'Pleasure

LOUISVILLE, Ky (UPI) — A cold snap hit the Blue Grass state Monday morning and after the initial early morning shock gave way to the warmth of the sun trainer LeRoy Jolley watched with satisfaction as Honest Pleasure took a brisk gallop around the Churchill Downs track

Honest Pleasure who probably will go to the post Saturday as an odds on favorite in the $125 000 added Kentucky Derby seemed to respond to the 40 degree weather and was full of energy working easily under John Nazareth

Jolley won last years Kentucky Derby with Foolish Pleasure and can become only the fourth trainer to win in successive years joining H J 'Derby Dick Thompson Ben Jones and Jones son Jimmy

Bert Firestone s Honest Pleasure, who has won nine straight races to increase his career winnings past the $600 000 mark generally is conceded to be the best among the field of nine colts

Ridden by Braulio Baeza Honest Pleasure has raced four times as a 3 year-old and included among his victories are the Flamingo the Florida Derby and Blue Grass Stakes scaring off most of the 252 horses nominated for the 102nd running of the Kentucky Derby

Judging from past performances the only colt in Honest Pleasure s class is E Rodriguez Uzi s Bold Forbes winner of the Wood Memorial Included among Bold Forbes opposition in that 4 1 length victory were four Kentucky Derby starters Bulmak Stable's On The Sly Entremont s Cojak and Elmendorf's Play The Red

The New Cosmo

Young Aims To 'Crack' Ali

NEW CARROLLTON, Md (UPI) Jimmy Young dubbed The Squirrel by world heavyweight champion Mohammad Ali will crack the champ in their title fight Friday night according to one of Young s managers

If he (Ali) is depending on this tiger to run out of gas he s sadly mistaken said Ray Kelly Last year I wouldn t have liked this fight but right now Ali is right to be taken

I predict victory in 12 rounds or less We can t stop him on cuts or a knockout but at the end of the fight This isn t a dream Young s next foe Jean Pierre Coopman (11 recent Ali knockout victim)

Ali right now is working desperately to get in shape for his 27 year old challenger according to Kelly

He took us lightly when he got here but after he watched our workout Easter Sunday he went out and boxed 10 rounds without stopping We didn t come to talk we came to fight

Both fighters did plenty of talking Monday during and after their workouts At one point Young in jest grabbed a chair and threatened the champion cutting an observer to crack That s the only way he could beat him

Ali once playfully told Young to have his workout or my boys will beat your butt but later recanted saying It s important that you check me out If you win you can move out of the ghetto

The champion also silenced hecklers with lines like I got paid for being crazy what s your excuse? When pressed for a prediction on the fight he replied I m predicting you can t afford a ring side seat

Protesters Sentenced

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Missouri man who along with his 11 year old son attempted to set fire to an American flag in the outfield at Dodger Stadium was sentenced Monday to pay a $60 fine or spend three days in jail in addition to a year's probation

William Errol Thomas, 37 Eldon Mo, was sentenced by Municipal Court Judge Jack Tso following his arrest on a charge of trespassing

The father and son, apparently in a protest against treatment of American Indians jumped from the left field pavilion and onto the field during Sunday's Dodgers Cubs game

They unfurled the flag on the field and tried to set it afire with lighter fluid and matches but Cubs outfielder Rick Monday rushed over and grabbed the flag away before it could be burned

In Chicago Mayor Richard J Daley announced that Monday will serve as grand marshall of the Chicago Salute to the American Flag Parade June 12

Trials Postponed

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Additional time trials and qualifying in the National Hot Rod Association's Winston World Chamionship Series at Indianapolis Raceway Park will begin Saturday, because of rainouts the past weekend

Bob Glidden Greenwood, Ind was among a few pros able to make qualifying runs before the rains Saturday Sunday's rains prevented more efforts

Glidden the current NHRA world champion, set a low elapsed time of 8 86 seconds for the quarter mile at 155 miles per hour for the Pro Stock class, putting him in the No 1 position for the rescheduled event His position could change in next weekend's qualifying however

Winner Must Share Spotlight

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) The Kentucky Derby Festival's mini marathon was run under nearly ideal condition for a North Carolina distance runner Monday, but he had to share the spotlight with a pair of Muncie, Ind, girls and the mayor of Louisville

Heinz Wiegand, 28, of Mountain Home, N C, won the Derby Festival mini-marathon for his second straight title, covering the 13 mile distance in 1 hour 6 minutes 21 seconds

Wiegand said the cooler, less humid weather this year enabled him to clip one minute and a half off his winning time one year ago

However attenteion was focused on 14 year old Laura Cartwright of Muncie, Ind, who came in 78th for the best finish among the women who competed in the event staged under clear skies with temperatures in the 50s Her nine year old sister Amy was also among those who finished

Another 14-year-old, Mike McKay of Louisville, also completed the marathon and finished 57th in the race

Louisville Mayor Harvey Sloane 39, finished 184th in the field of about 600 runners who started at Iroquis Hill and finished at the downtown Louisville Riverfront Plaza Sloane put on a finishing kick in the final 50 yards to outsprint another runner to the finish line

Sloane said although he finished worse this year than he did in 1975, he had a much better time He was clocked in 1 hour 34 minutes, about six minutes slower than the pace he managed last year

Vega Returns To Meet Whyms

KINGSTON — The last time Luis Vega fought at the Municipal Auditorium he ran up against the talented Dom Monaco And although a loser in the bout, Vega let Monaco know he'd been in a fight

Vega returns to Kingston Thursday and this time the Scranton, Pa., scrapper will meet Ron (Black Bomber) Whyms in the evening's eight-round co feature Whyms was here last month and turned on the Auditorium crowd when he came from behind to pick up a thrilling draw.

The other headliner on promoter Joe Garfield's 8 15 p m program matches Eddie (KO Flame)Gregory, one of the world's top middleweights, against D C Walker of Hartford Conn

Gregory had been scheduled to meet Johnny Harris, also of Hartford, but an injury has put Harris on the shelf An ailment also has shelved Vince Pavone of Staten Island, who was to meet White Plains' Richie Lugo in a six rounder Garfield has brought in Carlos Gonzalez of Staten Island as a replacement

In other action on Thursday's program Ismael Moldonado of Brooklyn squares off against Carlos Ortiz of Scranton Ernie Johnson of Long Island takes on Jeff Jenkins of Brooklyn and the popular Irish Johnny Turner of Hunter runs up against Charlie Benjamin of Hartford

Garfield hopes to make it a 10 round program by pairing Joe Machetta of White Plains with an opponent as yet unknown

As a sidelight to the program Garfield reports that nationally-known trainer Chickie Ferraro will be working with Gregory as he continues his bid for a shot at the middleweight championship

Tickets for Thursday's card are available at every price range at the Auditorium and Spada's Sport Shop

UCLA Pennants Are Stolen

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It was an inside job, campus police speculated today following the theft of all but one of UCLA's 10 NCAA basketball championship banners from the rafters of Pauley Pavilion last week

The banners, won during John Wooden's years as coach of the Bruins had been the most impressive sight in the pavilion ringing the rafters like baseball pennants at Yankee Stadium on World Series day

But sometime during the Easter week break at school, the banners disappeared and campus police were piecing together a fragmented chain of evidence which led to the belief that it was a tongue in cheek caper

Shortly after the theft a group calling itself The Boys from American Bridge" claimed responsibility for the action in a letter to the Daily Bruin April 19

The group said it had acted on behalf of UniCamp, a UCLA student project to send under privileged children to summer camp, and called on several organizations to make contributions to the charity to get the banners back The contributions were to be made through the "personals" section of the campus newspaper

We beseech the support of every Bruin other students and alumnus, in this crusade for the underprivileged children the letter said "Please help send these kids to camp this summer

Message for Bristol: Stay Out of Suites

NEW YORK (UPI) — I have two messages for Dave Bristol.

The first one is keep winning.

The second one is stay away from those hotel suites generally assigned to all major league managers. They're nice and luxurious, but the job he saves could be his own.

Dave Bristol's boss, Ted Turner, owns the Atlanta Braves, and he has this thing about hotel suites He doesn't like his help staying in them. More important, he doesn't like having to pay for them

Ted Turner provided a strong clue to his feelings about hotel suites last month while the Braves were training in West Palm Beach, Fla., upon walking into one occupied by Donald Davidson. Turner had promoted Davidson to vice president himself a few weeks after buying the club.

A word here about Donald Davidson He isn't your usual vice president

He started with the Braves as a batboy 40 years ago and has been with them almost continuously since Before Turner took over, Davidson served the club as publicity director, traveling secretary, game director, and assistant to the president You name it, he worked it

Everybody in baseball knows Donald Davidson. Weighing 90 pounds and standing only four feet tall, he sticks out like a Tom Thumb.

"I'm a little taller with elevator shoes," he says, "but my wife won't let me wear 'em. I fall down."

Donald Davidson goes with the Braves franchise

He did until last Saturday when Ted Turner fired him

To get back to that West Palm Beach hotel suite Davidson had last month, Turner surveyed the three room unit and noticed it had two beds

Who sleeps in all these beds?" he wanted to know

Davidson said he used only one of the beds He explained there was no extra charge to the Braves for the suite and that the club was paying the regular single room rate of $22 a day, plus tax, but his explanation didn't thrill Turner to any appreciable extent

Last Saturday in Philadelphia the same topic came up

Davidson was sitting in the lobby of the hotel where the Braves stay, talking with sportswriter Wayne Minshew of the Atlanta Constitution, when Turner came along The three talked for awhile and the conversation eventually switched to the accomodations in the hotel

SPORT PARADE

Milton Richman, UPI Sports Editor

Turner said he didn't understand why Davidson and Bristol had to have suites, and wanted to know how much they cost.

"Mine is complimentary," said Davidson.

"How much is Bristol's?" Turner inquired.

Turner made a face, the same kind you make when you suck on a lemon.

"Nobody who works for me lives in suites," he said, "and if there is a free suite, I think I should have it."

"Okay, I'll go get you one," said Davidson.

"I don't want it," said Turner.

Davidson said this wasn't the place to talk about it He said he was going up to his room, suite 2049 2051, and call the hotel in New York where the Braves were due to check in next He was going to give instructions that his suite there be given to Turner instead While he was at it, Davidson told Turner exactly how he felt about the whole thing, and the way he felt was not especially good

Davidson caught the elevator to go to his room and wasn't there 10 seconds when the phone rang It was Turner, and he was hot Flaming hot

"You're through," he told Davidson. "You do not fit into the new image of the Braves. I'm giving you 60 days' pay. Get the hell out of town!"

Davidson asked Turner whether he could come down and talk with him Turner said no He would do Davidson a favor though, announcing Davidson had resigned instead of saying he had been fired Davidson wasn't interested in that favor

Back home in Atlanta now, the initial shock has worn off and Davidson isn't unduly worried He is more capable than guys twice his size and has a legion of friends in baseball, so he shouldn't be out of a job too long

"I'm not upset," he says. "These things are part of the game. I've always advised players not to pop off when they're released, traded or sent to the minors, so I'm going to follow my own advice. I have only one problem. In my will, my body is to be cremated and my ashes are supposed to be spilled over second base and home plate in Atlanta Stadium so whenever anyone slides in and the umpire makes a wrong call, I can cuss him out Now, if I get another job someplace else, I suppose they'll have to fly the ashes back to Atlanta .."

Oh yes about Dave Bristol

The Braves are right up there, tied for first place

And his hotel reservation here is all straightened out Instead of a suite Atlanta's easy-to-please manager has a large single room

'Stop Carter' Pennsylvania Drive Tied to HHH Possibility

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Front-runner Jimmy Carter sought to crush Henry Jackson and Morris Udall in today's crucial Pennsylvania primary and begin a steamroller toward the Democratic presidential nomination next July.

But he was fighting a "Stop Carter" movement as labor and the party machine swung behind Jackson, partly to keep the door open for Hubert H. Humphrey in the event of a deadlocked convention.

The weather was frigid, and rain and snow were forecast for much of Pennsylvania. But more than half the state's voters were expected to cast ballots, lured by the hot Democratic presidential race. Polls were open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. EDT.

Carter was the slight favorite in balloting that could go a long way toward determining whether the former Georgia governor — surprise of the Bicentennial election year — can maintain the momentum needed to capture the party's nomination in July at Madison Square Garden.

The nominally uncommitted delegates, along with a similiar group from New York, will be in Ford's corner in any showdown with Ronald Reagan at the convention.

At stake on the Democratic side are 134 delegates, with 44 to be apportioned later. In addition there is a statewide "beauty contest," the popular vote that probably will overshadow the delegate selection since the complicated ballot may not yield delegate winners for a day or two.

Carter predicted he would win the popular vote, while Jackson was expected to get a majority of the convention delegates. Udall backers said they would consider second place in the popular vote a victory.

George Wallace, who finished second here four years ago, all but resigned himself to fourth place, and did little campaigning. There are five others on the Democratic ballot, who either are far back in the field or no longer active candidates.

Carter campaigned in Connecticut today and Udall in Maryland, while Jackson was back in Washington. All three were to return to Philadelphia later to watch election returns.

The three criss-crossed the state Monday in last-minute handshaking tours, and Udall spent $10,000 from his badly depleted campaign treasury on a five-minute, nationwide television appeal for financial support.

"Give me your hand, your heart, your help," Udall asked viewers in a spot that is to run again Thursday on a different network.

In the Republican Senate race, Rep. H. John Heinz III tried to stave off a late challenge by Arlen Specter, former Philadelphia district attorney who, in the waning days of the race, charged Heinz unfit to serve because of allegations of past illegal campaign contributions.

The winner is expected to face Democrat Rep. William J. Green, a heavy favorite over state Rep. Jeannette Reibman.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 28

Your birthday today: You now leave the past behind and transform yourself to a wiser, more efficient person. The first half-year you begin to search and experiment. The last half finds you well on the road to successful schedules and realistic programs. Relationships weather the early six months and improve after midyear. Today's natives have willpower that fortifies their other assets.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Financial directions change. Your success depends upon your ability to adjust quickly. Apply for rewards for past achievements, scholarships and benefits. Hold back your temper and impulses.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Be firm but not tactless. The little help that is available is going to cost you later. Give others space to switch courses or attitudes.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): The best professional advice still requires evaluation. A whim leads to unusual circumstances in which you need a sense of humor and a glib tongue.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Friends become busybodies, with illogical suggestions. Gently tell them about the flaws in their schemes and your proposed solutions. Loved ones don't deserve shoptalk

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You can't be in two or more places at once. Ration your hours even if it means hasty trips between stops. Expect minimal cooperation and no favors.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Interruptions, startling news and bright ideas are par for the day. Relationships formed too casually turn out to be costly. You benefit by minding the store.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Things owned in common provide a basis for a vigorous debate. Resolving a clash of opinions is more important than the final decision, itself. Avoid untried procedures.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Drastic action to patch up domestic conditions creates more problems than it solves. Blunt remarks upset otherwise peaceful people. Don't buy luxury items.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): People beyond your scope of operations have influence over your situation. Accept a sudden shift in plans or strange news.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Add one gimmick too many, and the whole venture you're promoting gets derailed. Try to avoid discussions with old associates, which put you in a difficult spot.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You get more than your portion of commentary, some of which is unfair. Pointing out errors of others won't improve your status. Assign priorities early.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): If you don't make a big production out of it, a short journey brings in odd information. Avoid unusual maneuvers or legal action.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

A LITTLE TAP: (Q.) Does it mean a boy likes you when he hits you? Gene always hits me when he sees me. Not hard. just a little tap And I always hit him back. He talks to me, too, sometimss And he doesn't hit any other girls.

I really like him a lot. My friend says it's a love tap. What do you think? I'm 13 and he is too —The Only One in New Jersey

(A.) It sounds very much like a "love tap" to me. There are many ways to talk without using words. You and Gene have found one of them.

RESTRICTED: (Q.) A year ago my mother got divorced. She went to work as a waitress. She worked at night. I was 12 and had to take care of the other children, who were 2, 5 and 11. I kept them until she came home at 1 or 2 a. m.

Now we are living on a farm with her boy friend and she does not have to work I do not have to babysit now. But she will not let me go anywhere. She thinks I just want to go out and chase guys What I want is to have some fun, with my girl friend and other friends of hers and mine, 19- and 20-year-old adults.

I am an A and B student. I do what she asks me to do and I have never done anything really wrong. If I could babysit alone at night why can't I be depended on now and have friends and see them?—Prisoner, Ags 13, in Ohio

(A.) You deserve time and freedom to be with friends of your own age (but not with 19- or 20-year-olds).

Your mother has had a hard time, and is clearly afraid you will have a hard time too. In an emergency she had to put a big load on you. She probably feels guilty about that, and thinks about what might have happened, and is trying to "protect" you.

Continue to be dependable. Assure her at every opportunity and show by all your actions that she can trust you. As she grows calmer and easier about her own situation, she will grow calmer and more relaxed about you, and may be able to see your needs more clearly.

Victor Mollo does not show the East-West hands when he is discussing declarer play If you can do so don't look at them until you have planned your play

West starts out by leading out the ace king and queen of clubs The unthinking player ruffs and starts after trumps Now take a look at the East-West cards and see what happens to the unthinking declarer West has five trumps and the unthinking declarer will have the opportunity to complain about bad luck

How about the thinking declarer He will say to himself that trumps have been known to break 5-0 and that when he can take out insurance against such a break he should do so Particularly since he really doesn t have to pay a premium for that insurance

He has to lose a diamond some time Why not right away So he throws a diamond on the third club and can t be beaten at his four-spade contract

Rolison Seeks 6th

POUGHKEEPSIE — State Senator Jay P. Rolison (R.-Poughkeepsie) has tossed his hat in the ring for the sixth time in announcing his intention to seek re-election in the 39th District.

The district includes all of Dutchess and Putnam counties and a portion of Columbia and Westchester Counties. Prior to redistricting, Rolison had represented part of Ulster County in the Senate.

The senator is chairman of the Senate Standing Committee on Banks, and a member of Committees on Judiciary, Codes, Education, and Elections.

Rolison's heart is with the Education Committee, he noted in a news release. "In the past for years I have been a member of the Senate Education Committee and I am most anxious to continue my work in this field," he stated, "I will be writing to members of the Republican County Committees in the counties I represent seeking their help and support for my re-election campaign. I look forward to a strong and vigorous campaign this fall."

Gilman: Nuke Safety

BUCHANAN — Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman, R-26th Dist., has called for a "three-pronged plan" to determine the safety of the three Indian Point nuclear power plants located in Westchester County.

Gilman has asked the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to appropriate funds for seismic research at Indian Point, to initiate a coordinated effort to exchange information and research among agencies having responsibility for protecting other earthquake-prone structures, and to launch an immediate study of the structural ability of the Indian Point facilities to withstand an earthquake.

Gilman's request was made at a Nuclear Regulatory Commission hearing in White Plains which was called to investigate the seismic safety of the three nuclear power plants. The Indian Point complex is located along the Ramapo Fault, where an earthquake was recorded earlier this year.

"The future and safety of residents throughout Southeastern New York may be in jeopardy. The questions must be fully resolved," said Gilman, "An exhaustive study of the safety of nuclear power, including siting, will help the public to more fully accept nuclear power as a viable alternative source of energy."

Waste Water Meeting

KERHONKSON — Town and county officials have invited all interested Kerhonkson area residents to attend a special meeting April 29 at the fire house to discuss waste water problems in Kerhonkson and the possible formation of a sewer district.

Warwarsing Town Supervisor Franklin Sahler said that several representatives from the Ulster County Department of Health, the town engineer and town attorney, and others will be available to answer questions.

In asking for public support in the sewage question, Sahler commented, "Your town board asks for your assistance and input to help us determine the direction we must follow to solve the waste water problem in Kerhonkson." The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m., Thursday.

Woodstock Jaycees Reorganized

Woodstock Jaycees have reorganized and elected new officers with the intention of becoming active in the community. Some of the young men involved with the resurgence are (l-r): Paul Juliano, vice president; Duane DeGraf, treasurer; Harland "Perk" Gentilin, chairman of the board; Craig Grazier, secretary; and Scott Hastie, vice president. Absent from the photo is President Robin Hunter.

Feraca Opposes Shifting

KINGSTON — Joseph Feraca, candidate for election to the Kingston Schools Consolidated Board of Education, said today that he supports the "neighborhood schools and would fight any move to transfer students. Feraca contends a shifting of students would cause more problems than it would solve. "The fact is that students are not items to be placed in empty spaces in various buildings and attempting to solve space problems in this manner ignores reality and promotes assembly-line education," said the former school board member.

Feraca went on to reiterate his solution to the problem of overcrowding at Kingston High School; i.e., "purchase of the library property (adjaent to the high school), using 9th period and partly refurbishing the high school."

"Kingston waited too long to face this problem," said Feraca, "but as difficult as it is to face now, it will only become more difficult and costly as we postpone its solution.

"We must recognize the rights of the individual students," he said. "Preserve the desirablity of academic success and meet the career needs of the students and inspire a sense of community among students and faculty. This is what it is all about," Feraca concluded.

Meyer: Quality Education

KINGSTON — Ronald J. Meyer, cnadidate for re-election to the Kingston Schools Consolidated Board of Education, declared today that he had "made the commitment" necessary to be a productive member of the board during his year's term of office.

"Social functions, some business matters and unfortunately, some family activities have taken a back seat to school district business," said Meyer. "I feel every person owes the community in which he lives a share of his time, ability and efforts."

Meyer claims to have been responsive to all the needs "of our school district during the past year, as chairman of the Communications Committee holding public information meetings, providing the residents of this school with direct access to school records with the 'sunshine law' and installing a public information line."

He goes on to repeat what has been for him a frequent campaign statement: "The education of our students, maintaining the neighborhood school concept are the main issues in this school board election, not buildings."

Meyer says he will continue to fight for a referendum on any major building projects in the district. He points out that he was the only member of the present board who sponsored such legislation. It was defeated.

DIABETES DRIVE— Juvenile Diabetes Foundation president Charles Lawrence (C) receives early contributions for May fund raising campaign from Ulster County legislators, Thomas Roach, Dist. 8, Public Health chairman (L) and S. Robert Kelder, Dist. 7, Youth and Recreation chairman. Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago recently designated May as Juvenile Diabetes Month in Ulster County. Lawrence addressed recent afternoon session of the Legislature on the pressing needs of the Foundation.

$ for County Students

ALBANY — Ulster County residents received more than $2.5 million in state funded scholarships, student loans and tuition assistance payments during the 1974-75 school year, according to the New York State Higher Education Service Corporation.

According to statistics released recently, 1,133 Ulster County students received $1.4 million in guaranteed student loans in '74-'75; 2,252 students received tuition assistance totaling $780,000 and 618 students received Regents Scholarships totaling $234,752.

In addition, New York State residents attending school in Ulster County received $3.1 million in scholarships and loans during the 1974-75 school year.

Among local institutions, the largest recipient was the State University College at New Paltz, where 3,206 state residents received $1.1 million in scholarships and tuition assistance and 1,206 students received $1.5 million in guaranteed student loans, for a total of just less than $2.7 million.

Second on the list of recipients was Ulster County Community College, where 791 state resident students received $274,000 in state scholarships and 155 students received $144,000 in guaranteed student loans.

Other local recipients included Ulster County BOCES, where four students received loans totaling $3,100 and Richard I School of Beauty Culture, where 11 students received $10,400 in guaranteed loans.

Statewide, New York residents attending college in the state received $109 million in scholarships and $178 million in guaranteed student loans during the '74-'75 school years.

S-1 Viewed Threat

POUGHKEEPSIE — Senate Bill No. 1 (also known as S-1) is a definite threat to our individual liberties, according to the New York Civil Liberties Union, Mid-Hudson Chapter, and members are taking their case for defeat to the people.

A program entitled "S-1—The Death of Justice" will be held at 8 p.m. today at the Unitarian Building, 67 South Randolph Avenue, Poughkeepsie, and the public is welcome.

Jeff Segal of New York City will explain the ramifications of S-1, a proposed redification of the United States Criminal Code that has been strongly opposed by the Civil Liberties Union. Segal is an associate of the Center for Constitutional Rights and of the National Lawyers Guild and has authored a booklet "Stop S-1" published by The Guardian.

The Daily Freeman needs
People Who Like People
We're looking for people willing to keep us in touch with their neighborhoods. We'd like them to jot down all kinds of items going on in their area. The joys and sorrows of their neighbors . . . events, problems and things they're proud of in the town where they live. It's an opportunity to meet many interesting people and have a lot of fun doing it.
You can devote as much or as little time as you choose. You'll be paid by the column inch when your story appears in The Freeman. It's all part of "Operation Outreach" . . . our determination to carry the news of every nook and cranny in Ulster County. So whether you live on Main Street . . . or on a mountain top, call The Freeman news room at 331-5000 and talk it over . . .
